HOUSE PASSES RELIEF BILL IN SPEEDY FASHION

Congress May Quit by Friday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Urged onward by the desire of congress to close up shop and go home the new relief bill with its 300 millions for loans to states, its one and a half billions for loans for self-liquidating projects, and its 322 millions for public works went through the house of representatives today at top speed.

An hour's debate under a strict cloture rule, two amendments, a pair of roll calls, and the measure which increases the capitalization of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to the gigantic total of three billion 800 million dollars was approved to the tune of 296 to 46.

There followed a bit of parliamentary presto-change having to do with the house bill and the measure passed by the senate last night.

Garner Speeds Measure.

"I assume that most of you gentlemen would like to go home," announced Speaker Garner, as he explained how the senate bill might be concurred in with an amendment, the amendment being the house bill just adopted.

"At least I would," he added, and the gentlemen loudly applauded and unanimously adopted his suggestion.

That sent the bill to an immediate conference between committees of the two houses and the prospect was for an ironing out of the differences between the two bills early tomorrow.

If this result is achieved the last big piece of legislation standing in the way of adjournment will receive final congressional approval tomorrow and may go to the President for his signature before tomorrow night.

May Adjourn Friday.

Late today the talk was of an adjournment, certainly on Saturday and possibly as early as Friday.

Much depends, of course, on the ability of the conferees to reconcile divergent features of the house and senate versions of the relief measure and on the willingness of the houses to accept the conferees' compromise.

Both bills carry the 300 millions to be loaned by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to states or municipalities for direct relief of the needy and unemployed.

Both carry the $322,224,000 appropriation for public works, with the stipulation insisted on by President Hoover that except in the case of the 120 millions for highway construction and the 16 millions for national park roads construction no expenditure shall be made unless the secretary of the treasury certifies that the amount is available or can be obtained on reasonable terms.

Divergent Views on Loans.

But in the largest section of the bill—that authorizing the Reconstruction Finance corporation to make loans to finance self liquidating projects—there are important differences that may be hard to reconcile.

A number of these were written into the senate bill prior to its passage last night. They include the Glass amendment permitting a federal reserve bank to make loans to an individual or corporation; the prohibition against a loan being made to an institution an officer or director of the Reconstruction Finance corporation within the preceding 12 months, and the senate refusal to grant Mr. Hoover's request that the membership of the board of the corporation be increased from seven to eight.

Other differences were written into the house bill and none more likely to cause controversy than an amendment added to the bill on the house floor this morning.

Calls for Loan Publicity.

It seeks to require full publicity for all loans hereafter made, not only under the proposed new law, but under the original Reconstruction Finance corporation act as well.

Democratic Leader Henry T. Rainey [Ill.] stated plainly that the loan of 80 millions to Gen. Charles G. Dawes' Central Republic Bank and Trust company had inspired the amendment. An amendment such as this, he said, would "have relieved that institution of charges that the

Beer Drivers' Strike Goes Up in Foam

A strike of the beer [real] truck drivers and helpers was ended early yesterday. After seventy-two hours of inaction heavily laden trucks again lumbered through the streets of Chicago in the early morning hours and the city's saloons yesterday were able to supply the hot weather demand.

The story of the strike did not come officially to the ears of the police or of the public until it was over. The tale was told yesterday amidst chuckles by an official of the beer syndicate which caters to thirsty Chicago citizens.

35 Drivers, 35 Helpers.

The syndicate employs 35 drivers and 35 helpers to man its fleet of trucks. It was formerly controlled by Al Capone, but it is now headed by Joe Fusco and Bert Delaney, who have undertaken to carry on the beer business, since Capone's departure, in an orderly and refined manner.

When the drivers and helpers gathered at the south side headquarters last Saturday to receive their weekly salaries, they got a disagreeable surprise. Instead of the $125 which was the accepted wage, they received only $100 and their helpers only $50 instead of the usual $75.

A roar went up but Fusco and Delaney told their employés that wage cutting was now the fashion. They were told to blame Hoover or congress but not the syndicate. The drivers and helpers went away grumbling.

Sunday Is Sunday.

Sunday is observed as a day of rest by the syndicate, but on Monday when Fusco and Delaney and a few other officials of the beer corporation appeared at headquarters there was an ominous quiet about the place. The trucks stood in their sheds. Not one of the 70 employés had appeared.

The syndicate heads fussed and fumed and sent out dire threats, but the strikers stayed away. Matters became so desperate that Fusco and Delaney themselves, gallantly arrayed in white linen suits, buckskin shoes, and panamas, were forced to get out and hustle a few barrels of beer.

Scouts reported that the strikers were enjoying themselves on the south side beaches. Most of the drivers and helpers were persuaded to attend a meeting Monday night at which differences were discussed.

"Why cut us?" the employés asked. "You still charge $55 a barrel for the beer. We take all the chances and do all the work in this hot weather."

Barkeepers Hard Up.

"All the saloonkeepers owe us money," Fusco told them. "They're hard up and we can't make them pay. You've got to take a wage cut."

Emboldened by a day's liberty, the strikers gave their boss a few Bronx cheers and left. They promised to attend another meeting Tuesday night after Fusco had pleaded with them.

It should be explained at this point that there is an Italian giant known as "Mussolini" employed by the syndicate to adjust minor difficulties in the beer business. As the strikers arrived for the meeting Tuesday night, they were ushered into a room where "Mussolini" stood cracking a long whip. Guarding "Mussolini" were a couple of tough fellows with pistols.

So the strikers went back to work early yesterday morning at the new wage scale although many of them winced as the trucks bounced over the rough streets. And when they were invited to have a beer in a saloon, they took it standing up.

ANNOUNCING SIR WILLIAM BULLDOG OF H. M. S. NELSON

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

WEYMOUTH, England, July 13.—"Bill Bulldog," the scowling mascot of the battle cruiser Nelson, must be called Sir William Bulldog from now on.

While the sailors were parading before King George on the Nelson's deck yesterday, Bill broke away and rubbed his head against the king's leg. Before Bill had realized his awful break of discipline, the king, laughing, bent over and tapped him on the head.

Soon word went around the fleet that the king had "knighted" him and today all the Nelson's sailors greeted Bill as "Sir William."

5,000 Lose Clothing in Fire at Coney

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Coney Island was swept today by one of the most destructive fires in the history of the world famous resort. Four square blocks at the western end were destroyed, property valued at possibly $5,000,000 went up in smoke, and more than 1,000 persons were made homeless. It is estimated that 5,000 bathers lost their street clothes and had to go home in their bathing suits.

Only a shift in the wind after the fire had blazed for three hours allowed the city's fire fighting apparatus, there in full strength, to confine it to the area between 21st and 24th streets, between Surf avenue and the board walk and an additional block on the north side of Surf avenue.

Some four blocks of the board walk itself yielded to the flames as the forty mile wind fanned them.

The fire started in rubbish beneath the boardwalk. Fanned by the wind, a tongue of flame soon started a blaze in the underplanking.

The flames, soon visible for miles, turned the western end of the amusement area into a hot, smoky area of desolation.

Clothing in Bath Houses.

Crowds were kept out by the vigilant police cordon. But on the beach a different picture was presented. There, in the crowd of 50,000 or more who watched, were several thousand bathers whose clothing and money were in the bath houses going up in flames. They all presented a problem, but particularly the 1,000 whose homes were in the area demolished. Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney mustered parties to hunt lodgings for the night for the homeless, and ordered, as a precaution, 500 cots from Fort Hamilton. The subways contained many going homeward in their bathing suits. Many borrowed fare and others just walked into the subway without bothering to pay. Two hundred more, at the Coney Island police station, were fed on coffee and sandwiches, pending arrival of relatives carrying clothing.

Army of Fire Fighters.

The entire borough of Brooklyn and the lower end of Manhattan south of 14th street were stripped of their available fire fighting apparatus to respond to the succession of fire alarms that were sent in. Back of the board walk the flames did their worst. North to Surf avenue nothing remained standing. A half dozen bathing pavilions, a six story apartment house, two solid rows of three story dwellings, and two automobile show rooms were completely demolished.

By 9 o'clock, five and a half hours after the blaze broke out, the flames had been extinguished.

ALDERMEN VOTE TO LIFT LOOP BAN ON PARKING

Five Months' Trial Is Proposed.

BY HAL FOUST.

The council traffic committee, by an 8 to 7 vote, yesterday recommended that the no parking rule in the downtown area be suspended for five months from Aug. 1 to Jan. 1. The decision was reached after a tie vote in the committee had been broken by the chairman. A hot debate preceded the vote.

ALD. JOHN MASSEN.

Another bitter battle is expected on the floor of the council when the ordinance comes up for final vote. This may occur today on suspension of the rules or, if this plan fails, it will be brought up at the regular meeting next Wednesday.

One Hour Parking.

During the five months' trial—if the council follows the committee recommendation—one hour parking will be permitted anywhere in the loop between 9:30 a. m. and 4 p. m. Before the present ban became effective in January, 1928, the limit was thirty minutes.

The repeal has been advocated by loop merchants who believe their trade has been curtailed by the parking restrictions. On the other side, traffic engineers have testified at several committee meetings that the volume of automobile traffic to the loop was increased by the parking ban.

A Business Problem.

"It's not a traffic question," said Walter L. Gregory, president of the State street council, in addressing the committee yesterday. "It's purely a business problem.

"We business men feel that shoppers are discouraged from coming downtown because they know the cost of their trip will include a parking fee. In this depression we are sorely in need of business. We are paying enough taxes to receive some consideration from the city administration."

Aldermen from outlying wards spoke against the repeal, saying that it would be to the disadvantage of their constituents who work in the loop by interfering with transportation between home and office.

The clerk read a letter from Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, to D. F. Kelly, president of The Fair, stating that the city administration was convinced of the benefits of the no parking ordinance, but favored suspension as a test.

Results in Tie Vote.

On the roll call on a question of the committee recommending a five months' trial of one hour parking, the aldermen voted as follows:

YES.	NO
Coughlin [1st]	Northrup [19th]
Corr [17th]	Morris [18th]
Sloan [26th]	Rostenkowski [33d]
Kells [28th]	Moreland [41st]
Terrell [29th]	Hoelien [47th]
Keane [34th]	Williston [49th]
Waller [43d]	Quinn [50th]

Ald. John Massen [48th], chairman of the committee, was called upon to break this 7 to 7 tie.

"Gentlemen," said the chairman, after some hesitation, "before voting I want permission to reserve my vote when this proposal comes up on the floor of the council. With this in mind, and realizing that the administration favors this test, I'll vote yes."

2,200 Year Old Greek Coin Is Stolen in $2 Holdup

An ancient Macedonian coin, dated 300 B. C. and valued at $850, was stolen early this morning from Albert H. Winkler, an artist, as he drove his car into the garage in the rear of his home at 2205 Giddings street. The theft was committed by two armed men. In addition to the coin they got $2. Winkler said that the coin was copper and had impressions upon it of two soldiers and of Alexander the Great.

Aimee McPherson Hutton Lapses Into a Coma

Los Angeles, Cal., July 13.—(AP)—Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, ill for months and confronting charges of irregularities in the conduct of the charity division of Angelus temple, tonight lapsed into a coma at her Lake Elsinore lodge. Her immediate removal to a Los Angeles hospital was ordered by her physician, Dr. Edward H. Williams, who said her condition was "precarious."

Chicago's well known lake breeze came to the rescue of the city again last evening, breaking the heat which had sent the mercury up to an official reading of 95 degrees in the afternoon.

Under its cooling spell, the temperature skidded sharply, dropping 15 degrees in the loop in less than an hour. The decline was sharper along the north shore. In Wilmette the unofficial temperature fell from 96 to 67 degrees, a difference of 29. In Evanston it fell from 97 degrees at 7 o'clock to 75 at 7:30. At the Oak street beach the mercury descended from 92 to 80 within a few minutes. In Waukegan there was a 30 degree decline.

More Heat Due Tonight.

Indications are that the respite will be only temporary, according to C. A. Donnel, chief government forecaster. This morning will be pleasantly cool, he predicted, but by this afternoon or evening the wind probably will shift to the southwest. Should this occur, he said, there is a possibility that a maximum temperature of 90 degrees will be reached later in the day.

Mr. Donnel pointed out that Chicago has an excellent weather modifier in Lake Michigan which almost always has prevented prolonged heat waves.

Yesterday's heat came from the parched southwest, and boosted the mercury steadily until the temperature reached 95 degres at 4 p. m. This mark tied the all time record for July 13, which has stood since 1880. The hottest July day on record was July 21, 1909, when the temperature rose to 103.

Thousands Go to Beaches.

Many thousands of men, women and children crowded the many miles of Chicago beaches. Oak street accommodated more than 40,000. Approximately 80,000 packed the Lincoln park beaches, and 100,000 bathers appeared at the south park beaches.

North shore suburban beaches drew many more bathers. At the Calvary beach in Evanston five swimmers, four of them Chicagoans, were arrested because they had lowered their swimming suits to their belts. They were David Jackson, 18 years old, 4306 North Keeler avenue; Alfred Dillon, 30, 7724 North Ashland avenue; Wilson Sutter, 17, 1911 North Tripp avenue; Glenwood Penzel, 18, 4349 North Tripp avenue, and Ambrose Boesen, 19, 727 Dobson street, Evanston. They will appear today before Magistrate Porter.

The heat which visited Chicago yesterday was part of a wave which spread over the central west, east, and southern states.

LAUNDRY OWNERS ADOPT PAY CUT; PLAN $50,000 FUND

The Chicago Laundry Owners' association, meeting in the Palmer house last night, voted to approve a new one year contract with the Laundry Drivers' union which cuts the drivers' weekly salary 10 per cent. The new average basic pay will be $30, exclusive of commissions.

The new scale will be effective Monday. The union has already informally approved the contract, but will meet Tuesday to give formal ratification.

At last night's meeting the association also agreed to assess its members $1 per week on each operating truck. This is expected to add $50,000 a year to the association's treasury. Officials said that the fund would be used for association business and for organizing independent hand laundries. It is understood the drivers' union will assist in organizing the hand laundries. The meeting was attended by 140 members of the association, who represent 75 per cent of the local laundry industry.

FORMER ALLIES JOIN FOR DRIVE ON WAR DEBTS

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, July 13.—France and Great Britain today reached an entirely new understanding known as a "confidence" accord. The French government tonight carefully presented the accord as nothing short of a resurrection of the pre-war "entente cordiale."

Premier Edouard Herriot convoked the finance and foreign affairs commissions, two of the most important of the chamber of deputies, to hear all about the Lausanne reparations settlement and then to read in solemn tones the new Franco-British pact, which has four parts and a great many more implications.

Text of Accord.

The text of the agreement follows:

"In the declaration which forms part of the final acts of the Lausanne conference the signatory powers express how the task there accomplished will be followed by fresh achievements. They affirm further that success will be more readily won if the nations will rally to a new effort in the cause of peace, which can only be complete if it is applied in both the economic and political spheres.

"In the same document the signatory powers declare their intention to make every effort to resolve the problems which exist at the present moment or may arise subsequently in the spirit which has inspired the Lausanne agreement.

Agree on Four Steps.

"In that spirit his majesty's government of the United Kingdom and the French government have decided to make an immediate, mutual contribution to that end on the following lines:

"First, in accordance with the spirit of the covenant of the league of nations they intend to exchange views with one another with complete candor concerning and to keep each other mutually informed of any questions coming to their notice similar in origin to that now so happily settled at Lausanne which may affect the European régime. It is their hope that other governments will join them in adopting their procedure.

"Second, they intend to work together and with the other delegations at Geneva to find a solution for the disarmament question which will be beneficial and equitable for all the powers concerned.

"Third, they will coöperate with each other and other interested governments in careful and practical preparation for the world economic conference.

"Fourth, pending negotiation at a later date of a new commercial treaty between their two countries, they will avoid any action in the nature of discrimination by one country against the interests of the other."

Implies Unity on War Debts.

First, that France and Great Britain are standing together on the issue of war debts they owe to America.

Second, that in Geneva, where, according to dispatches tonight from the scene of the disarmament conference, the "confidence" accord has cleared the air, and the French and British will coöperate in opposing the two most unpleasant features—to Europe—of the Hoover disarmament plan, namely, the one-third cut of battleships for the British and the large reduction of land effectives for the French.

Third, that Italy, which has not only been playing the game with the "malcontents," Germany, Russia, Hungary and Bulgaria, but has also embraced the Hoover plan, is shown how she might be left out in the cold.

Pact Follows Lausanne Treaty.

The first paragraph of the new style treaty, which being just an "understanding," does not have to be registered with the league of nations, is clearly a sequel to the "gentlemen's agreement" at Lausanne, the text of which THE TRIBUNE published exclusively on Sunday.

M. Herriot, besides announcing the resurrection of the entente cordiale, interpreted the new accord as "happily completing" the "gentlemen's agreement," by which the debtor nations of the United States are not to ratify the Lausanne treaty until each has obtained a satisfactory settlement with America.

He explained to the finance and foreign affairs committees that Great Britain cannot now undertake to regotiate a new debt settlement with the United States without first consulting France. This certainty of a concerted attitude he said, would "facilitate the success of negotiations with Washington."

"I do not intend to make any long commentary on the document which is profoundly and solely pacifist in its inspiration," Herriot continued. "I simply wish to emphasize that it underlines the loyal friendship between Britain and France and at the same time their ardent desire to pool their efforts, their labor and their experience to contribute to the good understanding of the people of Europe and the world, and to the organization of peace."

Washington Involved.

Herriot told his assembled commissions of the reasons for the agreement on a lump sum reparations payment by Germany, hypothetical though it is, instead of a clean slate. Washington, he said, asked that it be so.

A deputy of Herriot's own party, Gaston Bergery, a son-in-law of the former bolshevik ambassador, Leonid Krassin, and himself a "young Turk" out for Herriot's scalp, asked the premier point blank why he had not fallen in with the British, Italian, and German suggestions for a clean slate. He said this would have put the issue of debt cancellation squarely up to America.

Herriot is reported to have chided him, saying that "you know that everybody knows it was America which asked that the principle of a lump sum be established instead of sponging the entire slate."

Vincent Auriol, Socialist, seizing the intimation, then asked in what form Washington presented its request to France to stand by the principle of a lump sum. Several deputies said that it was understood that Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, American disarmament delegate, is supposed to have approached Herriot after his telephone conversation with Hoover.

Herriot Holds Tongue.

Herriot, however, held his tongue because when he asked the deputies whether they would take a pledge of secrecy the communist Thorez said he was there to listen and would make whatever use of the information acquired he deemed advisable. So Herriot did not tell the inside of what he and his delegation have been insisting was Hoover's participation through Gibson, in the Lausanne conference.

Officially it is stated that the phrase in the first part of the accord to the effect that Britain and France will consult on problems growing out of Lausanne that apply to Europe means that consultation will be limited to such purely European problems as the Danubian economic crisis. The words boldly convey, however, another meaning—debts—and, as the accord so closely followed the Lausanne settlement, it is not generally construed as meaning much of anything else.

Simon Tells House of Pact.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, sprang the announcement and British interpretation of a new Anglo-French alliance on the house of commons just before that body adjourned for its long summer recess today.

Sir John announced categorically that the new accord has nothing to do with war debts due the United States from Britain and France, thus taking an entirely different stand from that assumed by Premier Herriot of France.

"If the French people believe such is the case they will be quickly undeceived," Sir John asserted.

Pact Open to Other Nations.

Sir John announced that the pact is not intended to be exclusive and that invitations have been sent to Germany, Italy, and Belgium to associate in its provisions with France and Britain.

Publication of the text of the "gentlemen's agreement" reached at Lausanne among the debtor nations of the United States, which had been scheduled for tonight, was postponed until tomorrow to make way for the new Anglo-French accord, it was announced. It was the "gentlemen's agreement" under which the debtor nations agreed not to ratify the reparations settlement until each had obtained a satisfactory revision of war debts with the United States.

The new Anglo-French agreement originated at Lausanne, it was revealed, and suddenly took definite shape today. It was pointed out that the French have in the accord a weapon to be used against Germany in case the latter nation institutes a move to revise the Versailles treaty.

By the treaty Paris must be kept informed by Great Britain of any steps in this direction, and it would be impossible for Britain, for instance, to form an alliance with Germany for that purpose.

Leave for Geneva.

Sir John and Sir Herbert Samuel, home secretary, left tonight for Geneva where Sir John said he is going "to work out the principles of the Hoover disarmament proposals."

Announcement of the agreement featured the closing session of parliament, which adjourned today until Oct. 27. The speaker, however, is empowered to recall the house at an earlier date in case of an emergency.

BERLIN, July 13.—Official circles here tonight refrained from taking a definite attitude toward the Anglo-French consultative pact announced today. But they indicate that, whereas Germany could not consider joining any political "truce of God" such as has been envisaged on the French side, it might be found practicable to adhere to some general Anglo-French agreement looking toward a solution of pending political problems.

Germany would have to reserve her freedom of action especially in regard to a decision concerning when and how the question of equality of armament rights is to be most appropriately dealt with. The third and fourth articles in the Anglo-French consultative pact concerning preparation for the international economic conference and comity of trade relations completely correspond to the German proposals made at Lausanne and thus have full German endorsement.

The German official position on what the state of affairs would be if the Lausanne agreement failed of ratification is that the authoritative interpretation is not Premier Herriot's—a return to the Young plan—but Prime Minister MacDonald's, given in his capacity as president of the Lausanne conference. That interpretation is that the Young plan would not again come into force but that the case would have to go before another conference.

"Lausanne Just a Start."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 13.—Neither the Lausanne agreement ending German reparations nor reduction or cancellation by the United States of allied debts will be sufficient to break the backbone of Europe's depression, according to reasoned arguments which are already appearing here.

Lausanne was only a small beginning and will only be useful if it is followed by a lowering of tariff restructions, the Osservatore Romano, Vatican organ, said tonight. This paper has steadily supported a complete sponging of intergovernmental debts.

"It is obvious that a general remission will only be of value if those problems which are complementary to it are immediately tackled—namely: adequate armament reduction and reform of tariff policies," it declared.

Seen as Attack on U. S. Tariff.

This statement, echoed in other quarters, is generally interpreted as a significant indication that relegation of intergovernmental debts to the scrap heap is regarded as a preliminary step for a general European onslaught to get American tariff walls down and open up a rich market for expanding industries here.

In connection with the Vatican's backing of general cancellation of intergovernmental debts some curious speculation has been raised here as to whether it is meant to apply also to Italy's debt of $90,000,000 to the Vatican, which was incurred under the terms of the financial accord in the Lateran treaty three years ago.

The debt is in the nature of an indemnity, but also has the aspect of an intergovernmental obligation arising out of a peace settlement.

ANNOUNCES PACT

HOPE FOR BEST ON DEBT ENTENTE IN WASHINGTON

Leaders Noncommittal as to Effect on U. S.

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—About the time word of the new Anglo-French accord was received here today in press dispatches Secretary of State Stimson went to the White House for a conference with President Hoover. Whether they discussed the accord was not disclosed.

Later it was said in administration circles that correspondents who interpreted the agreement as meaning a united front of Europe against the United States on debts evidently preferred to assume the worst. The administration, it was made clear, would be the last to suggest that Europe was attempting to take an invidious position toward the United States.

Hope for the Best.

The hope was expressed that the accord merely was in line with the desires of the United States that Europe put her own affairs in order before turning to this country with appeals for debt relief. Provisions of the accord pledging Great Britain and France to work for the success of disarmament and the projected international economic conference were regarded as in line with a trend toward coöperative constructive action in Europe.

Senators were reserved in their comment. Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, would make no statement. He explained that he preferred to await more information. His first reaction was that there was probably nothing serious in the compact so far as the United States was concerned.

Senator Reed who is opposed to debt revision said: "I do not see why the Anglo-French accord should lead us to change our attitude on debts in the least. Our position is well known."

Doubt Debt Connection.

"This compact," he said, "appears on the surface to be aimed to produce better relations in Europe and apparently will not affect the United States in relation to the payment of the war debts. I am unable to estimate just how far reaching this agreement will be and what its purpose is until I have made further study and we learn fuller details."

The effects of the Lausanne reparations settlement on the American debt was the subject of a discussion in the foreign relations committee, which, in executive session devoted more than two hours to the possibilities that the United States might be forced by economic pressure and the earlier attitude of the administration to make some concession to the debtor nations on the eleven billion dollars' war debt.

Disard Query to Hoover.

The committee quickly disposed of Senator McKellar's resolution requesting President Hoover to inform the senate whether any American officials had been consulted in the negotiations and had agreed to a scaling down of the war debt in return for reduction of the German reparations. By a vote of 8 to 4, the committee defeated the resolution on the ground that Secretary Stimson had officially denied that any promises had been made on behalf of this government for a revision of the debt.

Those supporting the resolution were Senators Borah, Moses, Capper, Reed, Vandenburg, Glenn, George, and Wagner. Those opposing were Senators Robinson [Ark.], Johnson, Shipstead, and La Follette.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 13.—A single gold bar, valued at about $100,000, has been salvaged from the Laurentic, which was sunk by a German U boat in 1917 off Lough Swilly, while convoying bullion to America.

FRANCE FORMED FIRST ENTENTE WITH GREAT BRITAIN IN 1904

The entente announced by France and Great Britain recalls the old triple entente to which Russia also was a signatory. That earlier entente related chiefly to imperial concerns in Africa and Asia and had a military background. The present entente is set forth as being of an economic nature, relating to Europe. The old entente was to combat the triple alliance between Germany, Austria, and Italy in 1882.

The opposing groups of powers, France, Russia, and Britain, were naturally thrown together. In 1892 France and Russia entered into a defensive alliance against Germany and Italy, and in 1904 France and Great Britain signed a number of agreements settling their political disputes and creating an atmosphere of friendly coöperation which gradually grew into a common bond against Germany.

Subsequently the entente powers agreed upon a military alliance in case war should ensue from the 1904 treaty. The entrance of Great Britain into the world war was followed by another agreement in September, 1914, in which the powers promised not to make peace separately during the war. In 1915 Italy deserted the triple alliance and joined the entente.

After the war proposed agreements were signed between France, Great Britain, and the United States whereby the two latter powers agreed to go to the assistance of France in the event of unprovoked German aggression. When the United States declined to ratify the treaty, France resorted to a policy of forming new alliances with the new and smaller states of Europe, so as to surround Germany and form a cordon along the Russian frontier. Now England and France are joined again in an agreement.

TWO KING COBRAS BATTLE IN ZOO; BOUT IS DRAW

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—The Bronx park zoo today put on an added attraction for visitors when two king cobras, 14 and 11 feet long, fought viciously for 20 minutes to a draw. The two reptiles bit each other repeatedly, but the poison in their fangs usually fatal to humans or animals did not affect them.

The issue was a simple one. The 14 foot cobra is an old resident of the zoo, and up to last night he was the only reptile of his kind in the snake house. Yesterday, however, another of his species arrived from Sumatra and was put into the pit with the old timer.

At first the older snake merely showed his displeasure over the intrusion of his domain by ugly mannerisms in the best cobra style. But it was too much for the old timer when the newcomer slid his 11 feet into his neighbor's pet spot in the cage.

The 14 footer coiled and struck at the stranger and the battle was on.

American Missing from Ship; Suicide Indicated

BARCELONA, Spain, July 13.—(AP)—Francisco Nadal, captain of a passenger ship from Palma, Majorca, said today he believed William Sterling Sutcin, an American, had jumped overboard from his ship at sea. He said stewards found Sutcin's berth empty this morning and found a letter addressed to the captain in which the passenger said he would jump overboard during the night.

DISARM PARLEY PLANS TO QUIT, IGNORING HOOVER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, July 13.—Things suddenly got arranged here today so that the general commission of the disarmament conference was called for Saturday with the idea of sending the conference off on a long rest by Tuesday.

The American delegation was much disturbed by these arrangements and said so tonight. Hugh S. Gibson went to call on Dr. Eduard Benes, Czechoslovakia, reporter of the general commission, on what apparently was a conference on the American protest.

The Americans do not mind the conference adjourning, but want it to go home with kind words for the Hoover plan. It is British foreign secretary, Sir John Simon, who is drafting a resolution which will end the "first phase" of the disarmament conference and between him and the French the Hoover plan has not come out so well.

Ignore Hoover's Plan.

According to reports current tonight there not only will be no mention of what Simon calls the "vulgar fraction," one-third, by which Hoover asks that fleets be reduced, but also the important suggestion to cut land armaments which is of interest to the French will be ignored.

Dr. Benes and Mr. Politis of Greece, vice president of the conference, went to call on Arthur Henderson, president, this afternoon and announced to the press afterwards that there would be a meeting of the general commission without a previous meeting of the steering committee where the Americans expected to be able to extract a compromise that would give the Hoover plan a pretty, if platonic, sendoff.

Gibson's Wrath Aroused.

Gibson did not like that and said so to Dr. Benes. He intimated that if the commission is called and the Simon resolution is presented for cut and dried adoption in such a way to leave Hoover in the cold, Hugh Gibson will rise on his hind feet and say a lot of things.

The Franco-British "confidence" accord came out here when the French tonight produced their new "mutual confidence agreement" simultaneously with the plan to end the conference for the time being. This is not exactly on the terms which the American delegation had agreed to end the conference, thus causing a double sensation. If it goes through it will be considered as the first fruit of the confidence accord.

Mrs. Barney Faces Trial for Possession of Revolver

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—At the instance of the attorney general, Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney, who was acquitted a week ago of murdering Thomas William Scott Stephen, her lover, will be prosecuted on a charge of illegal possession of a firearm. This was announced by Home Secretary Sir Herbert Samuel in the house of commons today.

PAIR CONFESS ROBBERY.

Joseph Bouzice, 20 years old, 5880 South Washtenaw avenue, and Joseph Sabin, 21, 6123 South Mozart street, were arrested yesterday and confessed to the robbery of Curtis Kull, at 2317 West Marquette road, on July 2.

Six British Cabinet Members Sail for Empire Conference

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. EMPRESS OF BRITAIN, July 13.—This "ship of hope" sailed from Southampton promptly at 1 p. m. today carrying six British cabinet ministers, several undersecretaries, six former cabinet ministers, and hundreds of representatives of British business organizations and individual business men who are going to Ottawa to see what the imperial economic conference is going to do for or against them. The conference opens July 21.

STANLEY BALDWIN

Stanley Baldwin, president of the council, heads the delegation. With him are Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer; Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade; Sir John Gilmour, minister of agriculture; Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, secretary for colonies, and Lord Hailsham, minister for war. J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, will follow later.

Work on Way Over.

The trip to Ottawa is not going to be a joy ride. Every minute is mapped out for the ministers and staffs. Owing to Lausanne, Geneva, Ireland, and other problems the ministers have been able to give little time personally to preparation and the planning will take up most of the time on the voyage.

Secretaries and permanent officials have prepared plans which will be gone over at a series of "cabinet" meetings in the week on the ship.

Every minister's suite is also equipped with a telephone by which he can talk not only to his colleagues on the ship but also to London or Ottawa. Special wireless arrangements have been made by which the government and press messages can be transmitted with a minimum delay.

Also on board are the official delegations of South Africa, India, northern Ireland, and southern Rhodesia.

Special effort is being made by the Canadian Pacific railroad, which owns the Empress, to demonstrate the St. Lawrence route to Canada and western America, which indisputably saves from one to two days' time over the New York route. The liner is due to dock at Quebec Monday.

More than fifty newspaper men, mostly English, but also many Canadians who have been stationed in London and South Africa, are aboard. Several Americans are going to watch the effect of the imperial deliberations on American trade.

Farmers to Present Plans.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 13.—(AP)—Advance guard of a farmers' army which will present demands on the dominion's greatest industry to the government prior to the opening of the imperial economic conference headed toward the capital tonight.

Expected to be 5,000 strong, delegates from every part of Ontario, from Quebec, and the prairies will whip their proposals for trade betterment into resolution form. Later their spokesmen will wait upon the cabinet.

Lowered tariff walls and stabilization of Canada's dollar with the pound sterling will be planks offered by Ontario for the farm platform. It is contended that the experiment of buying and selling at home behind high tariff walls has been tragic. Agriculture must have wider markets, the organization states.

PRUSSIA APPEALS FOR PARTIES TO END BLOODSHED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 13.—The Prussian home minister, Karl Severing, today appealed for moderation of political passions. Pointing to the "shocking increase of political clashes" Severing declared that the police are unable to perform miracles, adding that "bloody political warfare can only be prevented when all parties unite to reject and shun this political degeneration."

Severing instructed the police to use all their powers to end illegal carrying of weapons. Adolf Hitlers' National Socialist leaders asserted today, however, that only enforcement of martial law can restore order.

LIBBY HOLMAN DODGES CROWDS AT CINCINNATI

Leaves the Train Several Miles from City.

Cincinnati, O., July 13.—[Special.]—While Libby Holman denied herself to reporters on her return home today, it was learned that the widow of Smith Reynolds plans a return to the stage, also that she will not return to Reynolds "except for periodic visits to the grave of her husband."

The former University of Cincinnati student who had completed a four year course in three, gained local renown as a singer, and had left Cincinnati six years ago to achieve fame on Broadway and marry the wealthy young Reynolds, returned here in tears and in mourning.

She successfully eluded curious crowds, and left the train at Clare, an isolated railroad junction twelve miles east of Cincinnati. She was taken to the home of her sister in Wyoming, O. An automobile, belonging to the Holman family, took her away.

Mrs. Reynolds was accompanied home by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Holman and her sister, Mrs. Myron Kahn. Mrs. Reynolds was in mental distress as the Norfolk and Western train approached Cincinnati.

Shows Dred of Crowds.

"Oh, those faces!" she exclaimed as she saw the crowd at the station.

Mr. Holman decided not to subject Libby to similar scrutiny of a crowd at Cincinnati and so arranged to leave the train outside the city. The girl's parents live in the Commodore apartments, Reading road, but it was indicated that the more remote and country-like place of Mrs. Kahn, at Wyoming, would offer better opportunity for peace and rest.

Mr. Holman, the father, said: "Libby does not care about any of the rumors and suspicions that have centered about her since the tragedy. All that is worrying her is for the world to understand she had a great and genuine love for Smith Reynolds."

According to one of the family, Libby feared shortly after her marriage that Reynolds would eventually take his life, and designed her every action to save him from this act. It was stated that at the time of their marriage Mr. Reynolds had expressed concern over the fact that the marriage might keep him from coming into his fortune.

Grand Jury Ignores Case.

Winston Salem, N. C., July 13.—[Special.]—The fatal shooting on July 6 of Smith Reynolds, 20 year old son of the late multimillionaire tobacco manufacturer and bridegroom of Libby Holman of New York musical comedy fame, contained no official interest for the Forsyth county grand jury, which was dismissed here late today. The jury took no action on the shooting which a coroner's jury decided on Monday night was done "by a person or persons unknown."

The grand jury did not summon any witnesses who were questioned at the coroner's inquest, neither did it request Solicitor Carlisle W. Higgins for the testimony taken at the inquest, which left the way open for this week's grand jury or any future one to investigate the case. The next grand jury will meet July 25.

Although the Reynolds case did not occupy the attention of the grand jury, Sheriff Transou Scott pursued his own inquiry, being not yet convinced that the young man, who was heir to a trust fund of from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000, committed suicide as had been maintained by Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds and her father, Alfred Holman, a Cincinnati lawyer.

Find Bullet Hole.

The chief development today was the discovery of a bullet hole in the porch screen of the young millionaire's home at Reynolda. The hole is about 6 feet two inches above the floor of the porch. The sheriff drew a diagram of the second floor sloping porch, showing how according to the testimony Reynolds fell across the bed in the center of the room. The young man was shot in the right temple. The bullet emerged from the left side of the head, about an inch and a half lower than the point of entry, indicating that if he was shot while in a standing position by the bed, the bullet traveled downward.

The sheriff pointed out that if the bullet actually had traveled downward it would have lodged in the moulding near the floor on the south side of the room. However, the hole made by the bullet pierced a wire screen at a point six feet two inches from the floor. The bullet never was found, but fragments of the bullet jacket were picked up near the pillow on the bed, in the lattice work above the bed, and on the floor below the bullet hole.

Another element of mystery was injected into the case today when C. Raymond Kramer, tutor of the young tobacco heir, told the authorities that Reynolds had been making inquiries about a mysterious automobile supposed to have entered the grounds shortly before the shooting.

AMELIA PUTNAM SETS MARK FOR WOMEN FLYERS

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Amelia Earhart Putnam brought her plane down safely at the Newark airport at 12:27 o'clock this afternoon, completing a fast flight from the municipal airport at Los Angeles. Her elapsed time was officially reckoned at 19 hours 14 minutes and 40 seconds and her flying 17 hours 59 minutes and 40 seconds. The nonstop record is held by Capt. Frank Hawks, who crossed the country in 17 hours 38 minutes and 16 seconds.

Mrs. Putnam had aimed at that nonstop record, but lost it both on time and because she was forced to land in Columbus early today. A b..ky fuel pump brought her down. Without that stop, which robbed her of a little more than an hour, she might have clipped several minutes from Hawks' record. As it was, she established a new record for a transcontinental flight by a woman.

Far from Doolittle's Mark.

Her time was approximately six hours above that required in the fastest flight from coast to coast, made by Maj. James Doolittle of the officers' reserve corps. Doolittle made three refueling stops.

The fastest time previously made by a woman flyer was Miss Ruth Nichols' 29 hours, plus elapsed time. Miss Nichols still has the fastest actual flying time for women—a little less than thirteen hours and a half. Miss Nichols, however, stopped overnight in Wichita after she had landed.

Uses Her Ocean Plane.

Mrs. Putnam took off at 6:11:25 p. m. yesterday, carrying a gas load which she hoped would fuel her motor until she landed at Newark. She was flying the plane which carried her across the Atlantic to Ireland. This time, however, it failed her. A hand pump on which she relied to force her fuel from the wing tanks to the gas reservoir failed to function and she was forced to land.

After something over an hour at Columbus, she took off again at 9 a. m. today. She appeared over the Newark field at 12:18, swooped over the field, low and fast, circled the operations office and came down easily.

WIFE SAYS FOWLS STOLE AFFECTION OF HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Theresa Gimpel, 2646 Newcastle avenue, appeared before Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday to ask temporary alimony pending the hearing of her divorce bill, charging cruelty. She told the court that her husband, Nicholas, had lost his affection for her when he began keeping two pet chickens and a pair of pigeons several years ago.

"But my wife was glad enough to have them," insisted Gimpel, "when I was able to sell choice fowl to loop hotels. She was always glad to have the extra money they brought in."

"The only thing left is for you to get rid of your pets," said the judge. "I suggest that you eat them and settle your differences."

"It'll be like eating a child or brother, I am that fond of those birds," Gimpel sighed.

Mrs. Gimpel, who had fainted during the hearing, was revived and agreed to demand no alimony from her husband if he would allow her to live in the family residence. Gimpel was granted leave to move his bed into the soon-to-be-deserted chicken house.

Highland Park Florist Suicide; Missing 10 Days

E. Arthur Parkes, 48 years old, owner of a Highland Park florist shop and greenhouse, left home ten days ago. His wife received several telephone calls from him, but he did not return home until early yesterday. An employé opened the greenhouse next to the Parkes home at 360 Walker road, Highland Park, and came upon the body of his employer. He had taken poison and shot himself. Parkes left a note to his wife telling how to carry on the florist business and complaining about hard times.

Lindbergh Baby's Nurse to Make Trip to Scotland

Trenton, N. J., July 13.—(AP)—Betty Gow, the Lindbergh baby's nursemaid, plans to leave shortly for Scotland for a long deferred vacation, it was learned today. Miss Gow will spend perhaps a month abroad visiting her mother and will return to the employ of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. The exact time of her departure was not disclosed.

PAIR OF GUNMEN ROB OAK PARK HOSPITAL OF $200

Two gunmen held up the night supervisor of the Oak Park hospital last night, rifled the cash drawer of between $200 and $300, and fled in an automobile. The pair first appeared at the hospital about 9:30 p. m. and asked the nurse on duty if a "Margaret Jones" had been taken there from an auto accident. No such name was on the patient list and the men left.

At about 10:50 p. m. they returned. Mrs. Anna May Little, the night supervisor, was sitting at the desk. The men again asked about Margaret Jones, and as Mrs. Little turned to the files one of the men produced a revolver and opened the cash drawer. He was drawing out the money when a deaf woman, a servant at the hospital, appeared. Ordered to stand with Mrs. Little, she failed to understand and was pulled into a corner by the supervisor.

Dr. Harold Trapp, an interne, also entered during the robbery and was ordered to remain quiet.

STRAY SHOT WOUNDS BOY.

Edward Schroeder, 5 years old, was struck in the leg by a stray bullet yesterday while playing in the back yard of his home, 3022 Osceola avenue. At the Belmont hospital it was said that his condition was not serious.

BENDIX DIVORCE PAPERS WILL BE FILED THIS WEEK

Wife Calls Her Suit a 'Friendly Affair.'

Mrs. Elizabeth Channon Bendix, 209 Lake Shore drive, expects to file divorce proceedings this week against Vincent Bendix, head of the automobile and airplane accessories manufacturing corporation bearing his name. At her home yesterday afternoon Mrs. Bendix said the bill, charging desertion, had been drawn and would be filed in the Circuit court. She said the action will be uncontested and will be heard before Judge Daniel P. Trude tomorrow or Saturday morning.

"The arrangements finally have been made and they are very simple," she said. "It is all a perfectly friendly affair. I will file the suit and get the decree. An out of court settlement has been arranged. I can't tell you the terms. They will not be included in the decree."

Mr. Bendix was in Detroit yesterday. His personal attorney, Edwin H. Cassels, refused to discuss the divorce.

In December, 1930, Mr. Bendix moved out of his home at 209 Lake Shore drive and soon afterward a report that a divorce was near was published. It was not confirmed. From time to time since then there have been similar rumors but no action has been taken until the present time.

Mr. Bendix has maintained living quarters in the old Potter Palmer residence, 1360 Lake Shore drive, which he bought a few years ago. He and Mrs. Bendix have not lived together during the last 20 months.

Mrs. Bendix is the daughter of Mrs. James H. Channon, 222 East Chestnut street. She became the wife of Mr. Bendix in 1922. There are no children.

Rochester Company Gets Postoffice Cleaning Job

It was learned yesterday that the Superior Cleaning and Waterproofing company of Rochester, N. Y., with a low bid of $11,100, has been awarded the contract for the cleaning of the Chicago postoffice and federal building. Six other bids, four of them from Chicago concerns, were received. The amounts of the other bids were not disclosed. Under the contract the cleaning must be finished in sixty days.

Thomas Arkle Clark Ill; Former Dean at Illinois U.

Urbana, Ill., July 13.—[Special.]—Thomas Arkle Clark, for 30 years dean of men at the University of Illinois, who retired from that office on Aug. 30, 1931, is reported to be critically ill at his home here.

YOUNG MOTHER FACING EVICTION DRINKS POISON

Mrs. Sue Mattes, 21 years old, attempted suicide last night by taking poison in her home, 925 Oakdale avenue. At the Illinois Masonic hospital physicians held out hope that she would recover.

Her husband, Harold Mattes, 25 years old, a butcher, has been out of work and Mrs. Mattes was served with an eviction notice yesterday morning. In the afternoon a furniture dealer informed her that if a payment was not made on the furnishings they would be taken away. The Mattes have two children, a boy 3, and a girl, 2.

The husband came home at 6 o'clock after his daily hunt for work and the family sat down to a scanty meal. During its course, Mrs. Mattes left the table, ran to the bathroom and drank the poison.

FIREMEN DELEGATES ENJOY BEER UNTIL RAIDERS CLOSE BAR

Monroe, Mich., July 13.—[Special.]—The visiting firemen were holding high revel between drafts of cooling real beer here this afternoon when twelve prohibition agents raided their favorite speakeasy and the annual convention of the Michigan State Firemen's association threatened to break up immediately.

It was found that 250 members of the association, many with their wives and children, had been caught, but not pinched, for drinking ice cold beer next to their convention ground in the Soldiers and Sailors' park on Front street.

Fifteen men, many of them perspiring bartenders trying to cope with a midsummer thirst, were arrested and the agents are holding Theodore Faught, Monroe gambler, as the principal owner of the place. A mournful cry went up from the multitude as the agents dumped 100 half barrels of foaming brew after the raid.

Ex-Football Star Wins Probation in Theft Case

Adolph Wroble, 23 years old, 2824 West Chicago avenue, former football star at Lombard college, was admitted to two years' probation yesterday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes. Wroble had been sentenced last week to serve two years in Leavenworth penitentiary for stealing and transporting automobiles to Oklahoma. Attorney John Conlon, representing Wroble, told the court that his client had worked his way through college and is now pitching for a baseball club in Rock Island, where he has won 11 and lost 1 game. Wroble spoiled a perfect record by losing a game on the day following his arraignment, the attorney said.

MANTELL, ACTOR, PLAYS ROLE OF SAVING HIMSELF

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Robert Mantell, who on the stage adheres to the Shakespearean roles of his famous father, acted in grim earnest today an episode in the best ten-twenty-and-thirty manner of Owen Davis.

It was a melodramatic escape from fire in a rooming house.

Roused from sleep in his room on the fourth floor, Mantell found it impossible to escape through the smoke choked hallway. He turned to the window.

Opposite, about four feet away, rose the walls of Iceland, an amusement resort closed for the summer. The coping of the Iceland roof was about four feet higher than the roof of the rooming house. Mantell flung his bags one by one out and upward. Then, still in pajamas, he leaned out the window, sprang, and caught the Iceland coping. Pulling himself up to safety, Mantell was quietly dressing when firemen found him.

Meanwhile indoors there was further melodrama. Mrs. Vera Ryan, actress, was groping through the hallway hand in hand with her husband, Robert, when she fell, overcome by smoke. Her husband carried her to safety.

ACCUSES FATHER OF KILLING 3 OF HIS 4 CHILDREN

Police said that Godleski, who is 31, had been drinking heavily and that his wife had left him yesterday.

The children killed were Paul, 8; Lillian, 6, and Albert, 4. Helen, 10, saved herself by fleeing.

Justice of the Peace James Golden said Godleski had come home at midnight and carried the sleeping children, one by one, to the cellar and killed them with an ax.

DESTITUTE HOME OWNERS RELATE PLIGHT AT QUIZ

Refused Relief, They Tell Legislative Group.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

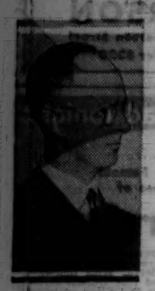
Officials of the Illinois unemployment relief commission sat in State Auditor Oscar Nelson's office in the Foreman bank building yesterday and listened to other people talk about their job. Complaints, criticisms, and problems were submitted to the legislative commission which is investigating expenditures for relief since Feb. 6 of this year.



JOSEPH L. MOSS.

Questions asked of the relief administrators by State Senator Richard R. Meents of Ashkum, chairman; by Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, Representative Alexander Wilson of Cairo, State Senator Martin R. Carlson of Moline, and by Auditor Nelson revealed from the average of 17 cents each paid to the Social Service exchange for "clearing" applications for relief to a salary total of $7,974 paid out of an appropriation of $8,000 for shelters for women.

Fail to Tell Story.

Corporation Counsel Sexton, who frequently acted as spokesman for the relief officials, emphasized that the cold figures submitted in the queries fail to tell the whole story. Food and actual shelter is provided for the women by other funds, he pointed out, so the $7,947 salary item in question is misleading.

The charge of seventeen cents a case by the Social Service exchange, examination developed, totaled about $17,000 over the six month period which the unemployment relief used the exchange. Members of the legislative commission intimated that the exchange was being supported by the relief group, until a report by Miss Elizabeth Hughes, acting director, demonstrated that the service is operated at a deficit paid by the United Charities. Its purpose is to prevent duplication of relief to any one family by more than one agency.

Standard Scale of Wages.

One of the major recommendations developing from the day's investigation was that a standard scale of wages be adopted for identical work in all social service groups, including the county. Records indicated that stenographers who received only $70 per month from the Salvation Army sometimes were transferred to the county at more pay, and that Jewish charities stenographers received as much as $135 or $140 per month for the same work.

Testimony of some witnesses graphically portrayed the dilemma of the property owner in the present crisis because of the policy of the charitable agencies not to dispense relief where the recipients own real estate or have other resources.

Three whose stories excited the sympathy of the legislative commission were Mrs. Joseph L. Harkenrider, 9721 Avenue L; Mrs. Ida Laws, colored, of 1009 North Franklin street, and Bryan Moss of 3121 North Clybourn.

Boasts of Help.

Mrs. Harkenrider told of renting two flats in her three flat building to families two of whom received aid from the emergency relief. One of these large families, she declared, boasted of being helped by four different charities. On one occasion the mother displayed a closet so stocked with canned goods that she declared she could live for two years if the relief were stopped. Another family receiving aid had a number of destitute children and the father was constantly under the influence of alcohol, she said. Yet the most deserving of her three tenants, a steel mill man, was refused aid and even denied a hearing at the unemployment district office when he tried to get them to pay his rent, she added.

Mrs. Laws, a widow with two grown children, testified that she had been unable to receive any aid because she owned her home, though her tenants were receiving relief. Since the relief does not include any money for rent, she cannot collect anything from her tenants and she is now being supported partially by gifts of canned goods her tenants receive from the relief fund. Like Mrs. Harkenrider, she cannot pay her taxes.

Pays His Grocery Bill.

Bryan Moss, an ex-service man, reported that he and his wife and four children had been refused relief by the commission because he had used a $750 government compensation check to pay a grocery bill. As a result, he testified, his family is destitute.

Joseph L. Moss, head of the Cook county bureau of public welfare, defended the action of the relief group. He explained that the bureau believes that any family coming into funds should use them to live on and not to pay back bills. He said that Bryan Moss had been warned that the charity agencies would not help him if he persisted in paying the bill.

"If we adopted any other policy," Joseph L. Moss added, "we would be bankrupt in two weeks. This case is a problem, and if you have any suggestions to make as to a change of policy we shall be glad to receive them."

"But here's a woman and four children entirely without help—what do you propose to do about them because this man made a mistake?" asks Rep. Schnackenberg. The public welfare bureau man declared the only recourse was to seek a return of part of the money from the grocer to whom it was paid.

Isaac Bloom, shoe merchant of Cicero, showed a contract signed by Joseph L. Moss to provide shoes for the charity cases, on which he makes, he said, a profit of only 10 cents a pair. He accused Anton Maciejewski, town supervisor of Cicero, of giving this trade to other stores "because I was a Republican and now I'm a Democrat." Maciejewski denied the charge, but admitted that the fund was paying 36 cents per pair more for shoes than if purchased at Bloom's. He agreed to transfer the business to Bloom to permit him to dispose of his stock.

Investigate Complaints.

Corporation Counsel Sexton, Joseph L. Moss, Wilfred S. Reynolds, head of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies; Joel Hunter, superintendent of the United Charities, and Russell L. Peters, chief auditor for the commission, obtained the names of the complaining witnesses who appeared before the committee. These will be investigated and a report made to the committee by mail.

Hugh E. Young, chief engineer of the Chicago plan commission, suggested a plan to the commission whereby thousands of workers could be taken off charity lists and given work. He proposed that the city construct a superhighway from the loop to the northwestern city limits, following Avondale avenue.

He said the project could be financed through a bond issue to be voted on at the November election and the bonds sold either to the state or federal governments. Mr. Young also urged that the proposed Austin-Kinzie superhighway be pushed.

CITY LEADERS GO TO WASHINGTON FOR LOAN TODAY

Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton will depart for Washington at 1 o'clock this afternoon to help press Chicago's claim for federal aid. With him will be W. S. Reynolds, Charles E. Goodspeed, and De Witt Billman, representing the Illinois relief commission.

Under the federal relief plan it is figured that Illinois might be able to borrow as much as $45,000,000. It is the aim of the departing delegation to get funds as speedily as possible, particularly for the relief commission, whose funds are nearly exhausted. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the commission, is already in Washington.

It is understood that Mr. Sexton will seek to have settled the question of whether or not money allotted to Chicago may be used to pay back salaries of city and school employes. The commission representatives also have a question to settle, that being whether or not state legislative action is necessary to obtain a loan.

FALL FROM SCAFFOLD FATAL.

Congress May Adjourn by Friday or Saturday.

Republican house members opposed the amendment strenuously. Representative Carl R. Chindblom [Rep., Ill.] termed it a "danger and peril" to banks receiving loans. Representative Allen T. Treadway [Rep., Mass.] denounced it as another of Speaker Garner's pet proposals.

The Republicans demanded and got a separate vote on the amendment. In so doing they proved Mr. Garner's interest in it; for the vote turned out a tie, 169 to 169, and Mr. Garner was forced to lean over his desk and request the clerk to "call the name of the speaker."

At the clerk's "Mr. Garner," the speaker answered "aye" and carried the amendment, 170 to 169.

The house debate on the bill itself was perfunctory. The main interest was in rushing the bill through. Some members did not like the measure. Representative Kent E. Keller [Dem., Ill.] thought congress should have had the "courage and vision" to pass the Garner "pork barrel" bill. But most of the comments were approving.

Hoover Changes Attitude.

As far as President Hoover's attitude toward the bill is concerned, one obstacle to his approval was removed when he informed Senator Glass, as author of the section permitting loans to individuals by federal reserve banks, that he had changed his mind over night. Instead of disapproving that provision, which Undersecretary of the Treasury Ballantine had called "indefensible" only yesterday, the President described himself as being in favor of its adoption.

Senate agreement to the house's request for a conference came after a brisk discussion over an amendment offered by Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] which would have authorized the army, navy, and marine corps to enlist veterans up to their statutory strength limit.

"This provision would permit the enlistment of 220,000 unemployed veterans," Senator Bingham explained. "It provides that they be paid $20 a month, or a total of about 100 million dollars a year. It is intended as an emergency measure, to be in effect only for a year."

The amendment was adopted. Then Senator Joe T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], Democratic leader, realized that its addition to the bill would require sending the measure back to the house and would result in delay and new complications.

So the vote of adoption was reconsidered and the Bingham amendment killed.

Charges Federal Farm Board Attempts to "Bootleg" Wheat

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—The federal farm board was charged on the floor of the senate today with attempting to "bootleg" its surplus wheat and cotton into the markets through the Red Cross.

Effectively blocking consideration of a bill appropriating an undetermined sum to release 45 million bushels of stabilization wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton to the Red Cross for distribution to the needy, Senator Thomas P. Gore [Dem., Okla.] declared the farm board proposed to sell the products to the Red Cross at a price far in advance of what it would cost to buy them in the open markets.

The fight, brief but vigorous, came when Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.] asked unanimous consent for immediate consideration of a bill already passed by the house providing the sum necessary to release the relief wheat and cotton. Senator Gore objected.

Charges Price Pegging.

"This is only another attempt of the farm board," he said, "to bootleg these huge supplies into the market. If they succeed the market will be demoralized.

"I am informed the board already has pegged the price of its wheat at 40 cents a bushel. The Red Cross can go out in the market and take wheat off the hands of hard pressed farmers for 27 cents a bushel. Why should the government spend 50 million dollars to take this wheat off the board's hands at an exorbitant price?"

Senator Gore declared $20,000,000 would be necessary to release the stabilization wheat. An additional 15 million will be required to pay off the loans which have been made against the grain and cotton, he said.

"If my information is correct," he said, "it will cost more than 50 million dollars to carry out this relief plan."

Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] said he would insist that a definite sum be fixed for movement of the relief products when the bill is brought up for passage. Whether the bill can be passed at this late hour in the session was in doubt unless Senator Gore and others who oppose it can be pursuaded to compromise.

Adopt Norbeck Bill.

Without the formality of a roll call and in no expectation that it will pass the house the senate adopted the Norbeck bill to make the full tariff increase apply to the domestic marketing of wheat, hogs and cotton.

The senate's action was regarded generally in congressional circles as merely a gesture toward some measure of farm relief before congress adjourns.

The bill provides for a bonus on the marketing of all wheat, cotton, and hogs within the limit of estimated domestic consumption, to be paid by the imposition of an adjustment charge on the processing of these three products. The bonus is fixed at 42 cents a bushel on wheat, 5 cents a pound on cotton and 2 cents a pound on hogs.

Cermak Gaining; Doctors Find "Nothing Serious"

Despite the day's intense heat Mayor A. J. Cermak's condition last night was better than at any time since he was taken to St. Anthony's hospital a week ago, Dr. Frank J. Jirka, his personal physician and son-in-law, announced. Earlier in the day Dr. Joseph Miller, well known diagnostician, was called in consultation by Dr. Jirka and Dr. Frederick Tice. They reported "nothing serious" was found. Dr. Jirka said the mayor was in excellent spirits before he fell asleep at 10:30 p. m. last night. His temperature, pulse, and respiration then were normal.

OVERCOME IN GARAGE.

Nicholas Pascaly, 36 years old, was found dead yesterday in the garage at the rear of his home at 3350 North Kildare avenue. Police said he was overcome by auto gas fumes while repairing his car.

GLASS PRESENTS DRY LAW REPEAL PLAN TO SENATE

Bars Saloon; Republican Leaders Thwart It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—With congress on the eve of adjournment, senate Democrats today made a vain attempt to rush through a resolution to repeal the eighteenth amendment, but with a definite constitutional provision against return of the saloon.

CARTER GLASS.

It may be the last serious attempt made at this session to hasten the end of prohibition.

Just as the Democrats threw their strength against the Bingham immediate beer bill, so radical Republicans today thwarted two deliberate attempts to put a repeal amendment before the nation ahead of the November election.

The Democratic motions admittedly were designed to put a halt to the wave of criticism over the senate Democrats' refusal to have a beer vote in the face of the unequivocal declaration in their party platform for immediate modification of the Volstead law pending outright repeal.

Glass Offers Resolution.

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], sent a joint resolution to the vice president's desk and asked unanimous consent for its immediate consideration. It closely followed the recommendation of the Republican straddle plank, providing for possible repeal.

Senator George W. Norris [Rad. Rep., Neb.], who recently parted with the dry cause to the extent of coming out for modification of the Volstead law, quickly put an end to the Glass resolution by objecting, observing that he could not conceive of "any one trying to amend the constitution by unanimous consent."

"There is nothing in this resolution that should be offensive to either party, in view of the platform declarations," Senator Glass said. "I ask that it lie on the table. In the near future I shall call it up again and trust that the senator from Connecticut, Mr. Bingham, will assist me in view of the fuss he made about beer recently."

Beer Bill Is Mentioned.

"I shall be glad to assist the senator," Bingham replied, refusing to be bluffed, "and I trust he will be equally helpful when I call up my beer bill."

By this time senators were hurrying into the chamber from cloakrooms and offices in anticipation of a prolonged prohibition battle.

Senator Robert J. Bulkley [Dem., O.] then asked unanimous consent to discharge the judiciary committee from further consideration of the Wagner repeal resolution and bring it on the floor for immediate adoption. Senators William E. Borah [Rad. Rep., Idaho], one of the few remaining senate bone drys; Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], and Norris were on their feet simultaneously to object.

Again Senator Norris supplied the coup de grace, Senators Borah and McNary yielding to him as chairman of the committee under fire.

"I just want it to be noted that apparently the Republicans are not as eager for anti-prohibition legislation today as they were a few days ago," Senator Glass observed as a parting shot.

Actress Named in $200,000 Suit

Maude Adams, as she appeared last fall in the "Merchant of Venice." It was this venture upon which the $200,000 suit, filed by John D. Williams, stage director, is based.

Others Are Sued

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—It became known today that Maude Adams, widely known actress, is one of six defendants in a suit brought by John D. Williams, a stage director. Williams is asking for $200,000 for services which he claims ended with her return to the stage last fall in the "Merchant of Venice."

The plaintiff charges he received no returns for his services, which covered a period of five years, beginning in 1927. He also asks $3,000 for expenses and for his part in advancing Miss Adams' return to the stage.

A motion, filed by the defendants, asking that an order for their examination before trial be vacated, disclosed that the suit had been instituted. It will be argued before Justice Black in the Supreme court Monday.

The other defendants are Erlanger Productions, Inc.; A. L. Erlanger Amusement Enterprises, Inc.; Mitchell Erlanger, S. J. Baron and Marcus Heiman.

All defendants made a general denial.

PEORIA BUSINESS GROUP TO CONFER IN CITY TODAY

Eighteen Peoria citizens will meet at the Palmer house today with George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and other Chicagoans, in a joint conference. They will discuss mutual problems of the cities.

"No two cities in Illinois have as much in common as Chicago and Peoria," said Mr. Rossetter. "Several of the more recently passed laws of Illinois apply only to these two cities, which because of their dense population, have mutual problems not met elsewhere. In addition, the industrial alliance binding the two communities makes such meetings as this one extremely important."

BAINS ACCUSED OF MAKING FALSE BOND STATEMENT

Claimed Assets Missing in Bank Trust Fund.

False statements regarding the contents of Trust No. 687 of the West Englewood State bank were implied in testimony yesterday at the Bain trial. Other testimony concerned the cancellation of Bain bank memberships in the Chicago Clearing House association and further evidence of values of Bain collateral and real estate.

South Park Commissioner John Bain is on trial with his two sons, John H. and Robert A., and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, before Judge John M. O'Connor without a jury on a charge of conspiracy. Commissioner Bain was the organizer and head of a chain of twelve banks in which depositors had $13,000,000 when the banks were closed June 9, 1931.

Trust Assets Missing.

Lester Stark, an auditor, testified that on the day the banks closed the books showed the assets of Trust No. 687 to consist of stocks, bonds, and notes to the amount of $105,479 and real estate which the books indicated had cost $464,000. However, two parcels of real estate had been removed from the trust leaving property which cost $208,000 but which was carried on the books as worth $439,000. Among the assets in the trust was a $16,000 note by W. Merle Fisher.

"I call your honor's attention to this bond," said Special Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber, chief prosecutor, who had a bond of the Trust No. 687 issue in his hand. "It is a part of an issue of $500,000 and is called a collateral trust bond which says it is secured by collateral on deposit at the bank and is a personal obligation of John Bain as well. This bond lists the collateral as follows: Mortgages, notes, etc., $324,260: improved real estate, $858,000; unimproved real estate, $444,000; or total securities of $1,626,260 as securing the $500,000 bond issue."

Defense Asks for Time.

Attorney Francis X. Busch, former corporation counsel, who is defending the Bains, said he wanted time to study Stark's figures before he cross-examined the witness. Judge O'Connor agreed.

Howard Sims, chief examiner for the clearing house, testified that at one time eight of the twelve Bain banks were affiliate members.

"In September, 1929, I warned the Bain banks they had $2,368,584 of questionable assets which they must get rid of at the maturity of the paper," Sims stated. "At a meeting attended by John Bain, former United States Senator Charles S. Deneen and Attorney Roy Massena, my report was disputed and I agreed to review my findings.

"At a later meeting it was agreed that my figures were right and on June 24, 1930, I told Bain the banks must remove paper at an estimated loss of $1,500,000 to the banks, or they would lose their memberships in the clearing house. This was not done and on Jan. 23, 1931, the clearing house committee adopted a resolution to cancel all their memberships on Feb. 15, 1931."

It was then shown that the Auburn Park bank, one of the Bain chain, was allowed to stay in the Clearing House association.

Deneen Denies Participation.

In THE TRIBUNE of yesterday former Senator Deneen was named as one of the owners of the Normandy Hall property. Mr. Deneen says he had no part in the "overvaluation."

According to Auditor Stark, Mr. Deneen, Dr. Walter H. Buhlig and John Bain purchased this land for $75,000. They sold it to the Chatham State bank, one of the Bain chain, for $108,000, and that ended Deneen's interest. Later when Bain put the bond issue on this property he valued the land at $552,000, according to Stark, and Dr. Buhlig signed the mortgage as owner of the property.

COURT ASKED TO FREE BINGA IN BANK CASE

Judge John Prystalski was asked yesterday afternoon to direct a jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty in the trial of Jesse Binga, 67 year old Negro financier who founded and headed the Binga State bank and who was indicted on a charge of embezzling $39,000.

The state has called more than 80 witnesses who said they gave Binga money for stock in a new national bank that was supposed to be under organization in 1929, but which never became a reality.

Judge Prystalski said he would hear arguments on the question today.

U. S. Heiress Dies of Overdose of Drugs in Paris Mystery

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 13.—How Mrs. Katherine Gordon-Ellis, adopted daughter of the late Charles A. Whelan of the United Cigar Stores company, happened to take 78 tablets of veronal and gardenol that caused her death in the American hospital at Neuilly early this morning is a matter in which the French police became interested tonight.

On advices of her friends they are centering their investigations in Montparnasse, particularly the Dingo, that joyful bar at which Ernest Hemingway and other enthusiasts of the left bank have long celebrated.

They are looking for two young women with whom Mrs. Ellis walked out of her own dinner party last night.

Takes Girls to Home.

With these two girls she left her astonished friends and went to her elaborate house in Neuilly. Later Mrs. Ellis and her two women guests, according to the story told by servants, asked for sandwiches. When they were brought Mrs. Ellis requested they be left outside the door.

A little later, the police hear, the two girl guests left and on the way out told the butler his mistress was not well. From the American hospital nearby, where she was eventually carried only to die, it was learned that one of the girls called there asking that a nurse be sent.

"Mrs. Ellis is in a highly nervous state," she is reported to have said.

After Mrs. Ellis had been taken to the hospital four empty tubes of gardenol and four empty bottles of veronal were found in her bathroom. It appeared she had taken the 78 tablets.

Hoped to Avoid Girls.

The two mysterious young women are only vaguely known to Mrs. Ellis' friends. When Mrs. Ellis saw them at the Dingo she said she had hoped to avoid them. But later she took them to her home. It is reported they have left for the Baleric islands, but police are still searching here.

Mrs. Ellis is the ex-wife of Dr. Louis Gordon-Ellis, fashionable British dentist in Paris. They were married ten years ago when she was 16 and he 18. They have two sons, 9 and 6. Mr. Whelan's daughter, Mrs. Clifton Gray is arriving on the Ile de France on Friday.

Mrs. Ellis' friends say that often of late she has threatened suicide.

Dutch Will Cut Pay Roll to Balance Budget

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, July 13.—Drastic curtailment of the Dutch state expenditures in order to balance the budget for 1933 was announced today. Twelve per cent of all state employes will be dismissed, the army war strength will be decreased to 23,000 men, and the naval flying service will be closed down. Already economies representing $40,000,000 have been effected by the state. Socialists and communists have organized a violent agitation against the cuts.

EXPERTS PLAN SURVEY OF TAXES IN NEW YORK CITY

Property Owners Revolt Against High Levies.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 12.—[Special.]—The organized property owners of New York City have employed a nonpartisan group of economists affiliated with Northwestern university to study realty values and the tax system of the city with a view to determining a scientific basis for future assessments.

Sponsors for the organization which is known as the Institute for Economic Research, include John W. Davis, Owen D. Young, and Frederick H. Ecker. Trustees have been selected from such citizens as William M. Chadbourne, Dr. John H. Finley, and William O. Kies.

Dr. Ely Heads Survey.

The survey, under way today, is headed by Dr. Richard T. Ely and will have from 300 to 400 representatives in the field all summer interviewing owners.

"The association," according to F. V. Calder, president of the Equitable Assessment association, "is not antagonistic to the city authorities, but intends to present to the department of taxes and assessments the indisputable facts of the situation."

While half a dozen other civic and business organizations, the leader being the citizens' budget committee, are fighting for economy in city government, the economic research experts are supplying them with concrete data on which to base the city's just income from taxation.

Declining real estate values, according to one of the tax office officials, will force the city administration to make heavy cuts in the 1933 budget whether it wants to or not.

For many years this metropolis in common with some other great cities throughout the country has met its mounting budgets by jacking up its high peak of prosperity toll on real estate a bit more every year. Valuations were increased as if by a magic wand while the tax rate itself remained virtually unchanged. Like Topsy, the value of this city's earth and the buildings and the buildings that sprung from it just grew and grew.

Tax Rate Shoots Upward.

Since the late fall of 1929 these same values actually have been shrinking and shrinking like a leaky balloon. Last year the valuations couldn't be boosted with safety, so up leaped the tax rate to 2.59. Values are still dwindling as rapidly as most incomes and a staggering high tax rate will be necessary to bring in enough money to support a 700 million dollar budget such as New York City now operates under.

Last year this city was saved by the expiration of the housing law exemptions which for many years had made possible the building of tax free residences. This put 750 million dollars' worth of property on the assessment rolls and new buildings added another 400 millions.

There will be no 750 million dollar bonanza this year and the total for new buildings will reach little more than half of the 400 million dollars of last year.

The taxpayers are in an angry mood, and their leaders insist they will not sit quietly and see new extravagances pile up to add to the present 400 million dollar annual interest burden which permits the city's bureaucracy to draw fat salaries, pass carefree weeks at the seashore and mountain tops and hire underlings to do their work.

POLAND HANGS HOODLUM WHO FLED CHICAGO

Joseph Pacholek, 40 years old, a criminal with an international record, including, according to dispatches from Poland, fairly recent service under Al Capone in Chicago, was hanged at Kalisz, Poland, yesterday after being convicted of three murders and seven robberies. No records could be found here last night to indicate that a Joseph Pacholek ever figured in Chicago crime or as a member of the Capone gang, although the dispatches stated that Pacholek was once arrested with Ralph Capone and that he had been a fugitive from Chicago for three years.

In Kalisz, his home town, Pacholek purchased a grocery and organized a gang which was responsible for several murders and robberies. Pacholek and two others were tried by court martial. Pacholek pleaded for clemency on the grounds that he was married and had three children, the last born while he was in prison. He was given a death sentence, notwithstanding, and his accomplices sent to prison for life. Pacholek was hanged immediately.

ROOSEVELT AND SONS STOP AT CUTTYHUNK, MASS

Cuttyhunk, Mass., July 13.—(AP)—The Myth II., bearing Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and three of his sons, arrived here tonight after logging 50 miles from Stonington, Conn.

The governor had intended to sail to Wood's Hole, but lack of wind and an adverse tide caused him to tie the yawl up at this island for the night.

Although the governor's yawl was not expected to visit this little island at the entrance of Buzzard's bay, a group of boats hovered near his craft as it slowly made its way in. A crowd gathered at the dock when the governor stepped ashore.

Jeweler's Wife Robbed at Door of Her Residence

Mrs. Minnie Gunther, wife of Julius Gunther, a jeweler at 302 South Clark street, was held up last night by a robber as she stepped into the vestibule of her home at 5419 North Kimball avenue. The gunman took $30 and a diamond ring which she valued at $1,425.

PLANE CRASHES INTO MOUNTAIN; 1 DEAD, 4 INJURED

MEXICO CITY, July 13.—(AP)—Carl Gilpin, president of the Gilpin Air Lines of Los Angeles, was killed and three other American passengers of the private craft he was piloting here from Los Angeles were injured when the plane crashed into a mountain near Toluca tonight.

The injured Americans are Mrs. Gilpin, who suffered internal injuries; James Crofton, president of the Agua Caliente club of Lower California, and Mona Rica, Mexican born motion picture actress of Los Angeles.

The ship crashed in a driving rainstorm, just 30 miles short of reaching its goal at Mexico City.

Red Cross officials hastened to the aid of the injured and they were taken to Toluca for medical attention.

Introduced as "Mrs. Crofton."

Hollywood, Cal., July 13.—[Special.]—Mona Rico, Mexican film actress, injured in an airplane crash in Mexico with James N. Crofton, wealthy American sportsman, was introduced to a Hollywood group as "Mrs. Crofton" at the start of the ill fated plane trip from Los Angeles, but no record is available here of her marriage to the American sportsman. She is 23 years old.

PREDICT SMITH WILL WIN G. O. P. COMMITTEE JOB

State Chiefs Prepare for Meeting Today.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Eleventh hour conferences last night in preparation for the meeting of the Republican state central committee this morning produced predictions that Frank L. Smith of Dwight will be elected national committeeman for Illinois by an unexpectedly large majority.

Smith and a number of his supporters, including Len Small, nominee for governor, were in a conference, from which emanated forecasts that in a fight Smith will receive 800,000 of the 1,400,336 votes which the twenty-five district committeemen have the power to cast. But there were other conjectures that there might be a further consolidation of forces that will give him an even greater majority.

FRANK L. SMITH.

Emmerson Weakness Shown.

In other words, the analysis ran, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, Smith's chief opponent, could count only about one-third of the total vote as things stood a few hours before the meeting.

The statements of Emmerson's weakness took into consideration the fact that Roy O. West, whose third term as national committeeman expired with the recent convention, can hold the votes of at least two state committeemen with big Republican districts.

While there was no open indication of such a possibility, one of the bits of gossip was that there might be a consolidation of the Emmerson and West forces, but the best figures available indicated that even such a combination, producing a total of 600,000 votes, would not bring either Emmerson or West within striking distance of the goal.

Gov. Emmerson also was in the city going over the situation with some of his friends, but apparently every effort was made to keep his whereabouts a secret. It was learned that he was at the Great Northern hotel, but there it was said by a representative that the governor would have no statement to make.

Comment on Voting Rules.

Considerable comment was heard among political novices over the fact that under the primary law of 1927 each state central committeeman has one vote for each ballot voted in his congressional district by the primary electors of his party at the primary at which he was elected. The statute prescribes that this rule will be followed "in the proceedings" of the committee as well as in its organization.

This proportionate voting was practiced in the organization of both state committees elected under this law. The voting power rule was followed in the election of State Chairman Perry B. McCullough in 1928 and of Chairman C. J. Doyle in 1930. This method has attracted attention now because this is the first time that the election of a national committeeman has been thrown into the state committee. This resulted from the unbroken deadlock during the national convention. The Illinois delegates failed to select the state's new representative on the national body. Then, as now, Smith, Emmerson, and West were the candidates.

ADMIRAL BYRD JOINS WAR ON WASTEFUL GOVERNMENT COSTS

Boston, Mass., July 13.—[Special.]—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, conqueror of arctic and antarctic wastes and over-ocean flyer, has signed on for the job of giving governmental extravagance a death thrust while waiting for his ship and expedition to be ready for the new assault on southern polar barirers.

He has accepted the chairmanship of the New England organization committee of the National Economy league. His new "job," which he says is "nonpolitical, nonpartisan, and nonsalary," begins tomorrow.

Founded by some old comrades, of whom Grenville Clark of New York was the bellwether, it is described as an "organization for national service." His colleagues in this crusade are convinced that governmental waste is the ally of depression—and that "taxation to the point of confiscation" is the way it works out, as he expresses it.

TAMMANY IS PUT IN POLITICAL HOLE BY WALKER CASE

Curry's 'Boys' Fear Being Caught Out on Limb.

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Tammany is having a hard time trying to get squared away for the national campaign, following the unhappy experiences in the Chicago convention. The local leaders are anxious to get in line with the procession, but have as yet been unable to change step.

One proposal receiving serious consideration is for the local democracy to stage a big ratification meeting for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, as was done this week by Mayor Frank Hague in Jersey City. The disposition in the hall is to do so, merely as a gesture to show party regularity, but serious objections rise to balk even that move.

Mayor Walker's case is still pending. He has not put in his answer to the charges preferred by Samuel Seabury and upon which removal from office is based. The mayor is expected to answer next week. The governor has indicated that he will act promptly, but even with the greatest expedition probably cannot give his decision within 10 days after getting the mayor's defense. Too prompt action would indicate the governor had prejudiced the case.

And therefore it might come about that Tammany would be putting on a big demonstration for Roosevelt for President at almost the moment the governor was ousting the Tammany mayor from office—assuming that Walker's removal may be the outcome.

Fear Giving Foe New Issue.

Or if Tammany were to stage its big show declaring its allegiance to Roosevelt for President at about the time the governor were dismissing charges against Walker, that action would be interpreted by the Republicans, if not by the public, as prompt payment of a political debt.

In the circumstances, the local democracy is up a creek and doesn't know what to do. It is being urged that Brooklyn and the other boroughs might go ahead with Roosevelt mass rallies similar to Frank Hague's, leaving New York county until the last. By that process, the city democracy would be getting back in line slowly without overemphasizing the Tammany issue.

The Walker case might easily be out of the way by the time Brooklyn, Queens, the Bronx and Richmond had done their three-cheering and then the local Democrats led by John H. Curry could quite gracefully and naturally fall in line.

Curry's "Boys" Get Tough Breaks.

Tammany's problem is by no means simple. John Curry and his "boys" have had all the bad breaks from the start and their tough luck doesn't appear to have had its run even yet.

In the national convention Tammany was caught out in no man's land between the broadsides of Al Smith and Gov. Roosevelt. Under threat of the Al Smith club the organization was forced to go with the former governor to avert possible disaster in the next city campaign. If Walker is removed, a new mayor must be elected this year, throwing the city election into the national and state campaigns and greatly complicating the situation. Walker could not be a candidate this year. Tammany is vastly more concerned over maintaining its hold on the city government than in the election of either a President or governor.

Doctor makes discovery in Alabama storm

"You don't go to a doctor of medicine with an ailing automobile," says R. J. Casey, famous reporter, "but Dr. H. M. Garrison, Evansville, Ind., has his own prescription for automotive chills that is not found in medical books!" Hunting in Alabama with the aid of his Hudson is the Doctor's favorite recreation.

An Interview by ROBERT J. CASEY

DR. H. M. GARRISON, 1029 Washington St., Evansville, learned about the lubrication of automobiles amid the snow drifts of Alabama and the lilacs of Southern Indiana, in that freak winter of last year.

He smiled as he mentioned it while thumbing through the clinical chart of his Hudson car in the consulting room of his Evansville office. A polite but skeptical reporter gazed through an open window into the sunshine of a warm February day and admitted that the matter of winter lilacs in Indiana would not have to be proved.

"It's all true," said Dr. Garrison. "The first real test Iso-Vis got in my car was in a situation that would make any weather man run a temperature. It was last winter, when I went down into the hills south of Birmingham on a hunting expedition. We actually got snowed in and had to fight our way out of the woods over icy lanes that had never been designed for that kind of weather. But the oil stood up and that's one of the chief reasons why I've prescribed Iso-Vis ever since. It certainly withstood the rigors of a most unusual Alabama winter.

"Up here in Evansville, the test, particularly this year, has been different. The days are warm—extremely warm for winter. Cars equipped for winter driving have a tendency to boil; but mine doesn't. I've driven it now 41,000 miles—mostly city driving of the type which produces dilution and makes for heavy oil consumption. I've had no such trouble. My oil consumption is less than it was a year ago. I seldom have to add a quart between the regular changes."

Dr. Garrison's 41,000 trouble-free miles prove again what Iso-Vis has demonstrated in laboratory tests and in A. A. A. tests on the Indianapolis Speedway—Positive Lubrication Protection. Iso-Vis (a Standard Oil product) will not thin out from dilution. See the Ball and Bottle Test at Standard Oil service stations and dealers.

CITIZENS' GROUP TACKLES SCHOOL CUT JOB TODAY

Tell Where 15 Million Trim Can Be Made.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The trimming of $15,000,000 from the school budget is regarded by the citizens' committee on public expenditures as so simple that they expect the school trustees to approve the plan within a week or two. The conferences between the trustees and Ernest R. Graham, architect, and John O. Rees, representing the committee on expenditures, will begin this morning in Mr. Graham's private office.

At the outset the citizens' committee will ask that $13,000,000 be eliminated from the tax levies for new buildings and sites.

"Not only are large sums wasted in the construction of the buildings, but they are not needed in these times," said Mr. Graham yesterday afternoon. "Why build new schools when we have hundreds of vacant rooms?"

Many Idle Rooms Shown.

The superintendent's office reports 184 vacant rooms, the George D. Strayer report says the number is 200. Business Manager Howard Savage has counted more than 300, and the committee on public expenditures has been informed there are more than 800 idle rooms.

After trimming out unneeded new construction the citizens' committee will take up the cost of operating and maintaining school structures on which, the group esctimates, between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000 can be saved. In its opinion, the compensation paid is beyond reason, and the board, in addition, has too many employés.

One member of the committe cited the list of engineer-custodians who are paid $5,000 or more a year, pointing out that "the engineer of the Continental Illinois bank building gets only $5,000 a year."

Number of School Engineers.

The school board employs 378 engineers at $300 to $470 a month and 31 assistant engineers at $300. It has 200 firemen at $225 a month and 311 others at $185, who are employed from five to twelve months a year.

The board pays janitors $140 a month. It employs 468 of these for 12 months and 839 for 11 months. The 518 janitresses are paid $125 a month, 61 being employed for a full year and 457 for 11 months each. In addition, the board has 41 window washers at $160 a month for 11 months a year.

In the opinion of the citizens' committee, of which Fred W. Sargent is head, it is essential that taxes be reduced to an amount that the people can pay. It is the committee's belief that most of the people who have not paid their taxes are either unable to pay or are having trouble in getting the cash with which to pay. If taxes are reduced, according to their theory, it would aid in restoring business and increase the ability to pay, and as a consequence the governments would get more cash under lower taxes than under the present high levy. On the other hand, the committee members believe there are many large solvent property owners who should pay a considerable part of their taxes.

SCHOOL BOARD DELAYS NAMING OF COMMITTEES

Only 6 of 11 Members at Meeting.

Lewis E. Myers, president of the board of education, was forced to postpone his appointment of standing committees at the regular meeting of school trustees yesterday afternoon. On the request of Trustee Orville J. Taylor the matter was deferred until next Wednesday. Mr. Taylor asked for the delay because only six of the eleven board members were present.

Picks Hold-over Members.

"But the president appoints the committees," asserted Trustee James A. Hemingway, who had been renamed chairman of the finance committee. "I know that," said Trustee Taylor, "but the board approves them." Mr. Myers then postponed the matter.

Carter Blatchford, a school trustee appointed by a former administration, was retained as chairman of the buildings and grounds committee in Mr. Myers' list. After the board adjourned it was stated that the last meeting Mr. Blatchford had attended was on May 25 when Mr. Myers was re-elected president. Mr. Myers was elected by his own vote and and those of Blatchford and four other hold-over trustees.

Protests 5-Day Week.

Other appointments offered by Mr. Myers included the renaming of John A. English as chairman of the committee on school administration; Robert F. Carr, chairman of the committee on purchases and supplies and Mrs. Helen Hefferan, chairman of the committee on health and sanitation. He suggested the appointment of Mr. Taylor as chairman of the committee on rules to succeed Trustee William D. McJunkin.

The board received a communication from the grievance committee of the Chicago Federation of Labor, asking a written explanation as to the procedure by which Col. Howard P. Savage, business manager, had placed employés of the supply department on a five-day week basis. Col. Savage said that all the employés had agreed to the plan, which was made necessary under appropriations for the 1932 budget, and that it was done so that none of the employés would be dismissed. Board members then referred the letter to him.

Award Job of Mailing Delinquent Tax Notices

The public service committee of the county board yesterday voted to award the Northrop company the contract of mailing approximately 600,000 final notices of delinquency on 1930 taxes. The action was taken over the objection of Commissioner Mary McEnerney, who charged that the Northrop company does not employ union labor. That concern's low bid was $15.25 per 1,000 notices. The only other bid, made by the Buckley-Dement company, was $55 a thousand.

PRATT WILL BE QUIZZED TODAY IN TAX DRIVE

Inquiry Asked by Teachers Gets Under Way.

John M. Pratt, executive director of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers—sometimes called the "tax strikers"—will be questioned today by Assistant State's Attorneys William A. Rittenhouse and Grenville Beardsley as the first phase of an investigation asked by unpaid school teachers who think that their dilemma is caused, in part, by efforts of property owners to evade their taxes.

At a massmeeting in Grant park Tuesday the teachers adopted a resolution asking that State's Attorney Swanson investigate, with a view of prosecution for alleged conspiracy, the associations of taxpayers that are composed of property owners who have not paid their taxes.

Pratt to Continue Fight.

Mr. Pratt, apprized of his forthcoming appearance before the prosecutors, said he had no fear of the outcome of the investigation and added that his association would continue its battle until there was a fair assessment of property in Cook county.

One comfort came to teachers who own real estate yesterday. County Judge Jarecki promised to withhold judgment against 160 pieces of property owned by teachers until they are paid their salaries and are thereby enabled to pay their taxes. The judge also reiterated his ruling of last October that he will not reduce the penalties for property owners who decline to pay a substantial part of their taxes.

"For those without money to pay all of their taxes," said the judge, "and who have agreed to pay them in installments, I have every sympathy. I will reduce the penalties for them."

Teachers Oppose Picketing.

Three teachers' groups expressed opposition during the day to the plan proposed by Robert Russell of the Ogleaby school to picket large business establishments who are delinquet in tax payments. Russell had recruited 50 teachers who volunteered to act as pickets.

Miss Agnes Clohesy, president of the Elementary Teachers' union, asserted that "the job of keeping the schools open is the job of the community and not the teachers. We don't propose to antagonize the taxpayers by coercive measures."

"Organized government," said a formal statement of the Federation of Women High School Teachers, "should have the job of collecting the taxes." This view was concurred in by the Men Teachers' union. "We're not a bunch of communists," said James Meade, former president of the union.

Lake Bluff Park Board to Pay 4 Years' Bonds

C. J. Ruhl, president of the Lake Bluff park board, announced yesterday that the board will reduce its 1932 tax levy, to be collected next year, approximately 25 per cent. This will be done by using funds now on hand to pay off all park bonds maturing from 1933 to 1936, thus eliminating the necessity for any tax for bond and interest purposes during the next four years. The general expenses of the park district have also been reduced, Mr. Ruhl said.

GEORGE F. NIXON.

George F. Nixon and Fred W. Brummel, who constitute the new board of tax appeals, had their first experience with the county board yesterday. The commissioners greeted with moans of distress the request of the board for eight employés at salaries totaling more than $25,000 a year, and its suggestion that private architects be employed to rearrange the tax board's offices.

"The gentlemen are suffering from delusions of grandeur," cried Commissioner Peter M. Kelly. "Don't they know that there's a depression?"

His remark was occasioned by the statement in the board's letter to the county finance committee that the employés sought at this time are "merely the nucleus of the organization we want."

Many Bills Presented.

The finance committee's spirits were dampened at the opening of its meeting by the presentation of many bills some of which have been owed for more than a year. Then Deputy Controller Michael J. O'Connor read the letter from Mr. Nixon and Mr. Brummel. They requested authority to employ Graham, Anderson, Probst and White, architects, to rearrange their offices, at a fee of $3,200.

"We have a county architect, and they want to hire the most expensive architectural firm in the city," he said.

It is the custom for new county officeholders to have their offices arranged, but the work as a rule is done by county labor under supervision of the county architect, Eric Hall.

Frank A. Chambers, superintendent of public service, was asked whether he had received the request for alterations. He replied, "I never heard of the board of tax appeals."

Denounces Salaries.

The employés whom the tax reviewers asked for are a secretary at $425 a month; a chief clerk at the same salary; an assistant chief clerk, $333 a month; a "supervisor of public relations and statistician" [press agent] at $354 a month; 2 secretary-stenographers at $312 each, and 2 stenographer-clerks at $144 each.

"These prices are outrageous," declared Thor Madsen, county efficiency adviser. "For example, the secretary to the county treasurer, who supervises 500 employés, gets only $263 a month, and the chief clerk of the recorder's office, also with 500 employés, $276 a month. All over the county building the standard wage for secretary-stenographers is $148 and that for stenographer-clerks, $136."

Mr. O'Connor then produced a letter written to the county board in February by George O. Fairweather, who helped draft the law establishing the board of tax appeals. It said:

"The board of tax appeals will have need of a staff approximately from 30 days before the tax delinquency date until 30 days after that date. There is no need for any appropriation for employés by the board of appeals in excess of perhaps two personal employés for each member, and no need for an appropriation for these until the 1931 assessments are actually before the board."

The committee voted to defer action and to call Mr. Nixon and Mr. Brummel in to explain their requests.

To get you to try it—to see for yourself why Modess is preferred!

Just for a few weeks now, Modess is being sold at a new low price. Less than the price of any other leading brand—46% less than the price of Modess last year.

Prices vary in different stores depending on location and service. But for these short weeks, the top price for Modess anywhere will be twenty-five cents.

A BRAND-NEW TYPE NAPKIN

Modess never reveals itself—even under your thinnest or most closely fitted frocks. The secret is the filler. So fluffy, so delicate and pliable that it molds to the body at once. No layers of sharp-edged paper, no stiff ends.

Modess is the most comfortable napkin you can wear. Modess can't chafe you—can't "pack" or stiffen. Even the gauze is treated in a new way for greater comfort.

Modess gives you much greater security. It's more absorbent—and the back positively repels moisture! Modess is deodorized. Disposable. Surgically safe. Made by Johnson & Johnson, experts in surgical dressings.

Here's a chance to buy new comfort for months to come—and save money!

LOOK AT THE FILLER! Notice the fluffy, gentle texture. Just compare it with the others—in comfort—in the pliability that means so much in appearance.

TEST ABSORBENCY! A bottle of ink poured on a Modess napkin will be absorbed. But it won't come through the moisture-defying back.

ARGUE GRANTING DELAY FOR WORK ON LAKE FRONT

$95,150,806 Spent Now, Aldermen Told.

The south park board and Illinois Central railroad have already spent $95,150,806 in carrying out provisions of the 1919 lake front ordinance, the city council committee on railway terminals was informed yesterday while it was considering the request that the time limit for completion of other improvements under the ordinance be extended from two to ten years.

GEO. E. GORMAN.

The railroad and park board are bound by the ordinance to do further work at an estimated cost of $70,858,000. This does not include what the city and Michigan Central railroad will pay for construction of viaducts north of Randolph street nor the half share which the Lincoln park board will pay toward the construction of the outer link bridge.

Tell Lack of Funds.

Representatives of the park board appeared before the committee yesterday to explain the necessity for the postponements requested. The south park board wishes an extension of two years from September for completion of its share of the outer link bridge, the extension of Field boulevard north from Monroe street to connect with the bridge, and the completion of the Randolph street viaduct, on which the two railroads still have to do some work jointly with the park board. Lack of funds is the reason advanced for the delay.

The park board also wishes an extension until 1940 for making land fills between 22d and 67th streets, which it was supposed under the ordinance to have completed in 1939.

George E. Gorman, attorney for the board, urged that the council grant the extension, since the board is financially unable to complete its work now. If the extension is not granted, he said, there might be a tendency on the part of some of the parties to the ordinance to abrogate the agreement, and taxpayers' suits might be filed to prevent expenditure of funds under an expired contract.

Seek Loan from U. S.

George T. Donoghue, superintendent of south parks, told the committee that the park commissioners are negotiating with the Reconstruction Finance corporation to obtain funds for construction of the outer link bridge by posting the district's bonds with a Chicago bank as collateral.

"The park board has sold $4,880,000 worth of bonds for the outer bridge, but has spent only $600,000 on the project," said Ald. John A. Mason [48th].

"We haven't done anything that the other taxing bodies haven't done," replied Mr. Donoghue. "We invested the bond fund in tax warrants to meet current expenses and for bond interest and redemption. It is a perfectly legal procedure."

Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th] and James B. Bowler [25th] then opened an attack on the park board for the failure to open the way for street cars to enter the park system at Roosevelt road and 47th street.

Engineers to Confer.

The committee adopted Ald. Cronson's motion that engineers for the terminals and local transportation committees meet with the south park commission to determine if work can be started on the 47th street subway, Roosevelt road and Randolph street viaducts, and the outer link bridge, and that the committee hold the extension in abeyance pending a report from the conferees.

Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th] sought a vote on an amendment to the lake front ordinance requiring the Illinois Central to reconstruct platforms on its suburban stations from Stony Island avenue to Cheltenham. Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], chairman of the committee, ruled that the amendment should first be submitted to the corporation counsel, and was sustained by a 7 to 4 vote of the committee.

The committee session ended in a near fist fight between Ald. Hodes and Wilhite G. Nusz, engineer for the I. C. Nusz took Ald. Hodes by the arm and asserted that the alderman was taking the wrong attitude toward the railroad. He mentioned that he was a voter in Ald. Hodes' ward. "That's fine," replied Ald. Hodes, "It's a good ward to live in. But I won't let up on the railroad."

Their discussion became bitter. Nusz took off his glasses and Ald. Hodes began to roll up his sleeves. Ald. Bowler stepped between them as they squared off.

The report on progress made under the lake front ordinance was submitted to Ald. Nelson by E. J. Noonan, consulting engineer for the committee. The report sets forth that the Illinois Central has completed practically all of its obligations up to date except construction of a passenger terminal at Roosevelt road and the minor improvements depending upon construction of the terminal.

Frank Black Found Guilty in Whisky Ring Case

Frank L. Black, alias Murphy, alleged participant in a $3,500,000 liquor conspiracy, was found guilty by a jury yesterday in the court of Federal Judge John P. Barnes. Black will be sentenced Monday with 15 other members of the gang who entered pleas of guilty. The liquor ring, which operated on the south side, was headed by Black's brother, Ben Black, and sold 30,000 gallons of whisky a year in 1929, 1930, and 1931, the government charged.

EX-CONVICT IS SENTENCED; ACT TO BAR RELEASE

Joseph Soyka, 25 years old, was sentenced to one year to life in the Joliet penitentiary yesterday by Judge Rudolph F. Desort in the Criminal court for robbery with a gun. After passing sentence Judge Desort ordered the prosecutors to instruct parole and penitentiary officials not to release Soyka under any conditions.

Soyka robbed two groceries early this year. On a plea of guilty he was sent to the Bridewell for a year by Judge Desort. Physicians there said Soyka might die of tuberculosis at any time and he was released in May on the promise of relatives that he would be sent to the country. On May 28 he and two companions robbed the Heyman Distributing company, 200 South Market street, of $350. He was identified and police sought him at 1747 North Kedvale avenue.

Soyka leaped from a window in an attempt to escape and when police fired at him one of their bullets killed Marie Lesch, 15 years old, a school girl, who was walking in front of the house. Soyka sprained his ankle, when he leaped from the window and was captured. Edward Jajak and Stanley Bulak, also implicated in the Heyman robbery, were sentenced to one to 10 years each.

Wife Sues Elza Davis, Son of Cubs' Physician

Mrs. Rae Davis, 3801 Wilton avenue, yesterday filed suit for divorce from Elza Davis, 3738 Sheffield avenue, son of Dr. John F. Davis, physician to the Cubs' baseball team. Mrs. Davis charged cruelty and alleged in her bill, which was drawn by Attorney Harry X. Cole, that her husband's parents alienated his affections. She also charged that he twisted her arm and struck her. The couple married on May 24, 1930, and separated Sept. 1, last year.

RAILROADS CUT ILLINOIS COAL RATE 15 PER CENT

Hope to Regain Trade Lost to East.

Reduced rate schedules for hauling coal from Illinois mines to various points in the state outside Chicago were filed by the railroads with the Illinois commerce commission yesterday. The reduction in freight rates, averaging about 15 per cent, is expected to relieve some of the distress of the Illinois coal industry and aid the railroads as well, through the recovery of business lost to the trucks.

The question of readjusting the rates on shipments from the southern Illinois mines to Chicago is still under consideration and a ruling is expected early in August. The coal operators are particularly interested in the Chicago rates because this is the largest coal market in the world, and the eastern coal operators have been taking over a great part of the Illinois business in recent years.

Business Goes to East.

In 1913 Chicago bought two-thirds of its coal from Illinois mines, while in 1931 two-thirds was purchased from eastern mines, according to Thurlow G. Essington, counsel for the Illinois Coal Operators' association.

Yesterday's readjusted schedules were filed under the commerce commission's order for a general readjustment on intrastate shipments. Typical reductions on rates per ton are:

From Springfield to Jacksonville, $1 to 80 cents for lump and fine coal.

From Springfield to Quincy, lump $1.60 to $1.50; fine $1.50 to $1.29.

From southern Illinois mining group to Quincy, lump $2.05 to $1.90; fine $1.89 to $1.65.

From southern Illinois mining group to Peoria, lump and fine, $1.90 to $1.85.

The rate reductions come while the wage controversy between the operators and the miners is approaching a settlement and the operators, according to their spokesman, are hopeful of recovering some of the markets lost to eastern competitors who pay low non-union wages, if the Illinois miners accept a reduction.

The proposed $5 basic wage scale, agreed upon by a joint committee of the miners and operators, is to be voted upon by local unions Saturday.

Protest in Springfield.

Springfield, Ill., July 13.—[Special.]—Several thousand southern Illinois miners tonight concluded a tempestuous demonstration against acceptance of the new $5 a day wage basic scale agreed upon by their leaders and the operators. The miners defied city officials who, they said, tried to interfere with their right of assembly.

Speaker after speaker denounced union officials for the agreement, which will be voted on Saturday, describing it as a "yellow dog" contract. Some miners asserted they "would starve to death rather than compromise the principles of their organization."

Delay Execution Date for Strangler of Girl

Glen D. Shustrom of Whiting, Ind., sentenced to death for strangling Alberta Knight, 12 years old, several months ago, was granted a stay of execution yesterday by the Indiana Supreme court at Indianapolis. The execution had been set for Sept. 26, but yesterday's stay set the date at Feb. 19, 1933. The girl was killed in a rooming house at Whiting operated by her mother.

6 Rescued, 2 Save Selves as British Seaplane Sinks

LONDON, July 13.—(AP)—A royal air force seaplane sank in the Irish channel off Larne, Antrim, today and six members of the crew were saved by the steamer Nicos. The two other members of the crew landed safely on the Antrim coast, having paddled ashore in a rubber boat.

OFFICIAL OF VETERANS' HOSPITAL IS SLAIN BY FORMER PATIENT

Washington, D. C., July 13.—(AP)—Frank Cassel, once a patient at Mount Alto veterans' hospital for mental observation, today shot and killed Dr. Victor A. Aimone, medical director of institution.

Cassel fired a single shot through the physician's heart as the latter sat at his desk. Then he let his pistol fall and sat apparently oblivious to what had happened as attendants surrounded him.

He offered no resistance, and when taken to police headquarters refused to answer questions or give a reason for his act.

Cassel, 44, was shown by hospital records to have admitted serving a sentence in the Michigan state penitentiary for carrying concealed weapons.

ALCOHOL COOKER SHOT TO DEATH; HUNT HIS PARTNER

Sam Platonia, 32 years old, known to police as an alcohol cooker, was shot to death yesterday by one of two men with whom he had been talking in an automobile in front of 5330 Archer avenue. His slayer, believed to be Joe Sanchieri, 4934 South Kedvale avenue, fled across a vacant lot after dropping the .32 caliber revolver used in the killing.

Vito Leno, 29 years old, 5304 South Keating avenue, was arrested at the scene and admitted that he was the third man in the automobile. He told police that Platonia and Sanchieri had been partners in a still which was raided recently. An attendant, known to Leno only as Mike, was arrested and sentenced to jail in Woodstock and Platonia had agreed to pay the expenses of Mike's wife while the man was in jail. Sanchieri had quarreled with Platonia because the latter had forced his attentions on the woman, according to Leno.

He told police that Sanchieri, who was driving, halted and said that he wanted to see if he had gasoline. As he walked around the car, Leno said he whirled suddenly and sent a bullet into Platonia's back. The car, police found, had been stolen Tuesday night from in front of the home of Willis Camaroto, 4725 South Kedvale avenue.

CRUSADERS TELL LEWIS APOLOGY NOT CALLED FOR

Telegraphic debate between Senator James Hamilton Lewis and the Crusaders advanced another step yesterday when Seymour Wheeler and J. Russell Forgan, for the organization, wired the senator they could see no cause for an apology for their first message which, in his reply, the senator called "offensive and insulting."

The debate opened when the militant wets protested against Mr. Lewis' negative vote on the Bingham amendment for immediate modification of the Volstead act.

"The Crusaders," said the spokesmen for that organization in their latest telegram, "are an organization made up almost entirely of lay voters not versed in the intricate labyrinth of parliamentary technicalities. They do understand two things, however; first, that the Democratic platform calls for immediate modification of the Volstead act; second, they believe that if both Democrats and Republicans in congress who claim to espouse the so-called wet cause are sincere they could, without any question, modify the Volstead act at this session of congress."

Merchant, Firing at Two Bandits, Shoots a Friend

When two bandits tried to rob Leo Sillavo in his candy store at 2249 Barry avenue last night Sillavo picked up a gun and commenced firing. The robbers fled, but Lawrence Wills, 3017 North Oakley avenue, a friend of Sillavo, fell wounded. A bullet meant for the bandits had struck him in the left leg. Wills was taken to the Alexian Brothers hospital.

WAREHOUSE AID FOR WATER LINE HIGHLY PRAISED

Tribune's Offer Hailed by Gen. Ashburn.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.] — The prospects for a quick demonstration of the value of the Illinois waterway as a transportation medium have been tremendously improved by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S offer of wharfage and terminal facilities on the Chicago river, Brig. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, chairman of the Inland Waterways corporation, asserted today.

"THE TRIBUNE'S offer of a warehouse near the mouth of the Chicago river moved the biggest obstacle to early opening of the waterway to commerce," Brig. Gen. Ashburn said. "I accepted at once. It was a very wonderful offer for us, because, up to that time, we had been unable to find a terminal where freight could be transhipped from lake vessels to waterway barges."

Offer Is Accepted.

The Waterways corporation executive referred to THE TRIBUNE'S offer of July 2, to allow the federal barge line to utilize the wharfage facilities of a large warehouse located near the former docks of the Goodrich Transit company on the Chicago river. The offer was accepted at the time by Brig. Gen. Ashburn and confirmed enthusiastically today.

"We will be ready to operate on the Chicago section of the lakes to the gulf waterway by the time the bridge obstructions have been removed," Brig. Gen. Ashburn said. "I have instructed H. R. Odell, operating manager at St. Louis and H. E. Ruddiman, assistant traffic manager with headquarters at Chicago, to go into the whole terminal situation at Chicago. They have made a study of possible traffic and found that the waterway should be successful. Had it not been for THE TRIBUNE'S offer it is probable the corporation would have had to delay barge operations or begin them without terminal facilities, a far from inexpensive proposition. With a warehouse it will be possible to unload lake freight at this terminal and then transship it via river barges to destinations along the Illinois and Mississippi rivers."

Taps New Markets.

With the opening of the waterway shippers on the great lakes will be able to reach markets on the Mississippi and lower Illinois rivers which hitherto have been beyond their reach. Likewise, shippers in the Mississippi valley will be able to send products direct by water to the big port of Chicago, as well as to large communities along the Illinois river. Products can be shipped direct from the great lakes to Europe when the waterway is opened.

Heavy bulky commodities will make up a large part of the freight traffic. Wheat, automobiles, and accessories, gravel, sugar, and sulphur are a few of the articles which, investigations have disclosed, will be handled by the barges.

War department engineers said today that the waterway channels will be ready by October, barring unforseen developments. If bridge obstructions have been removed by that time, the Inland Waterway corporation expects to begin operations at once.

Indications today were that the bridges will hold up traffic until the opening of navigation next spring.

Inquiries Are Received.

Several inquiries have been received by the Inland Waterways corporation from private barge line operators, but, thus far, none have signified an intention of arranging for terminal facilities at Chicago. Officials expect, however, that, as soon as the success of the waterway is demonstrated, private capital will step in and take over the route.

Silent as the night

If you like peace and quiet with your summer breezes, you'll be delighted with the new Delco Fan. For it runs with so little effort—is so free from the usual hum and whir—that it's almost startling. Scientifically designed oversized blades of duraluminum account for this amazingly quiet operation—stir up a greater volume of air and eliminate the swish and metallic "ping" of the ordinary fan . . . Ask your dealer to demonstrate the new Delco. Discover for yourself just what this improved fan means in undisturbed, refreshing sleep and everyday hot weather comfort. Note how surely its new type guard protects your curtains and drapes. See what a smart touch its modern beauty will add to your home . . .

U. S. AND CANADA REACH ACCORD ON WATERWAY PLAN

Billion Dollar Pact Soon Will Be Signed.

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—Ten years of diplomatic wooing on the part of the United States was climaxed today by a White House announcement that this country and Canada have agreed upon the terms of a treaty providing for joint construction of the St. Lawrence seaway.

In a formal statement issued at the direction of President Hoover the White House stated that the treaty will be ready for signature at an early date. The cost of the total project including the development of hydro-electric power, construction of a 27 foot channel from the great lakes to the Atlantic below Montreal, and other works, will approximate one billion dollars.

Settles Other Controversies.

Aside from providing for what administration officials referred to as "the biggest international construction project ever attempted," the treaty arranges for settlement of all other outstanding great lakes controversies between Canada and the United States. These include an agreement sharply limiting the Chicago water diversion, a move certain to have a vital effect on the success of the Illinois waterway. No details of this section were divulged.

All told the treaty will provide for construction of a 27 foot channel between the great lakes and Montreal together with the installation of hydro-electric plants in the international section of the river between Ogdensburg and Cornwall which will generate about 2,300,000 horsepower. This power is to be divided equally. Two huge forty foot dams will be built in the international section, one at Barnhart and the other probably at Chrysler island.

Publication of a portion of the details of the treaty which revealed that in addition to bearing the lion's share of the cost of the waterway the United States had made concessions to Canada on many of the engineering features brought forth the immediate criticism that the pact represented a smashing victory for Canada.

Restricts Chicago's Flow.

In congressional circles it was made immediately apparent that the move to ratify the treaty next winter will meet vigorous opposition from the Mississippi valley and Illinois. The latter opposition will be due partly to the restrictions placed on the flow of water from Lake Michigan through the Chicago waterway.

There were also indications that friends of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the presidential nominee, are preparing to open fire on sections of the treaty as soon as it has been signed. Mr. Roosevelt injected New York state into the situation a few days ago when he urged the President to join with him in a conference to decide what portion of the waterway cost should be paid by New York in return for a monopoly of the power generated on the state boundary. The President rebuffed the Democratic nominee last Monday and reports are that the treaty is to be criticized as a bad bargain for the United States in that this country is paying too large a share of the cost.

It was learned today that in reaching an agreement diplomatic representatives of the two powers decided to include in the St. Lawrence project all construction work on the great lakes which could be connected even remotely with the seaway. This resulted in inclusion among the projects of the all-Canadian Welland canal work done by Canada on the St. Lawrence previously and work done by the United States in the St. Clair and Detroit rivers. The cost of deepening great lakes channels also was included.

Will Cost 800 Millions.

The result of the lumping policy has been that the total cost of the seaway, counting work already done and to be done was fixed at around 800 million dollars. It was agreed that Canada and the United States should each pay half the total cost, each being given credit for work done. This resulted in an agreement whereby Canada gets credit far in excess of 200 million dollars, leaving that nation less than 200 million dollars more to spend. The American cash credit will be well under 100 millions leaving this country saddled with the burden of paying out most of the cash—approximately 350 millions—needed to make the seaway a going concern.

Just why the United States agreed to allow Canada credit for the Welland canal expenditure of 120 million dollars has not been disclosed. This canal was built to supply a Canadian need. It was built at a time when Canada was demurring at building the St. Lawrence waterway. Its principal mission was to open the way for all water shipments of ore, from the Minnesota ranges to Hamilton, the Canadian steel center and wheat from the upper stretches of Canada to Montreal. It was built also to prevent the construction of a rival canal from Montreal to Georgia bay via the Ottawa river.

Major Treaty Provisions.

The major provisions of the treaty are:

1. For joint construction of the St. Lawrence seaway, each country to pay half the costs and each to have half the power developed in the international section.

2. That the seaway shall be a two stage project as advocated by Canada rather than single stage as recommended by the United States engineering board.

3. For lumping together all expenditures made and to be made in the St. Lawrence and great lakes sectors which remotely could be connected with the waterway. This section provided that the combined cost of all these projects should be equally divided, each country receiving credit for expenditures made up to date.

4. For the United States putting up the major portion of the cash needed for construction of the international section which will cost between 250 and 500 millions.

5. For the placing of an international restriction upon the amount of water diverted from Lake Michigan at Chicago. Exact figures were lacking, but it was reported that the pact would hold the diversion down close to the 1,500 foot diversion for sanitary Canada Gets Concessions.

In making their announcement officials did not comment on the fact that in order to obtain a treaty at this time concessions had to be made to Canada all along the line. In addition to agreeing to bear a major share of the cost the United States gave in to Canada on the question of constructing the canal as a one or two stage project. Canada insisted on a double stage seaway and won out, although this method of construction will cost approximately $30,000,000 more. The state department also bowed to Canada on the Chicago water diversion, permitting this diversion to be limited by treaty over the opposition of Mississippi valley states, and particularly Illinois, which saw its lakes to the gulf waterway wrecked.

No light was thrown on the terms of the treaty dealing with the Chicago diversion. It was learned that only a few days ago the Canadian government was insisting that the treaty should preserve the mandate of the Supreme court which held the diversion down to 1,500 cubic second feet plus domestic pumpage averaging around 1,700 cubic second feet. They expressed willingness to stipulate that the diversion might be modified from time to time as requirements for sanitation might change.

Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] said tonight that the treaty will be fought if it fails to allow Chicago sufficient water for navigation purposes.

ACT TO COMPEL LAND OWNERS TO KILL THISTLES

Heavy Growth of Weeds Is Menace to Crops.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Efforts are being made by authorities in Cook and Du Page counties to have real estate owners destroy Canada thistles and other unlawful noxious weeds this week before they stop blossoming and begin scattering seeds.

A heavy crop of these weeds is now in bloom on vacant city lots and country property. The plant may be recognized by its large purple blooms and prickly leaves. There are 760 township thistle commissioners taking part in a state-wide drive, according to the state department of agriculture. Of these twenty-two are working in Cook county and nine in Du Page county.

Unless the thistles are pulled up by the roots and burner, or killed by chemicals, the reseeding this year will threaten gardens and lawns as well as vacant property, according to the commissioners. They find that mowing the thistles after they are well in blossom will not prevent the spread of the noxious plants.

Travel Hundreds of Miles.

In previous seasons some of the thistle seeds have been blown into the heart of the loop from outlying areas. With brisk winds the seeds have been known to get into upper air currents and travel several hundred miles. Once an area is infested, the plants spread both by roots and seeds, crowding out all other vegetation. Heavy penalties are provided by the state law for land owners who permit these weeds to grow unchecked.

Last year more than 20,000 property owners were cited in Cook county as violators of the weed law. There were more than 2,000 inclosed patches of thistles reported in Du Page county and 375 uninclosed patches. Lake county's violations exceeded 500.

Efforts to enforce the law are meeting more resistance than usual this year, according to the authorities. They find it difficult to prosecute some owners who already are unable to pay taxes, or whose property is in a subdivision in which more expense is involved in determining ownership than the townships can afford to pay.

Busy Serving Notices.

Charles M. Wehling, thistle commissioner for Milton township, Du Page county, has an area which includes the cities of Wheaton and Glen Ellyn. Mr. Wehling said yesterday that his time is filled this week in following up complaints and serving notices on violators of the noxious weed law.

Most of the thistles in Rich township, Cook county, will be taken care of by the end of next week, according to L. J. Metz, commissioner for the area around Flossmoor and Homewood. Other commissioners reported the situation to be largely beyond their control.

In a few instances officials have found property owners making earnest efforts to comply with the law. But lax neighbors threaten to undo the work of these people unless legal action is taken against them.

CREATION OF JOBS SKYROCKETS TAX IN NEW ZEALAND

Government Plan Puts Men at Useless Work.

This is the second of two articles on the working of jobless relief in New Zealand.

BY QUENTIN POPE.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., July 13.—New Zealand, like other countries, has had experience of the snowball effect of jobless funds once they are established by state action, but, even more, she has witnessed what other countries have not—the impossibility of relieving the situation by state planning.

If the state relief advocates in other nations were to visit this country they would see the effect of long range schemes to absorb the jobless and create new purchasing power. New Zealand has tried them, yet she grows more impoverished every day.

One of the most advocated schemes in the United States has been the establishment of a program of public works to carry the workless and to be financed by issue of government bonds. The weakness of this scheme is apparent here, where a long term program of public works has been under way for generations and where government has now realized that the men who can be absorbed on such schemes are only a small part of the workless army.

Plan Merely Boosts Taxes.

For the last two years there has been agreement by nationwide bodies to carry their local jobless by means of putting down new roads, by creating new suburbs and parks and playgrounds, and by extending drainage and water systems and making highways safer.

Only a few months ago was it realized that the public debt was rocketing up at an alarming rate and that the big program of public improvement was earning no money to pay for itself—that there was no interest being earned by the drainage and water systems, that there was no one to settle in the new suburbs and that fewer motors were running over the safer and better surfaced roadways. Instead citizens were receiving higher tax rate demands just at the time where their incomes were tending steadily downwards. Inevitably there has arisen a cry for economy.

Useful Work Runs Out.

Today when the burden on local rates has been lightened by heightening the general tax on wage owners for the purpose of making a central fund for jobless relief, a new problem arises. Perfect roads and sidewalks in sparsely settled streets, lighted, powered, drained to the utmost degree, municipalities and counties discover that they can find no work that matters. In a short space of time all work that can be justified by the most optimistic of publicists has been accomplished and the jobless (who must work in order to obtain relief checks) have been placed on the most trivial and useless of undertakings.

In the recent election much publicity was given by the Labor party to a photograph of men engaged on the creating of new playing areas at Petone, industrial suburb of Wellington. Twenty men were pulling a harrow over the ground, although many tractors were available for the work. The men were given the job, it was explained, because to use machinery would leave too many men with nothing to do. Throughout the country machinery rusts while jobless are employed on work the machines should do in order to keep the men occupied.

Men Resent Their Jobs.

Towards the jobs they are given the men have developed an attitude of resentment. They realise that the work is created for the sake of work, that it has no significance, and that it will lead to nothing but another job of the same sort. Many of them are not physically equipped for the work.

Meantime the talk of planning for the jobless has come to a sudden stop. Despite appointment of an industrial development board and much talk of the alliance of science and industrial brains, no one has been able to devise any scheme for industrial development which would absorb some of the surplus labor. Obviously a time of depression is not the moment for the launching of scheme of doubtful quality.

Latest Scheme Won't Work.

The only thing which has been brought to light so far is the proposal that government controlled works should be established for the purpose of extracting oil from coal, an industry which would wipe out the present system of importing oils by private companies. As this scheme would mean a first cost of at least $20,000,000, it is unlikely to come to anything. And, as the oil companies operating here employ a total of 3,000 workers, all of whom would be thrown into the labor market by development of a government scheme, it is difficult to see where the benefit lies.

Finally government has been forced back on the hope that it can handle the men in labor camps (some of which already have been the cause of the charge that the state is "making bolsheviks") and can place the remainder on small farms of five and ten acres. The notion is that these men may be able to support themselves by the produce from their small farms and hire out to farmers near by.

This plan is yet untried and probably will fail. Few men are fit for it and fewer will relish the years of hard toil which it involves, for the farms are still in the natural state and will have to be broken into cultivation. Moreover, the land is not even of good quality.

"Creating a very undesirable class of marginal farmer" is how economists describe the scheme. But at this the imagination of the government stops.

In the words of Dr. Richard M. Campbell, formerly of Cornell university and now secretary to the ministry of employment, New Zealand has demonstrated the impossibility of helping the jobless in her present system of society.

Court Acquits Oglesby of Contempt; Cuts Alimony

Lincoln, Ill., July 13.—[Special.]—Jasper Oglesby was discharged by Judge Frank Lindley in Circuit court today of the contempt charge filed by his wife, Mrs. Maude Oglesby, for failure to pay alimony. The court also entered an order modifying the alimony decree against the son of the late Illinois governor. Barratt O'Hara, counsel for Mrs. Oglesby, took an appeal to the Appellate court, which was allowed after a conference of principals who failed to agree upon a settlement. A previous decree allowed Mrs. Oglesby $150 per month. Judge Lindley did not stipulate the new amount.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 13.—[Special.]—With three loyal friends, a tent, and two second hand automobiles, John B. Chapple, indorsed by the conservative Republicans for the nomination for the United States senate, will start Friday on a campaign tour which will take him into every county in the state.

The campaigners will sleep in the tent in tourists' camps. They will cook some if not most of their meals, and they will, Chapple hopes, be able to buy gasoline and food through the sale of Chapple's books.

The candidate for the nomination declared tonight there were two reasons why he expected to make the least expensive campaign ever made for the office of United States senator.

The first, he said bluntly, is that of necessity. He is broke financially.

The second, he said, is that the state corrupt practices act which prohibits a candidate from spending more than $5,000 in his campaign makes it impossible for any candidate other than an incumbent with state patronage at his command to make a thorough canvass and appeal to the voters of the seventy-one counties of the state.

Spent Savings in Crusade.

With only small personal means, Chapple declared he had spent his savings in the year of crusading against radicalism in the state previous to the Republican convention in Madison. After receiving the indorsement of the convention it was necessary to devise a practical way of appearing before the voters, financing himself, and keeping his total costs within the limitations of the state law.

The camping campaign has been tried out in a small way since the convention and Chapple says it has proved a success. The two cars operate an hour or so apart, meeting after the last speech of the day to find a camping ground and to pitch the tent.

The itinerary for most of the rest of July has been worked out and provides for four speeches a day. Chapple, to conserve his voice and his strength, sleeps on the back seat of his car while being driven from town to town.

The Advance Car.

An advance car is manned by Robert Keedna, an Ashland High school graduate last year, and Leslie Koons, two young friends. They arrive at a town designated on the itinerary about an hour before Chapple. They pick a likely corner for his speech, arrange for permission for the appearance, and leave a sign on the corner, "John B. Chapple will speak here in thirty minutes."

Keedna drives the car through the main streets and Koons with a megaphone announces "Chapple will speak on the corner in thirty minutes." The plan so far has produced no crowds of fewer than 200, Chapple says, and at times he has reached the corner to find 500 to 1,500 persons waiting for him.

When the second car, with Walter Wilcox, another Ashland friend, and Chapple, reach the corner, the candidate greets the crowd and at once begins his speech. The advance car goes on to the next stop.

At the conclusion of his political address, Chapple explains if the listeners are eager to have him continue his fight they can make it possible by buying one of the books in which he has gathered his writings on radicalism and communism in Wisconsin.

Books Buy Gasoline.

They sell at 25 cents each and 20,000 have been sold to date at these street corner meetings. This money buys the gasoline for the two cars and the meals the campaigners eat.

"Gov. La Follette says his fight is against intrenched privilege," Chapple said tonight, "and I am sleeping in a tent. Campaigning against me are state employes, riding in comfortable state automobiles and burning gasoline paid for by the state."

Marion O'Neal, Actress, Withdraws Divorce Suit

Mrs. Marion Teasdale O'Neal of the Ambassador hotel, an actress, yesterday withdrew her bill for divorce as the case was about to be called in the court of Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude. Mrs. O'Neal is suing William O'Neal, an actor.

Hunt Three Youths After Guest Is Found Slain

Police yesterday were seeking Steve Baltudis, 3421 Auburn avenue, and two other 20 year old youths for questioning concerning the death of Leo Krasnauskas, 20 years old, 3332 South Morgan street, who was found shot to death in an alley in the rear of 342 West 34th street. Police learned that Krasnauskas had spent Tuesday night in the Baltudis home, drinking with Steve Baltudis, John Putrament, 3442 Auburn avenue, and Peter Rifon, 3341 Auburn avenue. Neighbors said they heard shooting in the Baltudis home and saw Krasnauskas stagger out.

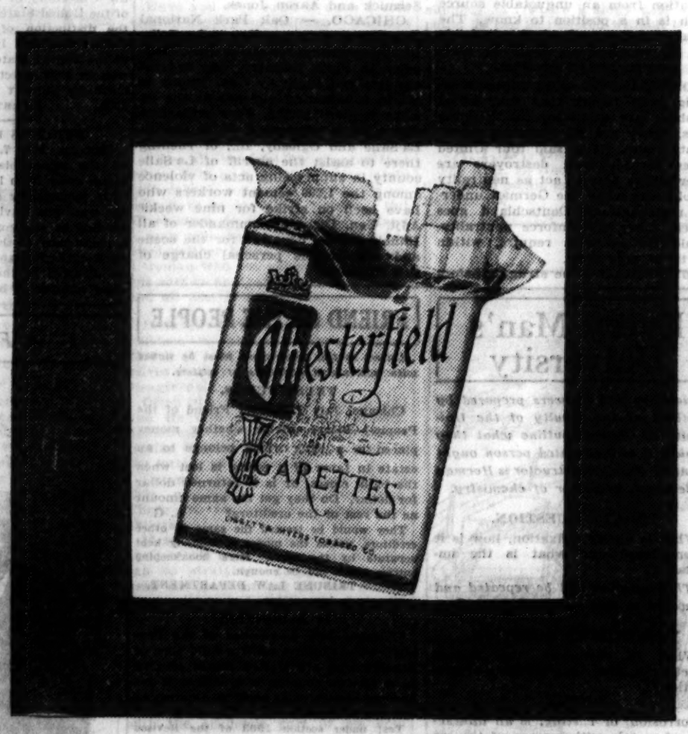
TRAIN TRAVEL IS SAFEST

It's the Cigarette that's Milder and Tastes Better!



That's why more and more Smokers are changing to Chesterfield every day

WHEN you are smoking a lot of cigarettes every day, you naturally want a mild cigarette, and smokers try Chesterfields and find out that they are milder and taste better.

Then smokers tell other smokers—"one smoker telling another"—that they find that although they smoke a great many Chesterfields during the day, they never tire of them; and that they have found out that Chesterfield is a milder cigarette, that it is a cigarette that tastes better, that it is a cigarette with a most pleasing aroma.

Some time ago, in a Chesterfield advertisement, there was a statement, "A $90,000,000 Reason," and this means that the larger part of $90,000,000 is invested in the right kind of ripe, mild Domestic and Turkish tobaccos to make sure that Chesterfields are milder and taste better.

May we ask you to try them?

MARGINAL NOTES ON A CRETINOUS CONGRESS.

If this session of congress were billed as a farce the spectacle of the Republicans trying to force the Democrats to live up to their party platform and giving them the chance to enact its beer pledge would be funny. It is funny. It is funnier than the satirical musical show "Of Thee I Sing." Senator Sheppard, Joe Robinson, Ashhurst et al. and Mr. Garner and his associates in the house should do it in costume and to music. "Of beer we sing, baby."

Mixed results in recent elections have given the Democrats a majority in the house of representatives and the speaker of the house. The convention of the party declared for beer immediately and nominated the speaker of the house for Vice President on a ticket pledged to such immediacy. But here is where the uninformed will go wrong. The pledge, it seems, has nothing to do with the present situation. The Democrats may lose the election. If they lose they do not have to vote for beer. Evidently they hope to lose. It was Charlie Curtis who was bound by the Democratic platform. It is to be construed as of the office.

Is Postoffice Jack Garner Vice President of the United States? An answer is not required. Mr. Curtis is Vice President. What is Mr. Curtis as Vice President doing to get beer? Again an answer is not required. Not even Mrs. Gann is doing anything in this particular. What is Mr. Borah doing to get beer? Does Mr. Borah respect the pledge of the Democratic party? Why should Mr. Garner? Joe Robinson fears there might be some alcohol in beer. The Democratic convention meant near-beer nearly immediately.

Mr. Borah disowns the Republican party and Mr. Garner hasn't accepted the Democratic nomination for Vice President. Maybe he won't accept it. He hasn't even been notified. He may disown the Democratic party and become Mr. Upshaw's running mate on the Prohibition party ticket. Congress disowned the grasshoppers. In all the insect world grasshoppers alone saw the congressional face set against them. Congress appropriates for the buffalo tick, the fruit fly, the weevil, California real estate agents, the farm board and the San José scale, but three times the grasshoppers approached the treasury and were repulsed. There's no explanation. That's the way congress felt about grasshoppers.

Mr. Garner can't do anything about beer, but you may have a postoffice or a draft on the treasury. Have a loan? Some fifteen or twenty thousand citizens moved in on Washington and it will cost the government $100,000 to move them out again. Although this item may appear strange in the government accounts it is at least a logical liquidation of something congress started and couldn't finish.

The present congress undoubtedly is the largest assembly of cretins the country ever has seen. There are many members who in their private and personal individuality are estimable persons ready to agree that not even a hot dog stand could be conducted upon the ideas which prevail in government, but contagious imbecility sweeps over the mass. It is not even shamefaced when it prohibits the making of a beverage and taxes the materials which make it. It only brightens the lunatic glint in its eye when it proposes to save the country by breaking all its industries, when it takes the citizen's rent money to keep the roof over a worthless bureaucracy and lays down the theory that if there is no employment anywhere there will be an equitable equalitarianism everywhere.

The country was low when congress went into session. With the deliberations of the cretinous assemblage it has gone lower and lower. Values, prospects and hopes sank to new levels as imbecility arose to new heights. Democracy has turned to demos. There is only one hope: That some day the so-called representative assembly of the American people may adjourn.

BREACH OF PROMISE SUITS.

When a jury of good men and true renders a verdict like that in the St. Pierre-Hutton breach of promise case, what do they imagine they are doing? The form of the suit is breach of contract or repudiation of promise to marry. But that is in most such cases a mere legal fiction which jurymen will not take seriously. Where a plaintiff is an adult and plainly far from inexperienced—in the Hutton case she had been married twice—the assumption of deceit or seduction is reduced to the absurd. There remains the sentimental inclination of the male toward the personable female, camouflaged as a chivalrous regard for the weaker vessel, ridiculous as the notion is in the face of the testimony. There remains also the reaction against the defendant's character or personality, and between these a crude effort to punish and to compensate in cash for injuries which cash cannot express or, as we have said, for benefits bestowed.

The last is not a consideration the jurymen are likely to confess, but it is the only reality in the whole stupid and sordid proceeding. It should be recognized, for it reveals the real nature of the breach of promise suit as it virtually always develops, a proceeding which comes very near to a legal recognition of the oldest profession.

The breach of promise suit and kindred actions, like the suit for alienation of affection, have no justification in public policy, and should be abolished. The alternative of more rigidly restricting their scope is not likely to remove the evil they do or limit it satisfactorily. Even though the causes of action were sharply narrowed and the possible take in the form of cash verdicts were reduced to nominal damages, they would still have a blackmail value, which is probably in most cases their chief utility for the unscrupulous. Public policy, as we have said often, calls for the abolition of a kind of lawsuit which is a public scandal and a travesty of justice.

THE UNIVERSITY'S EXAMPLE.

It is fitting but no less gratifying and commendable that the University of Illinois has set an example of sound fiscal policy to the public institutions not only of Illinois but of the nation. Its budget for the academic year 1932-'33 is reduced $649,000 below that of the previous year, in which half a million was saved, besides elimination of all capital expenditures.

This probably means a total saving for the biennium of 22 per cent of the funds appropriated to the university by the last general assembly.

President Chase explains that "these savings have been made by the university in view of the difficult position in which the state has found itself as the result of decreased and delayed taxes."

No doubt the highest standard of public administration may be expected from an institution maintained to instruct and to inspire. All the more important is it, therefore, that Dr. Chase and the university have not failed to act faithfully and thoroughly to meet the emergency and thus not only have accomplished material relief for state finances but set an example which other agencies of government cannot ignore. When better times return the record of the university will not be forgotten.

A NEW PORT AND ITS FACILITIES.

In THE TRIBUNE of Tuesday there was published a map of the lakes to the gulf waterway from Chicago as far as Pekin. In about a hundred and sixty miles there are nineteen towns of a total population of 228,000, or about one-third that of Boston, one of the chief ports of the United States.

This stretch of waterway is virtually a continuous harbor. It will not, of course, berth full size lake vessels of the modern period, but it will accommodate the type of inland carrier that is now successfully navigating between New York and Chicago by way of the Hudson and Mohawk rivers, the Erie canal, and the great lakes.

The public authorities and the commercial organizations of the nineteen cities comprising this new port should see to it that as great a depth of water be provided at their wharves as is found in the Erie canal. The full development of their new facilities cannot be had unless water carriage between them and New York can be assured. Any carrier navigating the Erie canal should be able to reach the wharves of the new port towns.

AUSTRALIA: HORRIBLE EXAMPLE.

Philip Kinsley's series of articles on Australian conditions deserve the thoughtful reading of every American, but especially of those of our lawmakers who are contributing to the development of like conditions in the United States.

For every self-governing people, Australia is a grim warning of the ruin that is wrought by the socialist fallacies which propose to equalize the fortunes of men by force of government, to distribute wealth by laws, to expend money obtained by exhaustive taxation without regard to the possibilities of replenishment.

That this course leads to justice for the individual or the wider prosperity of a people is the notion of many of our so-called progressives and all our so-called radicals. But it is neither progressive nor radical in any wise or beneficent sense. As radicalism it fails to respect the radical elements of human nature, and as progressivism it progresses not forward but downward to primitive poverty and tyranny. The Australian radicals have destroyed economic liberty in a foredoomed effort to compel economic equality which has resulted chiefly in an equality of failure. Our American Red theorists, our self-styled progressives and their allies in politics who seek votes by class appeal or by the distribution of public money would have us following Australia toward a fate which no intelligent American can look forward to without dismay. Our present and past tribulations at their worst have not destroyed and many of them have energized the forces of revival. But the course which our radicals and reckless opportunists would have us follow and which Australian radicals have forced upon Australia destroys the forces of revival and forecloses the hope of progress.

Editorial of the Day

[Danville, Ill., Commercial-News.]

Happy is the business institution—like the family—that has no mortgage to carry. Many a corporation is bumping along the bottom without much grief because, though making no profit, it has no bonded obligation, no fixed interest or amortization payment.

Many corporations which have such burdens to carry are lightening them now by managing somehow to buy up their own bonds at current low prices, and thus wiping out large areas of obligations more easily than they might be able to do in good times.

Railroads would like to do this. If they were able to borrow the money, and if business then picked up as it should, they would be in a much stronger position in two or three years. Here is a nut for the big banks and the interstate commerce commission to crack.

Supposing the roads can get the money; the question is then whether they had better use it to wipe out the bonds or to improve equipment and thus bid for new business. They might do both, within measure.

Anything that will really help the railroads will help the whole business situation immediately. Half their bonds are held by insurance companies, banks, and other institutions, and thus their own credit affects general credit.

LUCK CHANGING.

Landlady—You'll have to pay your bill or leave.

Lodger—Thanks, awfully. My last landlady made me do both.—Ipswich Star.

TOY SOLDIERS, TO THE REAR, MARCH!

The disarmament conference at Geneva has been asked to recommend that all countries agree to prohibit the manufacture and sale of warlike toys so that the little children will not grow up with a liking for horrid battles. And there's many a man, not a pacifist at all, who will eagerly second this proposal. Nothing is more disquieting when moving around in a Father Hubbard at night to see if there is a burglar in the kitchen than to put one's bare feet down on a company of tin soldiers. And, anyhow, warlike toys should not be permitted to carry the bayonet. Any one who has got his bare hoof full of toy bayonets will agree to this. And toy battleships should be scrapped first of all. Any one who has had the experience at night of taking a vicious kick at a miniature battleship made of scrap tin, thinking it was the cat, will be fully agreed on this point. Make the toy soldiers call a disarmament conference or go and jump in the ocean.

IS IT A PRIVATE FIGHT— OR MAY ANY ONE—?

Ah, Silver Knight—ah, Jeanne! Ah, Frank B. Shufflton!—Ah, brave and worthy pioneers of poesy! What though a sonnet veers

Though Jeanne's sweet sonnet be a quadruped,
It is a lovely beastie, none-the-less.
A hybrid—a mutation—a successful sport to be Mendelianly bred!

Why five feet?—Why not two?—Who is this Shakespear, who'd restrict our new, free age?—A man
Goes on two feet quite merrily!—Why ban
The biped?—triped?—calling them mistakes?

Hail modern freedom, then!—My blessings on it!

BIPED SONNET, NUMBER I.

Ah me! it takes
So short a time
To make a rhyme
That sings—and aches!

But what long years
Must ache—and sing
Through sterile Spring
And Wintry tears

To make one song
That may depart
To find one heart,
Amidst the throng,

—Some aching thing—

BILLY D.

"HOOVER TO BE Notified Early in August."—Headline. Bet a nickel he finds it out before then. The G. O. P. national committee thinks only a few people are in the secret, but while the audience in the top gallery at the convention was not very large he looked like a blabby old thing, and we'll just bet he ran around telling everybody.

IT WAS A VERY DULL DAY in congress yesterday. Nobody introduced a bill providing for immediate manufacture of beer. And it was so hot yesterday. Ah, how lovely a glass of beer would be in such boiling weather! Do you remember how the sunlight gleamed and glistened through a tall glass of the golden hued beer? How the white foam piled up on the top rolled slowly down the side of the glass? How cool and refreshing the beer was as you raised it slowly from the table and said "Hoch!" or "Here's looking at you!" or "Mud in your eye!" or whatever it was you said. Hot weather is saddening because it makes us think of beer. And beer seems a longer way off than ever.

HOORAY, ½ VOTE MORE!

R. H. L.: To your list of sure supporters of Roosevelt please add ½ vote to be cast by the Columbus, O., movie patron who yesterday half-heartedly applauded the news reel showing Mr. Roosevelt at the convention. The movie patron said he thought at first the picture was a preview of a Two-Gun Bill Hart western, but when he found out his mistake he said he was man enough to go through with it. Or, at least, part way, so he will cast ½ a vote for the Democratic nominee.

JOE DOSS.

DENMARK AND NORWAY are quarreling over land up in Greenland. If what the farmers here in the U. S. A. say about farming is true, Denmark and Norway shouldn't have to bother about farms in Greenland, none of which even in the best seasons produce more than several thousand tons of ice, two polar bears, and a sick walrus every year. Listen to the moans of our husbandmen, Denmark and Norway, and then come over here and the farmers will make you a present of their land and throw in the cream separator, the motor plow, and old Dobbin, besides a couple of cows and a flock of chickens.

PERIODICALLY WEAK.

Now you shall be a memory,
A souvenir de luxe,
Who had a better line than most,
And wore a smarter tux.
I will admit you're handsome,
Husky, strong, and tall,
Your sense of humor makes it hard
For me to leave at all.
You're very entertaining—
Take this for what it means;
I'm going to go away because

SAVE YOUR SKIN.

ONE of the several duties of the skin is to protect the underlying tissues against the harmful effect of sunlight, for sunlight, like every other good medicine, is harmful and even fatal in overdoses. Any protecting agency is capable of being harmed by that which it protects against. Sunlight is capable of doing considerable harm to the skin. Physicians recognize a disorder which they call "eczema solare." It is a variety of dermatitis which is caused by exposure to sun ray, and especially a section of the ray which is toward the violet end of the spectrum.

There are various ways of protecting against it. The most manifest is keeping away from the light or keeping the light away by staying in the shade, walking on the shady side of the street, using parasols, wearing hats that shut out light, wearing neck coverings and long sleeves.

There are preparations to be applied to the skin which have some efficiency. Certain creams have some protective power. Those that contain the napthol sulphonic acid series of sodium salts are in some measure protective. There are preparations of this character on the market purchasable in stores that sell toilet supplies. Even commonplace but not humble rouge is credited with some protective capacity. Quinine powders and creams, theoretically, are protective. The inexperienced should be warned against petting parties following the use of quinine cream.

Those who are subject to sunlight eczema are warned to eat only a hot weather diet during the season of excess sunlight. Such a diet consists principally of salads, but without the usual oil and spice dressings, fruits, vegetables, sour milks, and tart beverages.

There is a chemical called porphyrin which is probably manufactured by the skin and excreted by the kidneys. It is possible to test for this substance, both as to its presence and quantity. Physicians have and still entertain hope that porphyrin may serve as a practical guide in managing skin troubles due to light. A skin that is unduly sensitive to light might make more or less porphyrin than another. Variation in this substance might show that a skin was getting too little light or too much. If a burn had occurred a similar examination might indicate its degree because sunburn is very slow in developing.

But so far nothing practical has been worked out. Trial and error is the only yardstick.

BENEFITED BY LIVER EXTRACT.

Mrs. C. M. C. writes: Liver extract for pernicious anemia, taken with orange juice, immediately started to help an aged cousin, 77 years old. She had dizzy spells, loss of weight, no appetite, and numbness of fingers and toes. These symptoms left, but it is necessary to keep up the treatment, for when she stops she feels worse. She attends to all household duties besides the care of an invalid sister, and is sprightly and as active mentally and physically as a 60 year old person.

INGROWING NAILS.

A. W. H. writes: I am troubled with ingrowing toe nails and sensitive, irritated cuticles. Is there any preparation which can toughen the skin?

REPLY.

Some use a solution of alum in water, say about one in sixteen, to toughen the skin. But why not go at the thing right? Ingrowing toe nails result from wearing shoes that pinch the toes. No amount of alum will suffice if you wear shoes that crowd the ends of your toes. "Sensitive, irritated cuticle" is indefinite.

HUNT FOR THE CAUSE.

Mrs. C. K. writes: What causes hives? My child is 8 years old, seems well, but is troubled with hives. What are they caused from and what is the best thing to cure or relieve the itching?

REPLY.

Your child has been sensitized to something. If you can find what it is and see that it is avoided your child will have no more attacks. Otherwise you and she may continue in trouble. You have many possibilities to run down. Among them are certain articles of food, of which the following are illustrations: berries, fish, oatmeal. There are many more. Among other exposures that should be investigated are: cats, birds, feathers, rats, horses, dogs, and all sorts of dyes.

HAIR ON FACE.

Mrs. A. R. T. writes: My grandmother had a beard and had to shave. My mother had just a little mustache. She did not have to shave. I have no hair on my face. Will my daughters inherit the tendency to hairiness?

REPLY.

Little is known about inheritance of facial hair. The characteristic is considerably linked with abnormalities of the ductless glands. There is a possibility that there may be inherited characteristics, but, again, we know little. The facts cited indicate a strong tendency to inherit hair in the female members of the family. However, these girls have years to wait and, meanwhile, we may learn how to prevent and cure facial hair in women.

TOO LATE TO GROW.

M. D. writes: 1. Can a man of 24 years gain in height? He is 5 feet 5 inches. His brother is about 5 feet 10 inches in stocking feet.

2. Is that the correct way to determine one's height?

3. Is there any way for a girl of 18 years to increase the size of her chest and shoulders?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Yes, though it is not the customary way.
3. Yes, by rowing, swimming, and gymnasium work. Time and persistence are necessary.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 14, 1916.

PARIS.—The Germans began their seventh grand assault against Verdun today, the one hundred and forty-sixth day since the great battle for the French stronghold was inaugurated. Dense German masses are storming the approaches to Fort Souville and Fort Tavennes. The violence of yesterday's attacks furnished unmistakable evidence that Germany is determined to continue the attack on Verdun regardless of her critical position on other fronts. French military critics agreed on this point after study of the reports from headquarters.

BERLIN.—The third German submersible freight blockade runner of the Deutschland type is finished, a fourth is nearing completion, and two others, on the stocks, are being rushed as fast as possible. That is the information from an unquotable source which is in a position to know. The Bremen, the second of the invisible fleet, is reported en route to some port, presumably in America.

NORFOLK, Va.—Ship captains arriving here report that four allied warships are guarding the Virginia capes. They are off the coast about twenty miles. It is said four United States torpedo boat destroyers are under orders here to act as neutrality patrol boats when the German undersea merchantman Deutschland goes to sea. They will enforce neutrality, should the occasion require, within the three mile zone.

PETROGRAD.—The struggle before Kovel is increasing in intensity. Both sides are throwing more troops into this section, designated the "Lutsk breach," which extends 100 miles along the Stokhod river. Already there is said to have been noted the presence there of the Tenth Prussian corps from Reims and the Fifth Bavarian from Arras, both newly brought up.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—A large band of Villistas, probably headed by Villa himself, is headed determinedly toward Ojinaga, opposite the Presidio, Tex., according to reports received at army headquarters here. Information indicating that the garrison at Ojinaga would join Villa's men was also received.

CHICAGO.—The Motion Picture exposition at the Coliseum is continuing right along. Yesterday was a day of a solitary constellation, the special luminary being Clara Kimball Young representing herself and her own company, in the tow of Lewis J. Selznick and Aaron Jones.

CHICAGO. — Oak Park National Guardsmen were speeding to La Salle, Ill., this morning for strike duty. Company D, Sixth infantry, was ordered out late last night by Gov. Dunne to aid in suppressing violence at the cement workers' strike. Five companies of the Sixth infantry, I. N. G., are at La Salle and Oglesby, Ill., or rushing there to assist the sheriff of La Salle county in suppressing acts of violence among the 1,200 cement workers who have been on strike for nine weeks. Adjt. Gen. Dickson, commander of all Illinois troops, departed for the scene and will assume personal charge of the situation.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor is Herman Schlesinger, professor of chemistry.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

What is nitrogen fixation, how is it accomplished and what is the importance?

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

REPLY.

Corrosion, or rusting, is an interaction of metals with oxygen of the air similar to combustion. The reaction is, however, rather complicated, for even iron rusts very slowly in dry air and the speed of corrosion is greatly increased by impurities. City air containing carbon dioxide and sulphur dioxide from burning of coal causes more damage than country air; slightly acid waters corrode pipes more rapidly than alkaline waters. Damage due to corrosion amounts to many millions of dollars per year.

Methods of corrosion prevention include: Prevention of air contamination; removal of acids and dissolved oxygen from water used in boiler tubes, etc., and covering metals with protective coatings by chemical treatment, by electroplating [e. g. chromium plating] and by the use of paints and lacquers; and the discovery of new, cheap rust resisting alloys [like stainless steel] and an increase in the usefulness of naturally rust resisting metals, like aluminum, by alloying them with others.

TRUST FUNDS.

Chicago, July 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise whether money placed in a bank which belongs to an estate in favor of a minor is lost when the bank closes, or is it returned dollar for dollar. Do they get the same amount as the rest of the creditors? A. G.

They would be treated the same as other creditors, unless the money is actually kept separate by the bank. Mere bookkeeping entries would not be enough.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

IS A CITIZEN.

Chicago, July 6.—[Friend of the People.]—Please inform me if a child born of parents who are United States citizens in a foreign country is a citizen if his parents brought him back to America at the age of 1 year. C. G. G.

Yes; under section 1993 of the Revised Statutes. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT, Dist. Dir. U. S. Dept. of Labor.

BANKRUPTCY.

Chicago, July 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1929 I made a settlement with my creditors and gave them notes for the balance. I have not been able to make any payments since. They are always taking me to court. 1. Could I file bankruptcy? 2. What would the cost be? 3. I can't afford a lawyer as I have no money. 4. Do I have to send a letter to each creditor at the time of filing? H. A. M.

1. Yes.
2. The attorney's fee would be the largest item and we are not in a position to estimate this.
3. If you wish to try to dispense with the services of an attorney you might try purchasing a set of the forms for petition and schedules from a stationer and after studying them discuss the matter with the clerk of the U. S. District court.
4. A post card notice is sent to each creditor. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

AN EMBARRASSING ALTER EGO.

River Forest, Ill., July 11.—In the column "The Voice of the People" there frequently appear articles written by D. M. Davidson. They are sometimes signed David M. Davidson. On other occasions the signature is D. Davidson. These articles are frequently on educational subjects and sometimes antagonistic to the teachers of the Chicago public schools.

My name is David M. Davidson and I am the principal of the Nicholas Senn High school of this city. I have not been a contributor to this column of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE or to any similar column in any other paper at any time. It is a matter of some embarrassment to me among my teacher friends and colleagues to have these articles appear. As the other D. M. Davidson will probably continue to write, may I request two considerations:

In the first place, may the contents of this letter be made prominent in the column at a time when it is most likely to be read?

In the second place, may I ask that in the case of any future articles the initials only be given in the signature as "D. M. D."? This would not connect the articles with me.

DAVID M. DAVIDSON, Principal Nicholas Senn High School.

ABOUT CANARIES.

Jacksonville, Ill., June 25.—An article in your columns several weeks ago written by a party from Danville, Ill., afforded me much amusement. This individual remarked that there were a number of wild canaries in the vicinity of her home. I would like to enlighten this person by saying that there are no species of canaries in the United States living in the wild state. There are, however, two species of birds which are often erroneously referred to by unknowing people as wild canaries. They are the goldfinch and the yellow warbler, neither of which has characteristics common to the imported canary.

The goldfinch is a member of the seed eating sparrow family and the yellow warbler, as its name implies, is a member of the warbler family.

EDWIN ROGERS.

THE ORIGINAL HUTCHINS MAN.

Chicago, July 2.—In the Voice of the People of June 30, 1932, under the caption "The Original Hutchins Man," a letter is printed from Russell Conger suggesting Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago for President of the United States. I respectfully claim the distinction of originally proposing Robert Maynard Hutchins for President of the United States, as my communication to that effect was printed in THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE of June 30, 1930. HARRY EDWARD FREUND.

BENCHES IN THE PARK.

Chicago, July 7.—I wonder why most of the removable benches have been taken away from Lincoln park. There is little opportunity now for sitting under the trees and having a little privacy for reading or visiting with friends. Surely a small part of the large sums used for park extension and improvements could be diverted to the purchase of a sufficient number of benches. A. G.

FROM THE ROGERS PARK CIVIC LEAGUE.

Chicago, July 2.—The membership of the Rogers Park Civic league long has watched your courageous efforts to rid the country of the prohibition menace as fostered, nurtured, and furthered by the racketeering leaders of the Anti-Saloon league. Recent anti-prohibition events at the political conventions held in Chicago indeed can be credited to the pioneering efforts of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in the middle west.

The greater majority of Rogers Park citizens are supporters of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE stand anent prohibition and they will gladly aid any program that will rid our nation of the destructive influences wielded by such prohibition advocates as F. Scott McBride, Clarence True Wilson, and Bishop James Cannon Jr. CHARLES WEST.

INFANT WELFARE MAGAZINES.

Lake Forest, Ill., July 5.—At least two magazines are being sold on the streets of Chicago ostensibly for the welfare of babies. The customary procedure is to accost passersby with a request to buy a magazine for baby welfare or for infant welfare.

Inquiry at the publishers' headquarters disclosed that the venders purchase these magazines outright, paying in one case 3 cents and in the other 5 cents a copy. The sale price of both, printed on the cover, is 10 cents; the difference is the vender's profit. In other words, this is a commercial proposition, pure and simple. The number of venders of these magazines appears to be increasing and their field of operation is spreading to the residential portions of Chicago and suburbs.

The request to purchase the magazine creates an impression which frequently results in donations over and above the regular price of the magazine. I, personally, know of instances where substantial gifts have been given to women selling the magazine under the impression that the money would go to the Infant Welfare society for its work among babies in the poorer sections of Chicago.

For several years I have been interested in the Infant Welfare society and I am writing you in the hope that you will give space in your columns to inform TRIBUNE readers of the fact that money paid for these so-called baby welfare magazines in no way whatsoever benefits the Infant Welfare society or any other social service organization, but that the sole beneficiaries are the publishers and the woman who makes the sale. MARGARET MCILVAINE.

THOUGHTS ON LICKING A 3 CENT STAMP.

Iowa City, Ia., July 6.—I have just stuck my first three cent stamp and with it and every additional one I vow to put in a vote against my congressman next November. We have a senator on the chute; now for the other boys. How much can one trust either party's promise for rigid economy in their conventions when their buddies in Washington are throwing out the money with both hands. At least let's have a new gang in congress. Come on, brothers; swat 'em. JOHN MILLER.

Story Written Without False Melodrama.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"House of Vanished Splendor," by William McNally. [Putnam.] Published tomorrow.

ONE of the characters in "House of Vanished Splendor" called the fall of his house "Knotterdämmerung," after the great Wagner opera. The Knotts were the lieges of a baronial estate on the upper Mississippi a couple of hours from Minneapolis. Old John Victor Knott was an intimate of Jim Hill and other great figures of the northwest. He had four children, Mary, Dwight, Todd and Betty. They were brought up to be heirs of one of the great fortunes of America.

WILLIAM M'NALLY.

"House of Splendor" records with impressive power the wrecking of that fortune in one generation, the disintegration of the family and its final wiping out except for a half demented child. Knotterdämmerung it is!

William McNally is a first novelist in this book, I understand, but he has done something of which many a seasoned novelist would be envious. He has told the story of the Knotts without any of the false melodrama with which it might so easily have been told. There are no sudden tearings of the leaves of life into shreds. Tragedy is found in its pages, but it is no accidental horror. In fact, there is little horror at all in the book.

The slow eating away of the days is inevitable—into the weaknesses of the characters. And yet there is no sentimentalising about how weakness is punished. Throughout the pages the reader has a feeling that life is unfolding before his eyes, neither the good life nor the bad life per se, but just life. Mr. McNally has done a brilliant job of catching in his pages the slow inevitable passing of time.

There are times, especially in the early part of the book, when the narrative is weighted down with historic detail. The reader's interest flags at those moments, but Mr. McNally had a classic example of such beginnings of a chronicle of a period in Sir Walter Scott. The author of "House of Vanished Splendor" has done something of the same thing for the latter part of the nineteenth and the first part of the twentieth centuries in the American northwest that Scott did in his Waverly novels.

Of the four Knott children, only Betty, the "proud heiress," is alive at the end of the book. But her pride and her temper and her selfishness which, armored by youth, won her adoration and forgiveness, in age brought her nothing but loneliness and sorrow. She married the first time wilfully and against the advice of her far-seeing father. The second time she married to be adored and did such a bad business of keeping adorable that the strongest character in the whole group could not stand being married to her and left her.

Of the four, the only one who had his father's aristocratic mien was Todd. But that aristocracy was not ballasted by his father's sense of personal integrity and duty toward his community. Todd was a charming, delightful, gifted amateur of life. He had no morals, no inhibitions [other than those of good taste] and no respect for work. Not for one day of his life did he turn his hand to useful employment. But, as his father observed when death was approaching him and he surveyed his family dispassionately, Todd was the only really civilized one of the family.

The other two, Mary and Dwight, had nothing of the charm and sophistication of Todd and Betty. Mary was a natural mother, destined to love only one man, and that man a weakling morally and physically who died without ever having become more than a childish charge to her. Dwight had no balance mentally to face life, and two marriages, which did not succeed, made him an easy victim for a third which gave to the Knotts the only grandchild of the great John Victor, an imbecile girl.

Mrs. Knott, after her husband's death, handed over to her sister half of Knott's holdings, all of them in Minneapolis, keeping the half in the country which were of decreasing instead of increasing value. They decreased to nothing. The proud Knotts were eventually little more than paupers. Knotterdämmerung!

Oddly enough, there is nothing grisly about "House of Vanished Splendor." The author has so skillfully chronicled without comment that the book is a saga of impressive reality despite its shortcomings. Certainly "House of Vanished Splendid" is a book you won't want to miss.

Fashion Finds Feminine Uses for Chromium

Combined with Enamels in Many Ways.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

CHROMIUM, that sleek, modern metal that shines and shines endlessly in fair weather and foul without any ministrations of wax or polish or hours of rubbing, has deserted the utilitarian purposes for which it was first most appropriately used. Beaming and well pleased with itself, chromium basks in the feminine approval of all shoppers who are daily seeing new things fashioned of this hitherto rather severe and masculine metal.

To begin with, this gleaming steel shimmering metal was practical and nothing more . . . then you saw it glinting in your eyes as blazing accents on smart motor cars. After that the interior decorators ambitiously used up loads of the stuff on modern metal furniture and lamps and smoking gadgets. Now at the peak of its popularity, you'll find it luxuriously combined with pastel tinted enamels, in some of the newest and most unusual toilet sets you have ever discovered.

Three piece sets, a mirror as light in weight as bit of down, a businesslike comb, and a good stiff brush fully capable of surviving thousands of duty strokes to properly burnish your hair, are so colorful and dainty that they could easily be the most decorative accents of the most sophisticated dressing table. The colored enamels are exquisite . . . daffodil yellow, a lovely faded powder blue, misty mauves and tea rose pinks. Some stunning black enamel sets are particularly gorgeous with edges and patterned traceries in chromium.

There are some black and chromium sets consisting of short severe combs and matching military brushes that are real finds for the he-man who will willingly submit to using such satisfyingly plain designs . . . things redolent of masculinity, miles apart from any trills and fancies that are deminingly effeminate.

Black and chromium smoking paraphernalia are legion . . . good looking trays that are really trays with a capacity to brag about . . . table lighters that are miracles of endurance and blessed with a fine sense of balance and a splendid seal to stand upright during the most hazardous smokers. Humidors of all sizes of this same interesting black and chromium combination are so wickedly alluring that appreciative visiting delegations will almost have to be searched for such loot.

The new long thin narrow cigaret cases that, at last, have been made for all the heavy smokers of the feminine variety, are also available in black, red and colored baked enamel combined with chromium. These new sizes hold, and it can be proved, a full package of your favorite fags . . . and the case is thin enough and unbelievably light enough to repose happily in most all the summer's smartest handbags, without any telltale bulges.

Some thinking soul has planned a beauty box . . . a tricky little beautifying gadget that can occupy any nook or shelf in the home. A flat oval tray box affair with a handled cover, enamel on one side and a mirror on the inner side . . . this exceedingly light cover when removed discloses a divided tray fitted with rouge, two lipsticks and a moderately sized puff sunk in a sea of powder.

Any house guest will chirp with pleasure at this thoughtful source of supplies . . . where a shiny nose and pallid lip can be restored without leaving the scene of argument. These beauty boxes are another example of the chromium and enamel combine and merger . . . and priced as startlingly modest as the similar models described above.

Mystery Party at Lake Forest to Aid Charities

Mrs. Hibbard Keeps Picnic Plans a Secret.

BY JUDITH CASS.

LAKE FOREST, which blesses any hostess ingenious enough to stage a novel party these quiet summer days, now has its curiosity whetted by plans for a picnic which Mrs. Frank Hibbard is to give within the next fortnight. Mrs. Hibbard calls the party a mystery picnic, and from what we can find out about it, it should be more fun and less strenuous than a treasure hunt.

Mrs. Hibbard intends to have the guests assemble in their cars some place in Lake Forest. The driver of each car will be given clews and directions as to his destination and eventually they'll all arrive at a place which the hostess says will be a surprise. Then she promises there will be more surprises in the way of luncheon and entertainment.

Proceeds of the party will go to "Conveniences," the little office run by Mrs. Hibbard to make money for her charities. That the affair will add a nice sum to "Convenience" we have no doubt, because everybody who went on Mrs. Hibbard's "See Chicago" tours this spring has faith in her ability to give her guests a grand time for their money. The date for the party will be announced shortly.

Golf and Polo Matches Sunday.

Golf or polo? That is the question society will have to decide Sunday afternoon, for there is to be an exhibition golf match at the Onwentsia club that sounds most exciting and a polo game at the Oak Brook club field between the Oak Brook and the Onwentsia teams that also promises to be a good match. I don't see how any one can take in both events, for the golf match starts at 2 o'clock and probably won't be over until near 5, and the polo game is scheduled to begin at 4.

The Oak Brook field on York road, one mile south of Roosevelt road, is more than an hour's drive from Lake Forest, so if an enthusiast wants to attempt to see both matches he will have to leave the golf game after the first nine holes and even then be a bit late for the polo.

Dexter Cummings, the Onwentsia champion, and the club professional, George Smith, will play an 18 hole four ball match against Joe Kirkwood and Jock Hutchison, and after the match Joe Kirkwood will demonstrate trick shots. The entertainment is open to the public and tickets may be purchased at the club entrance on Green Bay road, John H. McIlvaine, chairman of Onwentsia's golf committee, announced.

The polo game will open the new stadium at the Oak Brook field and the proceeds will go to the American Olympic committee to increase the fund for sending our athletes to the Olympic games. In the lineup for Sunday's match are: The Onwentsia team, Charles F. Glore, S. Prentice Porter, Carl Crawford and Richard Simmons; Oak Brook team, James A. Hannah, Capt. M. L. Stockton, J. Barney Balding and Paul Butler. A group of Hinsdale women, including Mrs. Stockton and Mrs. Balding, are busy this week selling tickets for the game, reservations for which may be made through the Central Polo association, Hinsdale 2000.

Fashionables at Arlington.

Arlington continues to attract large and fashionable throngs as its season wears on. Yesterday's program, featuring the Hyde Park stakes, was attended by all of the regular Arlington fans and several of the out of town celebrities who have arrived for the running of the Classic on Saturday.

Gleaned on the telephone yesterday: The Albert A. Spragues are spending the summer in the Henry P. Ishams' house in Lake Forest while the Ishams are at Lake Geneva. The Harve G. Badgerows of Winnetka and their entire family left Sunday to motor to their farm in Iowa for a month's stay.

The Robert W. Hamills of Hinsdale are expecting their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Finelt Workum, and their 6 months old baby to come from Mount Kisco, N. Y., in September for the baby's first visit to its grandparents. None of the Hamill girls is in Hinsdale this summer, Katharine being in New York, where she is doing splendid work on Fortune, and Frances having gone to England for her annual summer visit. She will be back the end of August.

Lieut. Stewart Warren Towle Jr. will join his wife, the former Janice McNear, and baby early in August in Highland Park, where Mrs. Towle and the baby are spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McNear. The Towles will return to Riverside, Cal., where he is stationed at March field, about Sept. 1.

Henry A. Gardner of Winnetka and his sons, Henry Jr. and Gifford, are planning to leave the end of this week to motor to Los Angeles for the Olympic games. The boys, who are students at Andover, chose to spend their vacation in this way instead of accompanying their mother and sister, Mary Louise, to Europe this summer. Mrs. Gardner and Mary Louis, who will return to Dobbs Ferry in the fall, are expected home the latter part of August, about the same time Mr. Gardner and the boys will arrive at home from their trip.

Empire Styles Quaintly Kind to Very Young

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Styles for little Parisiennes this summer have a lot in common with those worn by grownups. The Empire fashions that are being worn by women are the highest style for little girls from four to twelve. It must be said that the little women wear them better than do most of the big ones, for the tiny bodices, puff sleeves, etc., are universally becoming to the very young.

Parisiennes who have attained the dignity of twelve years are, this summer, wearing their party dresses quite long, almost ankle length, in fact. The young ones of five and thereabouts are kept in short skirts.

Two Empire party frocks for girls of these ages are sketched today. The littlest one is a frock from Fairyland, a paradise for children's clothes in Paris. It is made of pastel blue crepe de chine and is trimmed with tucked bands and pleated ruffles. The bodice buttons down the back with blue buttons, and the puff sleeves, the belt and collar are made of tucked bands. The full skirt has two pleated ruffles at the bottom.

The frock pictured on the left is a white muslin dress from Alice Corne for girls of ten and twelve years. Around the neckline is a shaped band of blue taffeta, and the skirt hem is blue taffeta. A blue taffeta sash is placed at the empire waistline, held in front by a bouquet of forget-me-nots and rosebuds, and ends in a big bow at the back. The puff sleeves and the skirt are trimmed with horizontal tucks.

French Societies to Hold Bastille Day Celebration

Franco-American and French societies of Chicago will celebrate Bastille day today. From 10 o'clock until noon the French consul, Rene Weiller, will hold a reception and Mrs. Weiller, in the consulate offices in Tribune Tower. In the afternoon a program of sports, dancing, and games will be held at Pilsen park at 26th street and Albany avenue.

Study Aversion Doesn't Always Mean Dullness

May Merely Indicate Other Interests.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

The parents whose children don't buckle down to high school work and the home work it entails are usually in a state of constant worry about the fact.

I was talking with one of the heads of a prominent and very large school not long ago—a man who is doing research in education. In the course of our conversation, we hit upon the subject of those children who have good minds, but who consciously or otherwise rebel against the constant study which the average child accepts.

"We often find that this barrier is a sign," he said. "When a child consistently resists academic pressure, it frequently means that he has already developed strong interests of his own."

Have you ever come to such a conclusion about your children? Perhaps your boy or girl has interests or occupations that he loves so, that seem to him so real, so worthwhile that he begrudges the time spent on books and study. It is something to think about—something to wonder about if your child is resisting school and homework.

After all, we take for granted that school is to be a child's life—certainly high school—for many years. We expect it to be his chief interest. But all children do not find it so. Many a man who has made his mark has liked neither books nor study. Many a woman who has achieved success of one sort or another has disliked school and all that it represents.

Naturally it worries parents if their children do poorly in their classes. And it is hard on the children themselves if they find school and lessons disagreeable.

Often it's the fault of the school and its dull stuff machine system. Sometimes it's the fault of the particular teacher that a child draws in the lottery of promotion.

But not always. There are schools that practically all children love. There are teachers who understand children.

If school life and your boy or girl don't work together well, do all you can to straighten things out. But keep an open minded as the schoolmaster who said, "He may have already developed strong interests of his own."

If that is so, don't condemn or nag. Instead, be as helpful and understanding as you can, and give him opportunity to develop his "strong interests" which will help him to bear with the academic part of his education.

Predict Dance Popularity for Earhart Hop

Steps Simulate Events of Noted Flight.

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—A new ballroom dance was demonstrated today at the dancing teachers' congress, now in session at the Hotel New Yorker. The teachers believe it will sweep over the country as one of the most popular ballroom dances of 1932. It is called the Earhart hop, and is dedicated to Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flyer.

The dance was described by Miss Lucille Stoddart, chairman of the congress, as "very enjoyable and peppy." It is danced to foxtrot rhythm, the basic step of which is a hop. There is a gentle swaying from side to side, like the rocking of a plane, a sudden dip, signifying an air pocket, and a whirl, which might be described as a tailspin.

The promoters regard it as a conservative, although spirited foxtrot. After the first close step it is danced in an open fashion, which is characteristic of all conservative ballroom dancing of today.

After the dance had received the official sanction of the teachers, it was demonstrated before a movie news camera, and every angle of the routine, closeups of the head and feet of the dancers, and correct position of the body, were recorded. Through this medium it is believed that the dance will soon be popularized over the country.

Did You Feel the Heat? Think of Poor Babies

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

"Ninety-five." Even the business men in their lakeside offices, beneath a battery of electric fans, felt the heat yesterday. Ice water tanks worked overtime. Soda fountains did a rushing business. But what of the folks down in those areas of the near west and the near southwest sides, where there was neither refrigerator nor ice, electric fans nor any pennies to be pitched over a soda fountain counter for a cooling draught? The need is tremendous.

One little harbinger yesterday brought a ray of cheer. Circus days are here again for the Free Ice fund. It's the season once more for the old silk hat and the false mustachios, the back yard stage, and the surprised household pets suddenly clapped into cages, the neighborhood parade, and the penny admission fee.

For many a year in Chicago no summer has passed without the quota of kids' circuses, staged for the benefit of the Free Ice fund, for other kids who have neither pets nor back yards, and whose own parents can't afford ice.

Little by little the children's circuses have swelled this fund each summer, until the total long ago entered the four figure column. Altogether they kept scores of needy families healthy and comfortable for days at a stretch with their timely supply of a few pounds of ice when and where it was most needed. The spirit of the thing carried far, and the youngsters themselves had a glorious time.

Just a few days ago the most recent circus was staged by two La Grange boys. Dick Lodge of 423 South Stone avenue and Bob Wilson of 443 South Stone avenue, both 10 years old, were the originators, managers, producers, performers, salesmen, ticket takers et al. They didn't miss a bet. They hawked popcorn balls and lemonade during the show, and they auctioned a pair of pet white rabbits for good measure.

Their net profits for the circus were $1.75 from their audience of twenty playmates. And translated into terms of comfort for some hot and sickly babies of the tenement districts, that $1.75 means a full supply of twenty-five pounds of ice for a dozen families for two days. Is it any wonder that the social service workers of the city, deluged by calls for free ice, declare they are for bigger and better kids' circuses? Especially since the Junior Dramatic club of the same suburb forwarded $5 they also earned.

Total	$ 38.75
Previously acknowledged	260.69
Grand total	$299.44

Mrs. B. R. Kulp also forwarded $5 for the Camp Algonquin fund, making a grand total to date of $1,593.48.

Donations for either fund may be addressed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE at Tribune tower, and will be acknowledged as received.

I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Franklyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a surgery in a poor district of London, to attend her indolent, dependent young half brother. The doctor offers to give Barney Pierce, a well to do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty creature who summoned the doctor. Both men determine to help the plucky young orphan girl. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doria Hathaway, a widow, friend of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid-companion for the Atlantic crossing. The doctor sends Gold to see Mrs. Hathaway and she gets the job. Pierce regrets putting Gold under the demoralising influence of Doria. He decides to sail himself. On the boat Doria meets David Dorrance, who wants to interest Pierce in a business deal. Doria asks Gold to dine with her. They are joined by Pierce and Dorrance. Gold is angered by Pierce's cynicism and distrust of women.

HOPES SHATTERED.

Now Gold was all alone; gloriously alone on this glorious adventure. She went forward to the bows and stood where she had stood with Barney Pierce only a few hours ago, and let the wind sweep over her. She stood there a long time, for the chill of early evening had changed to warmer breezes, almost milky-soft. It was a divine night. And she looked above her at the mysterious overhead. The big dark boats hung silent over the ship. She could see the tall slenderness of the wireless mast. Dance music still came out to her faintly: well, Doria Hathaway would now have her two men, and would be playing one kittenishly against the other.

But it was Barney Pierce whom she wanted.

"Why," Gold thought slowly, "didn't I take that card when he offered it, while I have taken this Dorrance man's offer of help?" But she knew. It was because of an aching, haunting bewilderment that he had roused in her with his talk, here, on this actual square yard of deck. It was because of the skepticism, the contempt, that looked out of his light gray eyes. It was because of his quiet yet overwhelming arrogance; because of his look of mastery, that made a woman, proud and resourceless, say to herself: "You may see that here is some one—a woman, too, and you despise all women—who wants no favors from you. Here is a woman to whom you and your money are nothing at all!"

Gold Franklyn tried to banish the image of Barney, and, moving from the side, began to climb the companion to the boat deck; and here, too, she was alone, moving among the dark shapes and shadows, with just the far-off light from the wireless cabin throwing out a white gleam.

She stood under the shadow of one of the boats, pressed against the rail and looked down at the foam and surge of water racing by. It was beautiful. One wanted to stand a long while up here, solitary, untouched, seeing the ageless sea race by, the ageless stars shine down, while one looked back at life, and ahead at life, and thought of this intricate puzzle called life; and came—would one not?—to some irresistible and mighty conclusion.

"Yes, while you were feeding your face, all dressed up, every luxury, I'm a damned stowaway, am I?"

But then she awoke to the intrusion of her privacy in this shadowed angle between the stark dark boat shapes. A man stood very near, a slim man, young and thin, and she knew his silhouette. She knew before he spoke—Gip!

She couldn't speak. It was as if a demon had shattered a rainbow of hopes. In that instant before Gip spoke the whole prospect changed. The darkness returned, the anxiety, the weariness, enveloping her in a black cloak of dread; of disappointment and frustration, so bitter that it was like physical suffering.

"Well?" said Gip.

"O, why?" she cried out sharply.

"Why?" he repeated. "Why? Because I want to quit, too. I want a new life. You get yourself a job to be brought on a ship like this; you rig yourself out damfine, do you? You're going to leave me—are you? Well, you're not so clever." He spoke carelessly and loudly, conscious of the safety of their solitude. "You don't get rid of me. I saw one of your luggage labels—you hadn't written it, but it had 'Mercuria' on it. Do you think I'm a fool? I sold the mirror——"

"My—my old mirror—O, you haven't sold that!"

"Don't talk rot about your old mirror. You don't seem to have much use for it, do you? It fetched two quid at the antique dealer's round our corner. I came to Southampton earlier than you—no reserved place on a boat train for me; O, no! I got aboard by hanging round the station, picking up a passenger's suitcase when the boat train came in, and the passenger took me for an extra porter—'I've lost me armlet, sir,' says I; 'but I'm one of the extra porters all right,'"—Gip laughed—"and the ship's people took me for a valet carrying his master's stuff on board, I suppose. Soon as I'd dumped one case I made for the boats. And I've been lying flat in that boat just overhead, under the tarpaulin, ever since. Yes, while you were feeding your face, all dressed up, every luxury, I'm a damned stowaway, am I? Well, I tell you this: sooner or later I'll be found, and when I'm found I'll say who I am; and if I'm put on Ellis island, it'll be in your company. Because I won't be treated like a fool or a lunatic——"

She checked him by crying: "O, stop! Stop! Stop!" Then: "Listen, Gip. Have you left your clothes?" She asked this very quietly.

"Of course, I've left my clothes. You'll have to find me more."

"My God, Gip. No clothes! What'll we do?" She was so staggered, dismayed, shattered by the familiar recurring problems that he loaded upon her. Men's clothes! Heavy, solid, uncompromising affairs! Standardized! Impossible to go out to a street stall and buy a wisp of silk, a piece of lace! Men's clothes! She gasped frantically: "Listen, you fool! I've no money. I shall have two guineas——"

"I don't care what you say. You can get money. You can manage—a girl can always wangle things. God! I wish I were a girl! You don't half know your business—that's what's wrong with you, and has always been wrong! You've got to get us both out of this and stick to me or it's Ellis island——"

Again she stopped him, stepping close. "Listen! Listen! Listen! Be quiet, will you? I'll have to think. I must have time."

"All right. Take time. Till this time tomorrow night. I've pinched a ship's rug from one of the chairs below. I've got some sandwiches and a bottle of beer. But this time tomorrow night you'll come up here again, Gold, and if you can't make me a tempting proposition I give myself up; and give you away at the same time. Sister of a stowaway. O, a desirable visitor to the United States!"

All she said to that was briefly: "You'll wait till tomorrow night."

"Yes. I'm going back to my luxurious quarters now."

She was shaking all over. She stepped by him, ran blindly for the companion, ran down, made her way towards the refuge of her cabin. And Gip Alen had just taken hold of one of the tarpaulin ropes and was preparing to swing himself up again, when he felt himself taken in formidable hands and turned about. "Hell!" he cried out. He was looking—and he had to look up—into the eyes of a tall, square-shouldered man, lean, hard feeling, bare-headed, in dinner clothes.

"What the hell!" Gip stammered, but timorously now, for he did not want the scandal he had threatened. He wanted Gold to extricate him, somehow, anyhow, as she had often done before.

The stranger, without more ado, knocked him flat.

Gip arose giddily.

"Did I hear you say," said the stranger, "that you were giving yourself up as a stowaway at this time tomorrow?"

"I—I——"

"You will do it tonight. You will come to the captain now, with me. I think he has finished his bridge rubber."

"I'm damned if I——"

Gip Alen found himself being propelled along toward what had the effect of being a very carefully guarded suite, indeed. From this hearty male voices sounded, and three men in dinner clothes emerged, calling back, "Good night, captain." An alert steward faced Gip and his companion; then asked respectfully: "You want the captain, sir?"

"If you please," said the big man, who held Gip's arm.

"A moment, sir." The steward disappeared and reappeared with accomplished celerity. "This way, sir. But you know, don't you?"

Unfortunate Introduction.

"Dear Miss Blake: I introduced my boy friend to my girl friend. Since then he has been paying an equal amount of attention to both.

"MAXINE S."

Penalty of Jealousy.

"Dear Miss Blake: My girl friend has left me because of my jealousy. I want her back. Please advise.

"JEAN."

If you have conquered your jealousy, tell the girl and ask for another chance.

Lilyan Tashman Wears an Organdy Halo.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

On her last flying visit to New York I had lunch with Miss Lilyan Tashman whose clothes invariably introduce some startling fashion note. Miss Tashman didn't fail on this occasion. She was wearing a hat that looked less a hat than a chic white head bandage. A bandage arranged as no other ever seen. Of fine white organdy in tiny folds, shaped on the smartest turban lines, but where a crown usually exists a blue veil, which dropped over the edge, was all that stood between Miss Tashman's crown and sunstroke.

A clever, large white bag, light stockings, black sandal type shoes and one of those simple little black street dresses about whose simplicity of price you're a bit in doubt, completed the costuming for the noon day rendevous.

If that isn't clear to you, a hat, I gathered, should be the gay, merry note of the costume. It shouldn't look like a sunshade. It shouldn't look practical. It shouldn't look useful. Just something either to keep the hair down, or give the hair something to do to hold up.

Anyway, Miss Tashman's yellow tresses shone through the veiling and around the hat edges brilliantly. It's still being worn in curl clusters at the back—but these, like all the latest back neck dressing, are on the up trend, leaving a fine, groomed back of the neck.

Miss Tashman holds to the ox blood nail tips. Very, very blood! But they belong with her sophisticated smart attire.

But hats, Miss Tashman argues, do things to women. Cheer them and down them, according to the rightness and wrongness of the hat. And what, we chime with the clothes wise Miss Tashman, does so much for gal's spirit as a new, becoming chapeau?

On the whole, as you view hats today, the utility rôle is more often established than not. We haven't that Sunday hat any more. Nor flower hats. Nor garden hats. Perhaps we do need a note of frivolity introduced into the top piece! Perhaps we could make the bonnet play a bit more of the coquetry act than is ordinarily allotted it. Perhaps what hats need is more a. a. I don't know. I'm just thinking out loud on Miss Tashman's suggestion.

Engaged Pair Indulge in Lot of Quarreling

Wonder if Marriage Will End the Trouble.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"If you quarrel and argue before you're married, is that any sign you'll do it afterward?" asks a young innocent—well, not so young as to be encouraged to believe that matrimony works miracles on dispositions. At 23 one is old enough to recognize that the dispositions are pretty well framed by that time. And unless some definite action is taken by the individual himself or herself to change an ornery disposition, matrimony cannot be entrusted to provide the cure-all.

But why the quarreling? If two people are fond of each other, fond enough to be talking marriage, why not try to find out what is at the bottom of the arguments?

You each might find out something about yourself you aren't now aware of. You might just discover that the words or the occasion of the feuds have little to do with the case. You might extract the knowledge that each, in your way, is a bit of a bully, or you have a feeling of superiority that isn't going to help marriage comradeship. You might even recognize in these verbal bouts a contest in which the best man's got to win. Each of you is the best man in your opinion. Your desire is to exact more than the congratulatory handshake due the winner. You're bent on rubbing it in, getting the upper hand, dominating.

That's why quarrels arise. It isn't because of the actual deed committed by John or Mary. The deed just gives John or Mary a chance to lord it over, to show up shortcomings at the same time magnifying one's own better points.

Silly not to realize that you are just a couple of weak humans capable of mistakes. That one of you relishes the idea of being reformed no more than the other. That in order to make any companionship arrangement go you have to concede there are faults on both sides. And that they are not going to be permitted to blot out the good points.

Or, if rods and flies aren't quite to your taste, how would you like to ring in some new notes in fish dishes—doing all your fishing out of tin cans?

Salmon, one of the most flavorful of our salt water friends, may, with careful tutelage, learn to come out of the kitchen in the future in at least a score of guises new to fish lovers. And, since salmon is especially appealing because of its content of vitamins and minerals, particularly of iodine, it's up to us who think in terms of well families, as well as pleasant meals, to get out our can openers and dig in.

The market supplies us with cans of these ruddy fish shading all the way from deep red to a pale pink. The deeper the color the richer will be the flesh and the higher the price. Your purchase will depend on family tastes and somewhat on the condition of the family pocketbook. With proper cooking and skillful combination with other flavors, however, any of the types will be good.

SALMON KEDGEREE.

This interesting fish dish is a real old-timer. The original recipes gave a dry kedgeree, though a more modern and dampish result may be easily obtained if desired. Simply boil one-half cup of rice until tender and dry slightly in the oven. Mince three hard cooked eggs and turn into a sauce pan in which four teaspoons of butter have been melted. Add the rice, one cup of flaked salmon, a few drops of onion juice, and salt and pepper. Shake and toss the mixture over a low flame until well heated through. If desired, two-thirds of a cup of medium white sauce and a dash of curry powder may be added to give the more modern kedgeree. Serve hot as a luncheon dish.

SALMON FRITTERS.

Crusty, spanking hot fritters are something else you may not have tried in the fish line. Open a can of deep red salmon and separate into neat, good sized sections, keeping them as whole as possible. Dip in beaten egg diluted with two tablespoons of cold milk, then in finely ground salted cracker crumbs or corn meal. Lower into hot fat (350 degrees F.) in a wire basket and fry until golden brown.

SALMON CHOPS.

Fish chops are the latest thing for swanky luncheons where we want style, but little work. Two cups of thick white sauce is the starter. Mix with this two cups of salmon, flaked fine, the juice from a small onion, and four teaspoons of lemon juice. Blend carefully, add salt and a dash of peppery sauce to taste. Spread out one-half inch thick on a buttered baking sheet. Chill an hour in the refrigerator, cut in squares, and form each into the shape of a chubby chop. Place in a greased baking dish, dot with butter and spangles of paprika, and bake in a hot oven about fifteen minutes. Serve with parsley potatoes and fresh, new peas.

A tempting and novel croquette may also evolve from the above "chop" mixture. Instead of forming the squares of chilled salmon paste into chops, place a tablespoon of thick creamed peas in the center of each and roll up, pressing the ends and lapped sides gently but firmly together. Lower into hot fat (383 degrees F.) and fry till brown.

Or some time when you are searching for new ways to usher in the macaroni dish, try salmon and macaroni en casserole. Layers of flaked salmon alternating with cooked macaroni, chopped green peppers, and seasoning go into a casserole in which a tablespoon of butter has been melted. Pour over all a cup of milk and sprinkle generously with buttered crumbs. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) until well browned.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 13.—[Special.]—The President today received the Italian ambassador, who presented his countryman, Cesare Grattarola, Olympic commissioner, and Admiral Di Sambuy. The ambassador afterwards entertained at a luncheon for these guests and this afternoon gave a reception for them and the members of the Italian Olympic team.

Mrs. Francis E. Pope of Evanston, Ill., and Washington, entertained at luncheon today in honor of Mrs. James E. Drain, formerly of Chicago, later of Washington, and now living in Spokane, who is spending a few weeks here, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Dale Drain of Chicago.

Commander John Harrison Knapp, United States navy, has returned to Washington for duty from the west coast, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. John J. Knapp.

GASOLINE ALLEY—A SURPRISE TO BOTH PARTIES

GENERAL BRADDOCK'S ARMY MARCHED FORTH IN THEIR SCARLET COATS AND WITH ALL THE POMP OF DRESS PARADE TO OUST THE FRENCH FROM FORT DUQUESNE. WASHINGTON REMARKED THAT HE HAD NEVER SEEN SUCH A BEAUTIFUL SIGHT. BUT BEFORE THEY REACHED THEIR GOAL A PARTY OF FRENCH AND INDIANS WAS TO AMBUSH THEM AND TURN THEIR BRILLIANT COLUMNS INTO A CHAOTIC MOB.
GEE, WOULDN'T THIS MAKE A SWELL NEWS REEL, COL. WASHINGTON!
WASHINGTON RODE AMONG THE FLEEING TROOPS TRYING TO RALLY THEM AND HAD TWO HORSES SHOT FROM UNDER HIM. BUT ALL THIS TO NO AVAIL. GENERAL BRADDOCK WAS MORTALLY WOUNDED AND THE ROUT WAS COMPLETE.

Mystery Party at Lake Forest to Aid Charities

the remainder of the summer and will depart on Monday for the fashionable resort.

Laura and Narcissa, the two youngest daughters of the Robert J. Thornes, are back in Lake Forest after more than a year of study in France and Germany. They arrived yesterday with their mother, who went to New York to meet them. Miss Laura Thorne is scheduled to be a debutante next season, although no definite plans for her coming out have been announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins will sail on the Statendam tomorrow at midnight for their annual summer holiday abroad. They will start for the east this morning so that Mrs. Hutchins may have plenty of time tomorrow to confer with her publishers about her book, "Diagramatics," which is scheduled to be off the presses by the time the Hutchinses return from Europe.

They are to go first to Holland for a trip down the canals, then to Belgium, and finally to Switzerland before returning to Chicago in late September. Their 3 year old daughter, Mary Frances, is to spend her summer vacation with her paternal grandparents in Berea, Ky.

Mrs. Winterbotham Buchanan and her daughter, Katherine, also will be aboard the Statendam when it sails tomorrow night. They plan to travel abroad until fall.

Mrs. William C. Niblack, instead of going east for the summer, as has been her custom, has leased Mrs. Henry W. Hoyt's house in Lake Forest—not far from the homes of her children, the Alden B. Swifts and the Austin H. Niblacks. Mrs. Hoyt and her daughter, Miss Edith Hoyt, have gone to Cape Cod for the summer.

Thatcher Hoyts Go East Again.

Mr. and Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt, who went off to New Haven, Vt., early in the spring to get started at the business of restoring Mr. Hoyt's family home in the Green mountains, decided a few weeks ago that there were a lot of supplies in Chicago that they simply could not get along without this summer.

They motored back home, stayed through the political conventions, and started east again on Tuesday with furniture and things for their children loaded on a trailer. Their two babies, Thalia and Reynolds, remained in the east with a nurse while their parents traveled to Chicago.

The Hoyts' Vermont house, we're told, is one of the loveliest in that region of historic houses, and its owners intend to restore it to its original beauty.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Vaughan of Oak Park are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, Howard Adam Jr., on July 4 at the Passavant hospital. Mrs. Vaughan, the former Martha Zaring, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. Robb Zaring of New Albany, Ind., and a sister of Stanley Zaring.

George W. Dixon, George Dixon Jr., and the Stanley Zarings [Marion Dixon] have been at the Dixon summer estate at Oconomowoc for several weeks, although the men of the family spend most of the working days in town, with long Friday to Monday week-ends in the country.

Mrs. Zaring, who presides as mistress of Oconomowoc just as she does at her father's Lake Shore drive house, came in to town yesterday to see her sister-in-law's new baby, but she's going back to the country and to her own little son today.

Children's Program.

The second of its summer series of free entertainments for children will be presented by the James Nelson and Anna Louise Raymond foundation today at the Field Museum of Natural History. Miss Margaret M. Cornell will tell stories at 10 o'clock and at 11 o'clock the children will be taken on a tour of the museum's exhibits from the South Sea islands.

Reuter and Hess Please Full House in Recital Series

Rudolph Reuter, pianist, and Hans Hess, cellist, appearing jointly yesterday afternoon in the American Conservatory of Music summer recital series, provided a program that once again filled Kimball hall to capacity. Both artists confined themselves to groups of short works rather than attempting extended compositions, and both were lavishly applauded for the results obtained.

Mr. Reuter, whose pianistic mechanism is highly developed, began with a group by Bach-Saint-Saëns, Gluck-Brahms, Chopin, and Schumann; Mr. Hess followed, making use of his most exquisite tone on works by Bach-Campbell, Frescobaldi-Cassado, and Lili Boulanger, the last named composer having provided what sounded like "Dixie" in C sharp minor in a brilliant and greatly attractive version.

With Mlle. Boulanger the program turned toward the moderns for both artists, and Russian, German, American, and Hungarian compositions made up the rest of the list. One of the American compositions was Clarence Loomis' Adagietto, which is dedicated to Mr. Hess.

Sally's Guests Get Box Seats to See Our Cubs Play Today

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Are you all set for an exciting baseball game this afternoon, boys and girls? You know it's the day we're going to Wrigley field for our weekly party, and I know there's a marvelous game waiting for us. Do you think the Cubs will beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, or do you think Hack Wilson will foil his old buddies by putting a few home runs on the score board. Well, whatever happens, it will be interesting to see, and we'll be right there in the grand box seats which Mr. Veeck has provided for us, not missing a thing.

If you want to see Thurston, the magician, and Jimmie Cagney in "Winner Take All" at the Uptown theater with me a week from today, I hope you've written a winning letter and that it reaches me this morning. I shall read all the letters today, you know, and select the winners.

Holds Them Unsound and Too Costly.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

In opposition to the present mode of education by numerous highly specialized courses in colleges, one educator attending the education clinic which opened yesterday at the University of Chicago declared he favored a return to large classes and a few general courses.

Speaking before the seventh annual Institute for Administrative Officers of Higher Institutions, Dean Charles H. Judd of the school of education of the University of Chicago said:

"I am convinced that the multiplication of specific courses is pedagogically unsound and economically impossible. I believe our educational institutions have gone too far in devising separate courses for every type of student and for every aspect of every subject. It has tended to make students dependent rather than bold in application."

The abandonment of general education and the emphasis on specialization in American schools and colleges was based on psychological studies which Dean Judd described as "trivial" and "dealing only with accidental facts." These psychological studies were responsible for the invalid conclusion that the human mind could not transfer skill gained in one line of study to other fields of intellectual endeavor, he said.

Dean Judd said he did not advocate an instructional program which should force all individual students into the same intellectual mold, but, on the contrary, one that would provide for the development of independent personalities, to be "determined from within rather than from without."

"I am very little interested in bringing the student into constant and intimate contact with his teacher. I am far more interested to discover methods by which the student may cultivate independent power in his work," he said.

"Individual differences do not imply small classes or highly differentiated courses of study. To make the antithesis as strong as possible I should say that large classes and a few general courses are the best devices for producing the kind of individual differences which are most to be desired."

The high school geometry course is too frequently a course about figures in a book rather than a course about space, Dean Judd said. The course in English, he continued, considers commas and historical allusion to the exclusion of teaching literary values.

The institute will continue through today and tomorrow.

Frank O. Holt, registrar and director of the bureau of guidance and records at the University of Wisconsin, discussed Wisconsin's program for reducing educational waste. In the fourth year of a coöperative program between high schools and colleges all high school seniors are tested with scholastic aptitude tests. If they rate high the pupils are encouraged to enter college by their superintendents.

Not only academic standing and tests are considered in the specialized selection of students at the University of Chicago, as described by Dean Aaron J. Brumbaugh, but personality emotional qualities, social attitude, and leadership qualifications are considered. Each student gives an autobiography, which is put on file, and his personality and emotional reactions are charted by faculty counselors. Psychiatric aid is extended to the maladjusted, it was said.

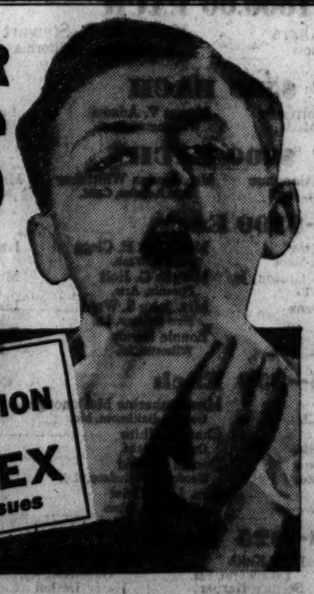
WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Barkman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Barkman of 853 East 64th place, to Prof. Frederick S. Siebert of the University of Illinois school of journalism was solemnized at 9 o'clock yesterday morning at the resident of the bride's parents. They will go to Europe for their wedding trip. The former Miss Barkman was graduated last year from the University of Illinois and since her graduation has been assistant editor of Alumni News. Prof. Siebert, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Siebert of Mountain Iron, Minn., was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1924 and received a doctor of journalism degree in 1929 from the University of Illinois.

SUMMER COLDS —how they hang on!



AVOID SELF-INFECTION Use KLEENEX disposable tissues

DON'T encourage a cold to hang on, by using a handkerchief over and over. That means constant self-infection.

Instead, use Kleenex. Then destroy it. Germs and all. And don't think this health habit is expensive. It will cost you less than laundering!

Kleenex is an exquisite tissue, made of softest rayon-cellulose. It is many times more absorbent than linen or cotton, and so is especially soothing during colds.

As you destroy Kleenex after using, there's no washing. No spreading germs through laundry bags, to contaminate other clothing.

Kleenex comes in the regular handkerchief size, and a towel size three times as large.

Drama Marks Struggle for Hale Children

Father Opposes Former Pal in Court.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 13.—Shades of past friendship, past romance and past film greatness clustered in Superior Judge Turney Fox's courtroom when Creighton Hale, one time stellar actor of the silent films, and his old bosom pal, John Miljan, now a hit in talkies, met as opponents across the counsel table.

They met in a proceeding in which Miljan's wife, the former Mrs. Hale, is seeking to declare her two children by Hale, Creighton Jr., 13, and Bobby, 11, legally abandoned by their father so that Miljan, who has supported the children for years, may legally adopt them.

Hale who at one time was one of the most sought actors in Hollywood, testified the reason that he had not supported his children was because he had earned only $1,800 last year, and only $250 this year.

Miljan, who says he has acted as father to the children, reared them, bought their clothes, and paid all their bills since marrying the former Mrs. Hale, took receipts to court showing he had spent more than $4,000 each year on the upkeep of the two boys. The youngsters themselves said in court that they preferred Miljan to Hale for a father.

They said their own father had broken appointments to see them and had indicated no interest in their welfare for three years, not sending them even a card at Christmas.

Their mother said Hale had declined to come and see the boys, as the court verdict divorcing her from Hale in 1925, would have permitted.

When the case was winding up, Hale's attorney made the charge that Miljan had owed money to Hale since the days when the two actors were pals, but Miljan denied this, and offered to produce canceled checks showing that he had paid bills for Hale and had lent the other man hundreds of dollars.

Hale went into eclipse as an actor about three years ago. He was called before the Los Angeles city prosecutor several times on nonsupport charges, and in place of his one time headlined station in pictures, has recently been appearing chiefly in subordinate parts at minor studios.

Mrs. Miljan recently became mother of a third son, John Miljan Jr., and the baby and the baby's nurse accompanied her to court. She is the former Victoire Lowe of Chicago. Judge Fox took the case under advisement.

Looks 10 Years Younger, Brushes Away Gray Hair

Now you can really look years younger. Simply brush away those unsightly streaks or patches of gray. It is so easy to do—and at home—with Brownatone. Over 20 years of success recommend this proved method. With an ordinary small brush you just tint your hair back to its natural shade—whether blonde, brown or black. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Does not coat the surface. Actually penetrates the hair. Defies detection. No tell-tale, flat "dyed" look. Cannot affect waving of hair.

No need to guess or gamble. Get a bottle of Brownatone today—only 50c. Then cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not prove it will actually give your dull, streaked, gray or faded hair its natural color, youth and sheen—your money back.

BEMIS TESTIFIES GAS CO. DEMANDS TOO MUCH PROFIT

Engineer Witness for City in Rate Hearing.

The gas company's contention that it must earn $12,112,819 annually to meet depreciation and pay investment returns was attacked by Walter S Bemis, consulting engineer, testifying yesterday in the gas rate hearing before the Illinois commerce commission.

Questioned by Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman, Bemis declared that the above figure, set by the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, is $2,394,426 in excess of the company's needs. Bemis is chief witness for the city, which is seeking a reduction of the present temporary rates fixed for the mixture of artificial and natural gas now being supplied Chicago consumers.

Bemis estimated that for the year 1931 the Peoples Gas company should need $9,718,393 for depreciation and a proper cent return on its investment.

This estimate, he said, was based on the total valuation of the company property of $141,075,706, fixed by the public utility commission in 1920 and whittled down to $116,532,341 to meet the lower price levels of today.

The witness also charged the company's estimate of 4.2 cents for 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas for replacement of worn out equipment during the next five years was excessive. He testified that excessive amounts earned each year by the company, if this estimate were allowed, would be as follows: 1932, $119,864; 1933, $262,134; 1934, $397,501, and 1935, $611,193.

Charge Wrong Figures Used.

On cross-examination of Bemis by F. L. Daily, attorney for the gas company, it was brought out that Bemis in his estimates had used the 1920 valuation figure of the utility commission instead of the reproduction cost in arriving at his 1931 valuation, the 1920 valuation total being 20 per cent lower than the 1920 reproduction cost.

If the 1920 reproduction cost were used as a basis, Bemis' estimates would be much nearer to those submitted by the company, it was shown.

Bemis further testified that he believes that the company could furnish service more economically if the heating value of its gas were raised from the present 805 B. T. U.'s per cubic foot to 905 B. T. U.'s per cubic foot.

Hearing of the case will be resumed July 25.

Church Leads Simpson by 155 Votes in County

Recounting of all Cook county ballots in the contest between Ralph E Church and James Simpson Jr. for gress from the 10th district was completed yesterday, leaving Church 155 votes in the lead. The ballots cast in Lake county, which is part of the district, will be brought to Chicago today for recounting tomorrow.

SUES FOR $1

E. R. BRANIGAN.

Beloit, Wis., July 13.—[Special.]—Suit for $1 which he placed in the contribution box of the Second Congregational church on Sunday, July 3, will be started by E. R. Branigan, leader of the council majority here, the councilman said today.

Announcement of the intention to start the suit was made after Branigan had learned the board of trustees had taken no action on his request for the return of the dollar.

It was put in the box just before Branigan heard the Rev. H. A. Studebaker criticize Branigan and his council majority. The councilman wrote to the pastor and asked to have the dollar returned, as he said he was afraid it would contaminate Mr. Studebaker.

RICH AMERICAN, 90, TO BE MADE CITIZEN OF PARIS

PARIS, July 13.—(AP)—The municipal council decided today to make Edward Tuck, wealthy American who has lived here since 1890, a citizen of Paris for his services to France, and particularly to the city of Paris. The ceremony will take place on his forthcoming 90th birthday.

Auto "Sellers" Rob Man of $600 and Keep Car

Jack Weber, 26 years old, of 1112 North Oakley boulevard, minor politician and formerly employed as a custodian in the marshal's office, reported to police last night that three men robbed him of $600 with which he planned to buy their automobile. He furnished police with the license number of the car.

SLUG CUT RATE MILK DEALER.

Joseph Kreda, 37 years old, owner of a grocery at 3859 West Roosevelt road, was slugged yesterday by two hoodlums who invaded the store. He fired two shots at them as they fled. Police said that Kreda had been selling cut rate milk.

ECUADOR JAILS EX-PRESIDENT AS REVOLT LEADER

Accused of New Plot to Become Dictator.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, July 13.—(AP)—Col. Luis Larrea Alba, temporary president of Ecuador for two months last year, was imprisoned today when the government heard of a new military plot to make him dictator of the country.

Several army officers at Loja, including Commander Bolivar Valdivieso, also were arrested. A soldier carried information of the rebellious units to the government.

Documents taken from the conspirators, a dispatch from Quito said, revealed a plan involving several garrisons whereby a coup would have been attempted Friday.

Alba was installed at the head of the government in August, 1931, but he was overthrown two months later. In November of that year there was an unsuccessful movement to reinstate him. Since then he has been relatively inactive in politics.

Brazil Revolt Spreads.

SAO PAULO, Brazil, July 13.—(AP)—There were indications today that the rebellion against the Brazilian government which for four days has centered around this wealthiest of the southern cities was spreading into a nation-wide uprising.

Among these was a declaration from Pedro de Toledo, who became head of the revolutionary government yesterday, after resigning as federal governor, that the states of Rio Grande do Sul and Minas Geraes had joined the movement.

The new chief emphasized the revolt had no other purpose than the resignation of the provisional government of President Getulio Vargas and the substition of a constitutional régime.

The rebel forces claimed successes, announcing the vanguard of their forces captured a munitions factory at Piquete, 120 miles northeast of here and half way to Rio de Janeiro. Thirty thousand men are now ready to fight, another communique said, and six states are behind the revolt.

Federal Troops Mobilize.

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 13.—(AP)—The federal government mobilized men, money, and munitions today to stamp out the revolutionary movement in the state of Sao Paulo.

A credit of approximately $1,500,000 was decreed to meet extraordinary expenses.

There were rumors that Santos, the great coffee port in Sao Paulo, had been taken, but lacked confirmation.

Meanwhile Porto Alegre became a clearing house for government troops moving to wage war against the rebellion.

Porto Alegre is in the state of Rio Grande do Sul. The attitude of this state seemed to be the deciding factor in the revolt. Government sources declared it remained loyal.

Major troop movements were going on today. An official communique said that troops were approaching the state of Sao Paulo in two columns.

Peru Regulars Refeat Rebels.

LIMA, Peru, July 13.—(AP)—Troops and police had another battle with fleeing rebels in northern Peru today, said a communique, taking Cajamba from the insurgents with the loss of a police officer and four men.

EDITORS LEAVE FOR CONVENTION IN CALIFORNIA

After a preliminary meeting at the Morrison hotel yesterday, 60 newspaper publishers from the east and the middle west left last night for California, where they will attend the 47th annual convention of the National Editorial association. The convention will be divided between San Francisco and Los Angeles, with three days in each city.

Before leaving Chicago the publishers visited the Century of Progress exposition grounds and entertained Harry S. New, former postmaster general, at luncheon. Mr. New yesterday took up his duties as United States commissioner general to the exposition.

The editors and publishers will be joined at Kansas City by another delegation.

George W. Brown, 43 years old, a carpenter, died yesterday in the South Shore hospital of injuries suffered Monday while he was dismantling a tower on top of a three story building at 1310 East 64th street. A 25 foot flagpole on top of the tower, loosened by the work, fell and struck Brown on the back, puncturing his lung. Firemen used block and tackle and a stretcher to lower Brown from the roof.

PAN-AMERICAN LINE OBTAINS AIR RIGHTS ON ATLANTIC ROUTE

Detroit, Mich., July 13.—[Special.]—Trans-American Air Lines corporation of Detroit yesterday transferred all concessions and operating agreements for a trans-Atlantic air route via Iceland to the Pan-American Airways company. Included in the concessions is a 75 year grant by the Icelandic government which gives the Pan-American Airways company 15 years exclusive American rights for the development of a northern airway.

The transfer was made with the approval of the Canadian, Norwegian, and Danish governments over whose territories the proposed line will operate. The Pan-American Airways announced that the experimental work necessary for the projection of the arctic route would carry on. It was in this work that Parker Cramer and his flying partner lost their lives last year while mapping a proposed route from Canada to Greenland, Iceland, and Denmark.

The Pan-American Airways have successfully operated inter-continental airways connecting South and Central America with the United States for the last three years.

URUGUAY BREAKS WITH ARGENTINA OVER ARMY EXILE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, July 13.—The Uruguayan government has handed passports to the Argentine Ambassador Jose Maria Cantilo, thereby breaking off diplomatic relations with Argentina.

No official statement yet has been issued, but it is understood that the rupture is due to what Uruguay considers unfriendly action of the Argentine government when the cruiser Uruguay visited Buenos Aires July 9 on the occasion of the Argentine national holiday.

Prior to the cruiser's departure for Buenos Aires the Argentine exile Gen. Severo Toranzo, commander of the Argentine army under former President Hipolito Yrigoyen, but now in exile in Uruguay, went aboard, giving rise to a report that he was thus being smuggled back to Argentina. Argentine authorities closely watched the cruiser when it was at Buenos Aires and contrary to international custom ordered an airplane squadron to escort the cruiser part way back to Montevideo.

Argentina Fights Locusts; Asks $250,000 Federal Aid

BUENOS AIRES, July 13.—Argentina is again being visited by locusts, a swarm 20 miles wide having arrived in the heart of the rich cereal belt in Santa Fe province almost as far south as Rosario. The ministry of agriculture has asked congress for $250,000 for defensive measures. These locusts breed in the Choco region and are blown into the northern provinces of Argentina every year on hot winds from the north.

MENACES WIFE; GETS YEAR.

FALSE MANEUVER SUNK FRENCH SUB INQUIRY REVEALS

PARIS, July 13.—(AP)—A "false maneuver" caused the sinking of the French submarine Promethee, which went down off Cherbourg July 7 with a loss of more than sixty lives, the ministry of marine announced tonight.

A board of inquiry found that apparently a sluice was opened at the moment when electric propulsion was being changed for Diesel motor propulsion.

Divers who have gone down to the ship determined that the hull was not damaged at all, and it was their opinion that it was an inrush of water rather than an explosion which caused the tragedy.

JAILED FOR DODGING RENT.

George McDonald, 34 years old, who attempted to leave the Medinah Athletic club without paying a rent bill of $145, was sentenced to 30 days in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Francis B. Allegretti.

CUBS' RALLY FAILS; LOSE TO BROOKLYN, 5-4

GERMAN BOXERS DEADLY, BERLIN WRITER WARNS

Reichmann Predicts 8 Fierce Fights.

BY HEINZ REICHMANN.

Soldiers' field on July 26 will see the Dempsey-Tunney match again—eight times. In the eight matches in which the German amateur champions meet the Chicago Golden Gloves boxers, Germany's champions will play the Tunney part and the Americans the Dempsey.

HEINZ REICHMANN.

Less than four weeks ago Max Schmeling lost his championship in New York, and in Germany the decision that dethroned Schmeling has left the sporting public with a growing sentiment for reprisal. Boxing fans throughout the fatherland feel that the amateur champions will gain part of this reprisal and establish the merit of boxing in Germany by turning back the Chicagoans.

Chicago will see eight fights on July 26, in which no quarter will be given and no quarter asked. From the first gong until the last, the German boys expect to put their all into every blow and they are looking forward to meeting eight opponents with the same idea.

Win for Max, Is Slogan.

These boys are amateurs. Amateurs are the same the world over. The German boys have the added incentive of evening the score for their idol, Schmeling. Just as the Dempsey-Tunney fight went down into ring history as the greatest bout of all time in the matter of the fight itself, the crowd and the gate, this purpose of reprisal on the part of the Germans leads fatherland fans to believe that the greatest amateur show of all time will be enacted at Soldiers' field. The fighting will be no less fierce than that which Dempsey and Tunney put forth.

In addition, the German boys know full well they must win in Chicago if they are to continue to Los Angeles and the Olympic games. Defeat against the Golden Gloves boxers here means immediate return to Germany.

Interest in the bouts is tremendous in Germany. The leading sports editors of Germany will come to Chicago to cover them. Newspapers are arranging to publish extras on the results. Radio stations throughout the republic have been flooded with letters begging them to broadcast the fights from the ringside.

Plan Victory Festivals.

The cities from which the boxers come already have launched plans for victory festivals in the event their boys win against the Chicagoans.

For weeks the conversation in the biergartens has been exclusively about the international bouts. The stammtische, or cliques, as Americans say, which have their favorite tables in the biergartens and always gather there to visit and quaff, have forgotten the Hitlers and Papens for weeks. They are more interested right now in the chances of their countrymen.

They have kept in mind the names of the Chicago heroes of the French bouts last year, and Leo Rodak is almost as well known in Germany as he is in America. The stammtische know Rodak is a "tough kid," and they speculate on the outcome of his fight against the Fatherland champion, Hans Zigiarski.

Watch Zigiarski and Rodak.

In my opinion this fight is going to be the sensation of the evening. Zigiarski, better known to German fans as Zicke, is the best amateur Germany ever produced. Zigiarski has proven time and again that the better his opposition the better he fights. The professional boxing expert would call Zicke a money fighter.

During my stay in America I have learned that they overrate the German professional boxer, but they un-

All Is Not Play at Wawasee—Ask Golden Glovers

Once every day in the hot sun. The Chicago Golden Gloves boxers have to get their minds off the lake and fun the greater part of every day at Lake Wawasee, Ind., where they are training for the German bouts at Soldiers' field on July 26. Here are Bill Connell, Al Soukup, Lenny Cohen, Frankie May and Joe Haberski doing their daily dozen on the hotel lawn preparatory to stepping into the ring for a few rounds of sparring.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Not sissies, Abner, but box fighters—champions! Farmer Miller and Tony Sutton put in a lot of time skipping the rope. It makes for shiftiness and light feet. They will be fast and elusive when they meet the Germans on Soldiers' field July 26 if they keep this up.

There's Romance in Camp! Adam Knows a 'Karo-Line'

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Wawasee, Ind., July 13.—The German boys can have the Europa and the Atlantic ocean; Chicago's Golden Gloves boxers are quite content at Lake Wawasee, thank you.

As this is written, in snatches, the impulse is almost overpowering to glance out the window at an expanse of the rippling lake. There, right now, the day's labors ended, a platoon of Golden Glovers are prancing around the diving stand while others are stretched out on the warm boards of the pier. In an hour, dinner call will sound. Then after an evening in the lobby, playing cards or ping pong, or perhaps a movie at Goshen, 16 miles away, will come taps. And so to bed.

This and the camp mystery has added zest to the daily routine. It seems Adam Smith knows a girl. Of course, this is not unusual considering that Adam is a husky lad, something of a wit and a bit above average in looks. Adam made a mistake in asking for help in spelling "Caroline." From suggestions he took a rather modern spelling of Karo-Line. Now the operatives are seeking to intercept the correspondence in order to locate the girl. The boys wouldn't read the letter; of course they wouldn't.

Pleasure, however, has its price. These boys are here because they are the best amateur boxers in the central states. They admit it, and none of the hundreds who this afternoon saw the second boxing drill has disputed them. One week from Tuesday night eight of these boys will step into the ring at Soldiers' field to meet the champions of Germany, who now are nearing New York harbor. And there isn't one of these American lads at Wawasee who wouldn't trade his clothes, money, or what have you, for the right to take a swing at one of the Germans.

Everybody's Healthy, Happy.

The boxing sessions, which require only an hour and a half, have developed into serious warfare. Friends, yes, but the showing in the ring will determine the Golden Gloves' lineup. All have escaped injury. And it isn't necessary to knock on wood. The big gloves cushion the hardest punch, and none may break the inviolable rule that each boxer must wear a headgear for protection in the ring.

These precautions do not detract from the intense rivalry. You should see Frankie May in action if you want a thrill. Aggressive, a stout puncher. Frank has started in high speed. The training bouts now are limited to two rounds—six minutes—in the ring. Additional work in the impromptu gymnasium on punching bags and skipping ropes adds two or three more rounds. Yesterday and today Frank whirled through his ring schedule with an abandon and attack which threatens the well being of Joseph Schleinkofer of Germany.

Then There Is Cohen.

But May wasn't the whole show by any means. Johnny Baltzer and Lennie Cohen peppered away like veterans. Cohen, who is a newcomer as is May, has the advantage of a long

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—One of the pleasing features of the humble White Sox is their consistency. Having dropped the first three games here, they kept their local record spotless today by giving up gracefully in the final with the Senators. The score was 15 to 4 and a good portion of the victors' runs were the outcome of an unexpected foldup on the part of Ted Lyons, who by his whitewash of the Athletics last week was supposed to be on the road to a brilliant comeback.

Lyons started off impressively against Monte Weaver, the Senators' youthful sensation, who now has 12 wins to his credit, but the one time Chicago wizard exhausted his resources in three innings. Then he reverted from a perfect workman into a common garden variety of pitcher and before Pat Caraway could rush in and relieve Lyons of his troubles the fourth inning had netted a cluster of seven Washington runs. All this was done on pure, unadulterated hits, but what happened to Caraway and Art Evans after this was due principally to the daily quota of Chicago errors.

Cronin Starts the Riot.

Cronin singled in the fourth to touch off the blast that blew Lyons out of the picture. Kuhel's single put Cronin on third and West flied to left, but Seeds lost the ball in the glaring sun and it plunked to earth for a double, Cronin scoring. Kuhel hiked home on Bluege's long fly. Spencer was thrown out, and with the pitcher coming up it appeared as if Lyons would escape without more damage. But Weaver doubled over first base, scoring West.

The wallop by the opposing pitcher must have ruined what little courage Lyons still retained. At any rate he filled the bases on walks to Rice and Myer. This situation was a challenge to Heinie Manush's hitting prowess and he accepted it by tripling to left to score his three mates. Manager Fonseca didn't care about looking at Lyons any longer; so he switched to Caraway. Cronin's second single of the inning greeted the long southpaw and Manush scored. Caraway actually retired the next batter.

Fatty Fothergill Fumbles.

Caraway started the fifth by walking West. He nailed the next two batters and hit Weaver on the arm. That arranged the setting for one of the Sox's attacks of fielding jitters. Rice walked to load the bases. Myer tapped in front of the plate and Caraway could have tossed to Grube with a good chance of getting the runner, but Pat apparently didn't think of that. He whipped the ball to first and was both late and wild. West and Spencer ran in on the combination hit and error. Rice intended to stop at third, but when Fothergill fumbled Caraway's wild throw, he

Gangsters Try to Muscle In on Pari-Mutuels

Ted Newberry, north side gangster, is trying to muscle into the pari-mutuel betting business at Chicago race tracks, according to reports heard at Arlington Park yesterday.

J. A. Newberry, a brother of the gangster, is attempting to organize the clerks working in the pari-mutuel departments at various Chicago race tracks into a union. He is seeking the aid of members of the state legislature in perfecting the organization.

Writes to Legislators.

Signing himself as "business agent," Newberry has written members of the legislature, contending that the mutuel clerk union is not a racket but an organization to improve the working conditions of Illinois men who are employed in the pari-mutuel departments at the different Chicago tracks.

Officials of the Arlington Park Jockey club said they had heard nothing about the proposed union. However, a number of state legislators in the crowd at Arlington yesterday displayed letters signed "J. A. Newberry, business agent," which they had received.

Don't Want It, Clerks Say.

Men working in the mutuel department at Arlington said they had been asked to join the union, but most of them turned down the invitation. Newberry began work on the organization of the union at Washington Park and is reported to have assured the mutuel clerks he would have it ready to function by the time the Hawthorne season opens next month.

Crowning Glory Just that in $21,375 Arlington Victory

BY FRENCH LANE.

Running easily and bounding along like a huge rubber ball gaining more speed at every bounce, he won the Hyde Park Stakes revival, worth $21,375. It was the richest 2 year old race decided this year in America and at the finish Crowning Glory was three-quarters of a length in front of Misguide, owned by Leo J. Marks of Columbus, O. Rapscallion, another Whitney colt, but owned by C. V. Whitney, was third, a half length back of the two leaders.

MRS. JOHN HAY WHITNEY.

It was an exciting battle, made a thriller by the late dash of Misguide that had 16,000 spectators, most of whom had wagered on Crowning Glory, in a panic in the closing seconds, for Misguide was coming from far back with Jockey Allen weaving him in between and around horses to gain racing room.

Rally Comes Too Late.

Misguide found a wide patch too late to catch the flying Crowning Glory, although he was gaining at every jump near the end of the 5½ furlongs. Jockey Leishman was riding Crowning Glory hard as Misguide charged up near him but the Whitney colt still seemed to be taking things a trifle easy when the verdict was returned.

The rich 2 year old stake which attracted the largest week day crowd of the year to Arlington found nine from an overnight field of sixteen accepting the issue. Right from the beginning Crowning Glory was made the favorite for it was only a short time ago that he ran 5½ furlongs at Arlington in 1:04 1-5 to break the track record.

Very little support developed for any of the others and Red Whisk, which had been generally regarded as our champion of the west, did not muster many backers for he was at 10 to 1 in the betting. He was the big disappointment of the race as far as the western fans were concerned. He was soundly beaten most of the way and wound up in next to last place. When the start came Red Whisk romped to the front but it was only for an instant. Crowning Glory was flying ten strides after the start and rambled past Red Whisk with apparently no effort whatever.

Once in front Crowning Glory made every post a winner, although in the early stages he never was able to get far away from the Kentucky filly, Wise Anne, and the two leaders headed into the stretch heads apart. Rapscallion was traveling very wide but in third place.

The westerners cheered for Wise Anne, for it looked as if she might have the fleet Crowning Glory conquered. But Crowning Glory would not give up the fight, and early in the stretch run he had sailed out into a lead of nearly two lengths.

Jamestown Furnishes a Thrill.

Crowning Glory's time for the 5½ furlongs was 1:04 3-5, which was two-fifths slower than he ran the same distance less than two weeks ago. He carried 117 pounds, so weight is not going to stop this fellow. He was the odds-on choice in the betting, paying $3.48 to win, $2.90 to place, and $2.48 to show. Misguide was at $6.62 to place and $4.78 to show. Rapscallion's show price was $4.16.

There was another dazzling display of speed 30 minutes later when Jamestown won the City and Suburban handicap. It was also a thrilling finish. For, after running a mile in 1:34 4-5, two-fifths of a second off the world's record, Jamestown was able to beat the game and fleet Morsel by only a neck, with Sunmelus a short distance back in third place.

Jockey Workman was in the saddle on Jamestown and he forced Morsel to make a dizzy early pace. At the head of the stretch Workman gave Jamestown his head for the first time and let him run at his best clip for about three-quarters of a furlong. It was enough to conquer Morsel and once in front Jamestown was content to win by the narrowest of margins.

Jamestown was another odds on choice and paid $2.66.

Any Pork in the Barrel for Olympic Fund, Mr. Garner?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—The Stella Walsh case suggests a method by which Congressman Garner and other painless philanthropists in Washington might win the next set of Olympic games for the United States without a struggle. Miss Walsh, who is Polish and robust, and who was also unemployed, was on the point of becoming a bread and butter American, which is something on the order of the Chinese rice Christian.

If she had become an American she would have competed for the United States and doubtless would have won numerous points in the woman's foot races and also in some of the more brutal events, such as the tossing of the 56 pound weight, the 4 pound flatiron, and the 26 inch rolling pin.

Goes Shopping for a Country.

But Miss Walsh had recently lost her job in her home city of Cleveland and when the time came for the court ceremony which would have made her an American athlete she found herself in a quandary which many a college football hero will recognize. Miss Walsh went shopping around, not for an alma mater, but for a fatherland, and, though the mayor of Cleveland patriotically offered her a subsidy in the form of a municipal job, at the taxpayers' expense, the Polish consulate in New York outbid him. The American mayor's best offer was a bread and butter job, but the Polish consul topped his offer with a job that promised not only bread and butter but jowl and greens as well.

Miss Walsh decided to remain Polish and so, when she dashes past the American customers in Los Angeles next month, winning for Poland, the Americans may trouble themselves with the rueful reflection that there, but for some jowl and greens, go some points for the glory of the U. S. A.

This will mark a new low in the current depression, because up to this time it could never be said that American sport lovers were unable to provide adequate inducements for athletes.

An Old English Custom.

The custom began in England, of luring star soccer players from their natural surroundings to nominal residence elsewhere to represent the localities of their adoption on the local teams. It was taken up in the United States first in baseball, which was then gradually changing from an amateur game into a profession, and in time the practice became so general that the baseball people, who were more conscientious than the college football people of recent years, decided to turn square and admit that they were pros.

So they dropped the pretense that baseball players with plenty of spending money and no visible means of support were amateurs, and also made a frank admission that a New York team, for instance, was largely composed of players who were New Yorkers in name only. This eliminated much bookkeeping, for it permitted the club ownership to gather all the players together on one pay roll instead of scattering them about the books of grocery firms, cigar stores, wine stores, and the like as nominal employés thereof.

It's O. K. in Colleges.

In college football the custom of offering inducements, including, in some cases, much more attractive fare than jowl and greens, has been accepted for some years. The Carnegie Foundation discovered, to its own horror but to the intense calm of the country in general, that it was customary for young high school athletes with a shrewd business sense to solicit offers from various colleges and accept the best inducements which their high school reputations could command.

But this is the first case in which the United States has entered into competitive bidding against another

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Those unfriendly Brooklyn Dodgers were just mean enough to beat the Cubs, 5 to 4, yesterday, the action being especially ornery in view of the fact that the league leading Pittsburgh Pirates lost both ends of a double header to the third place Boston Braves.

Despite the embarrassment, the Cubs gained a half game on the Pirates and now are only two games out of first place. The Braves, however, again become a threat. They now are only a half game back of the Cubs and have won one more game than the Cubs.

The Cubs had a little fun for themselves from time to time in yesterday's contest, tying the score in the sixth after trailing, 3 to 0, and Manager Hornsby gave Manager Carey a scare by batting in a run and putting the tying run on third with two out in the ninth. But, after all, that was pretty slim fun, seeing as the Cubs were a run behind when the light went out.

Good Old Hack; He's the Same.

Hack Wilson, as you might expect, was one of the centers of interest. Though the pudgy one failed to get the ball out of the infield, he managed to scratch a single off Tinning's shins in the eighth to protract his batting streak through nine successive games. Afield Wilson was up to his advertised form. The first two Cub runs were effected because Mr. Wilson was seized with a case of combined sunstroke and blind staggers in seeking to capture a drive by Gabby Hartnett.

While Wilson was something of a bust, the same cannot be said of the other two Cub alumni on the Dodgers—Lefty O'Doul and Den Taylor. Lefty drove in Dan and Slade for the first two Dodger runs after two were out in the fourth, and Taylor drove in what proved to be the winning run in the seventh.

The game had a further curious interest in that it saw two of the majors' remaining three spitballers at work. Burleigh Grimes creaked onto the arena just long enough to take the rap for the loss. Jack Quinn, though old enough to be Grimes' pappy, pitched the last three innings, and showed no decreptitude of the sort that this season has plastered eight losses on the junior patriarch, Mr Grimes.

Hack Strikes Out.

The Brooklyns didn't make a hit off Smith in the first three innings, but this docility ended at the outset of the fourth. Slade opened said fourth with a single to left and stopped when Taylor also singled. The pair advanced on Stripp's sacrifice and stood at attention while Wilson was called out on strikes midst much oratory. It appeared that Smith might get out of the woods when he got two strikes past O'Doul, but Lefty lined the next one into center for a single, scoring Slade and Taylor. Cuccinello fanned.

In their fourth the Cubs thought for a minute that Thurston was melting under the eminently adequate sun. With one down the Brooklyn pitcher walked Cuyler and Stevie on nine pitches, but Barton's hot liner got caught in Wright's glove and Cuyler was an easy double play victim on Glenn's toss to Cuccinello.

The Cubs Score.

The Lady Is Top Flight in Classic Saturday.

It isn't at all certain Top Flight will rule as the favorite in the renewal of the Classic at Arlington Park on Saturday afternoon.

Faireno, the Belmont and the Dwyer stakes winner, turned in a sensational training drill over the Arlington track yesterday morning. He ran six furlongs in 1:10 4-5. There hasn't been a workout at Arlington this season to equal it. After the move Faireno backers bobbed up from every where.

At about the same time Top Flight worked the same distance in 1:12 3-5. But she was not allowed to do her best at any stage, and was pulled up at the finish. Possibly she could have galloped just as fast as Faireno did.

But the railbirds considered Faireno's move much more impressive. His easy way of going and the long stride he takes, which eats up ground, made a hit with the early watch workers.

Gusto's Classic stock also boomed when he ran a mile and a furlong in 1:51 3-5. The American Derby winner began slowly and ran the first half in :47 2-5. Then he turned on his speed and was at the end of the mile in 1:37 1-5. Trainer Max Hirsch considered it an excellent training performance and declared, "The horse that beats Gusto will win the Classic."

Col. Edward R. Bradley is going to send Bubble Up, a full brother to Bubbling Over, after the Classic pot of gold. He said so yesterday.

"I like the way this colt is coming along," Bradley said. "Maybe he can't beat horses like Faireno, Gusto or Top Flight right now, but I'm getting pretty good odds when for a $1,000 starting fee I stand a chance to win $78,000 or $80,000. I'll probably never get that kind of odds against Bubble Up again."

Most of the notables in American racing will be here for the Classic and the Post and Paddock club will be the scene of many gay parties.

Among the first to arrive were the brothers Morton L. and A. Charles Schwartz, the former being the owner of Gusto.

They arrived from their home in New York yesterday and immediately went into conference with their trainer, Max Hirsch, who reported Gusto ready to run the race of his life.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney are others coming here for the Classic. They will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Niblack. Mrs. Whitney is the owner of Stepenfetchit, another strong hope for the Classic.

William R. Coe of New York, owner of Osculator, another Classic choice, will arrive tomorrow to be on hand for the running of the 3 year old championship event. Mrs. Coe will accompany her husband here and they will remain probably a week. Mr. Coe has one of the largest stables of horses racing at Arlington.

Mrs. Margaret Amory, owner of the Sagamore stable, and her husband, Charles Amory, also will be present for the running of the Classic. Mrs. Amory hoped to send her stable here this season, but her horses did not train to expectations.

Last night there were sixteen probable starters left in the Classic field and from the hustle and bustle in the different training camps it was evident that a dozen or fifteen of them will be in the parade to the post.

OLYMPIC HEADS DECIDE AGAINST PLACING STEWART

Palo Alto, Cal., July 13.—(AP)—Although the issue will not be disposed of finally until after the American Olympic track and field tryouts have been concluded here Saturday, it appeared virtually certain today that no exemptions will be granted—or asked—in the makeup of the United States team.

The American team will stand on the performers who finish 1-2-3 in the final tests, in which approximately 200 stars from all parts of the country will compete for some 60-odd places, starting Friday.

With the case of Big Ben Eastman still the livest topic of contention, the official attitude was pretty well reflected today by disclosure that the American Olympic track and field committee, with only one dissenting vote, had decided not to reconsider Jim Stewart of Southern California as an added decathlon entry.

Stewart, who placed fourth in the 1928 Olympic all around event, did not compete in the final tryouts for the 1932 team, held at Chicago, because of proximity to the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. championships at Berkeley.

Subsequently it was urged that Stewart, on the basis of his fine record, be put on the team. As this meant displacing one of the three men—Jim Bausch, Wilson Charles, and Clyde Coffman—picked on the basis of the tryouts, the proposal was rejected. The only dissenting vote was that of Kimmer Hamilton of Los Angeles.

Sarazen, Armour Beat Willoweit, Fischer, 1 Up

Dayton, O., July 13.—(AP)—Gene Sarazen, British and American open golf champion, paired with Tommy Armour to defeat Jock Willoweit, Dayton professional, and Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, national collegiate champion, in a best ball exhibition match at the Meadowbrook Country club here today, one up on 20 holes.

YANKS BEAT BROWNS, 5-3.

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—The New York Yankees captured the final game of the series with the St. Louis Browns today, 5 to 3, as Babe Ruth's 25th home run of the season and Frank Crossetti's circuit drive brought in four runs. George Pipgras yielded the Browns seven hits, one of which was a home run by Jack Burns. Ruth's homer came in the first with Sewell aboard, while Crossetti knocked the ball into the bleachers in the fourth scoring Chapman. Score:

Earl Mastro to Do His Boxing in Vaudeville Now

Earl Mastro, former Chicago featherweight boxer, has received a vaudeville booking of thirty weeks from the Fanchon and Marco circuit of Los Angeles, Cal. Earl retired from the ring several months ago following a match with Varias Milling at Sacramento, Cal., when he was temporarily blinded.

Earl has received instructions in acting for the last two years. He appeared in several short movies which have been made at Hollywood.

Harry Dubinsky, Chicago lightweight, started training yesterday at the Arcade gymnasium for a pending match at Philadelphia Monday. He is sought as a substitute for Jack [Kid] Berg against Young Joe Firpo in the semi-final to the Tony Canzoneri-Johnny Jadick junior welterweight title bout. Berg is unable to go through with the match because of an engagement with Kid Chocolate, junior lightweight champion, at New York Monday.

West Side Jack O'Keefe, manager of Tuffy Griffith, said yesterday that he is to sign for a match between Griffith and either Paulino Uzcudun or Johnny Risko at Cleveland the latter part of this month.

Woods and Waters By Bob Becker

How much variation is there in reading a compass in order to find the true north? Is it true that you can read the mark of trees and find which way is north when you travel in the woods? A youthful outdoor fan writes us that he is puzzled by these questions. His letter in part follows:

"In one of your stories on the Boy Scout Fox river cruise I read that one of the subjects taken up on the cruise was compass reading. I have been told by a friend that a compass does not point to the true north as there is a certain amount of variation depending on where you are using the compass. Is that true?

"There is another question which this same person brought up. He said that if you were in the woods without a compass you could tell which way is north or south by the bark of the trees. The bark on the south side of the tree would be heavier than on the north. Since then I have looked at trees but I cannot tell. Please give me all the information you can about these questions.—Walter Robiesky."

It is true that in most places the north end of a compass needle does not point to the true north. Except along what is called the zero curve or agonic line the compass points to the magnetic pole, which lies south of the 90th meridian, west longitude.

Briefly the line of no variation runs in the main east of south, and it varies from year to year because it has a slow westward movement called the annual change. The United States coast and geodetic survey is prepared to give one the table of declinations for each year, which will enable one to correct a compas reading anywhere in the United States.

As for reading the bark of trees in finding your directions in the woods you have only to examine the stumps of some freshly cut trees to find that the annual rings of wood growth invariably are thickest on the north and northeast sides of trees. Moreover, it is practically axiomatic among outdoorsmen that the bark of old trees is usually thicker on the north and northeast sides of trees than on the south or west sides.

We have checked the annual growth rings of trees in several forests to confirm the fact that trees thicken up the rings on the north and northeast sides of their trunks. Unless you are traveling through a tract of timber where there have been a number of trees cut down this clue to directions will not do you much good.

Easier to read, if you know how, is the way the moss is growing on the trunks of trees which are getting exposure to sun. Moss grows heaviest on the north and northeast sides because there the moisture is retained the longest. THE TRIBUNE has published a little handbook on woodcraft which will give you considerable information on how to read the growth rings of trees and how to interpret the growth of moss on tree trunks. The handbook is entitled "Practical Woodcraft," and is distributed by the public service office of THE TRIBUNE, 1 South Dearborn street. The price is 18 cents by mail.

Evans, who had to help end the unhappy fifth, got his own share of the grief in the sixth, when three runs scored on a series of singles after the first two men had been retired. Bluege singled to center and went to third on Spencer's single to right. The latter took second on the throw to third. Both scored on a single by Weaver. Rice singled into Fothergill's territory and Weaver dashed to third. Rice immediately put on a steal of second and when Grube threw the ball into center field Weaver strolled home and Rice went to third.

The Sox had to wait until the seventh before making the third hit, but it got them out of the shutout class. It popped off Fothergill's bat with one out. Weaver then filled the bases by passing Kress and Blue. Fothergill rumbled home on Appling's fly.

The Senators also registered one in their half on three singles. Then the Sox put on their heaviest firing of the day. They registered a couple in the eighth on a triple by Funk, an infield out, and Seeds' homer, which rolled into the right center field corner. The Senators didn't pay any attention to Kress, who singled in the ninth and worked around to the plate on a couple of outs.

4 GOLF STARS TO PLAY SUNDAY IN EXHIBITION TILT

Joe Kirkwood and Jock Hutchison will play Dexter Cummings and George Smith in an exhibition golf match at Onwentsia club next Sunday afternoon.

Dick Hanley, Northwestern university football coach, spoke of the new football rules last night at the annual stag and dinner of the Kildeer Country club. There were also several boxing matches. Kenneth L. Wilson, Northwestern athletic director and president of Kildeer, and other officials discussed plans for the annual Kildeer Karnival.

Boston Next for Sox; Gaston Will Pitch in Opener

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—The White Sox departed this evening for Boston, where they hope to find cool weather and a few victories. Milt Gaston will pitch the opener of a three game series there tomorrow. Bob Weiland may be his opponent.

Dave Harris, who since Carl Reynolds was slugged by Dickey, has been playing right field for the Senators, was found guilty today on a charge of not hitting. He was benched and the place given to Sam Rice, the patriarch. Harris got into the affair later with several other second string performers.

What the Sox need more than any one thing is a good outfielder, several of which are available by purchase from the class AA minors. With a man of that kind Fonseca might be able to stabilize his lineup.

The management will award a prize to anybody who can figure out a spot in which to play young Billy Sullivan. The kid has tried everything and merely goes from bad to worse. The Senators in a couple of days bunted him right out of his third base job. Bill may turn to catching as his last hope.

Red Kress was on third today, the change was made as the result of strange fielding Sullivan and Selph had displayed at the hot corner for several days. Kress had only a few chances, but he handled them flawlessly. He threw out one man on a difficult bunt and snared a hard grounder that probably would have been a double if he hadn't been there.

circles. The ball eventually fell for a double, Grimm stopping at third. Hack flied to Wilson, Grimm scoring and Hartnett taking third after the catch. Gudat batted for Smith and grounded out to Cuccinello, Hartnett scoring. Herman was called out on strikes.

Grimes pitched the sixth and the Dodgers didn't get the ball out of the infield. After which the Cubs came to bat and tied the score after two were out. After English and Cuyler had been disposed of, Stephenson doubled to left and came home with the run which made the count 3 to 3.

The Dodger seventh was brutal. Grimes walked Cuccinello then Wright singled to right, Tony taking third. Mr. Grimes then pitched the baseball so Sukeforth could hit a single to left. This scored Cuccinello and put Wright on second. It also put Grimes on the patch to the bathhouse. Jakie May coming in. Frederick batted for Thurston and flied to Barton.

Slade then came through with his third hit, a single off Hack's glove, which had appeared to be labeled for a double. Wright was sure that the ball had gone to left field, and he rounded third before the information was conveyed to him that the ball had caromed off Hack's glove to English.

Taylor Cracks One.

English threw to Hartnett to turn back Wright and Sukeforth reached third at the same time, where both were tagged by Hartnett, Sukeforth being called out. Danny Taylor, however, nullified some of the pleasure at this break by doubling to left center, scoring Wright with the fat run that meant victory.

And here is the record of the Cub threat in the ninth. Hartnett walked, with two down, and Hemsley ran for him. Moore batted for Hack and beat out an infield single, Hemsley stopping at second. Hornsby singled to left, scoring Hemsley and putting Moore on third. The game ended when Herman tapped to Cuccinello.

BUSH VS. VANCE TODAY

Guy Bush will be after No. 10 in behalf of himself and the Cubs this afternoon in the second of the Brooklyn series. Dazzy Vance will preside for the visitors.

Sloppy Thurston, yesterday's winning pitcher, has won seven of his last eight starts. He lost two in relief rôles, won six as a starting performer, lost one and then came back to get credit for yesterday's win.

The Dodgers now are one up on the Cubs in the season series. They have won five out of nine.

Bill Jurges, Cubs' shortstop who recently caught a couple of bullets from a cute little .22, yesterday worked out in uniform for the first time. No announcement as to the date of his return.

Chide Hack Wilson all you want, but he still is a mighty popular little man in this town. Many cheers greeted his every appearance at the plate, even including his turns in batting practice.

A chance to see a number of Finland's most famous athletes will be provided Chicagoans Saturday afternoon when members of the Finnish squad, on their way to Los Angeles, work out at Dyche stadium after the tryouts for the United States women's track and field Olympic squad.

Forty-one representatives of Finland will be guests at the meet, and will give exhibitions in their specialties. Among those who will perform are Matti Jarvinen, holder of the world's record in the javelin; Paavo Yrjola, Olympic and world's decathlon champion, and V. Pernola, winner of the 1924 Olympic shot put.

Entries for the women's meet closed yesterday with 206 athletes representing 12 states, entered. Out of this number 18 will be chosen as members of the United States Olympic team.

Sweet Captures Low Net with 72.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Jack Westland, the slim blond from Sunset Ridge who was runner up in the national amateur championship tournament at Beverly last year, visited the Beverly battleground yesterday and shot himself a 74, three over par, to win the Chicago District Golf association's fourth handicap event. Jack was not alone, for 170 others from practically every club in the district, a new record for the association fields, also battled par and the heat.

Westland's score brought him the low gross prize. Art Sweet of Ridgemoor led the low net winners with 78—3—72. The golfing journalist's gross card was matched by Johnny Lehman of Olympia Fields, former western amateur champion, who had 37—38—75, a six on the last hole preventing him from tieing Westland.

Others who carried away low net prizes included Jack Hutchison, son of Glen View's Jock, who had 77—4—73; Hank Hafer of Flossmoor, with 79—6—73, and Harold Burnham, Calumet's president, who came home with 83—10—73, and might have had a net of 72 if he hadn't overshot the eighteenth green. John McKinlay Jr., president of the C. D. G. A., who competed from Beverly, turned up with a 79—5—74, one of the few in the field to break 80.

Sullivan Scores Ace.

Among other features of the program was a hole in one by Dr. S. J. Sullivan of Casa del Mar on the 110 yard twelfth, the course's only water hole, and the sudden demise of a gopher, who was dispatched by a shot from the club of J. Soule Waterfield, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, on the eighteenth fairway.

Par—Out	453	443	544—36
Par—In	353	444	435—35—71
Westland—Out	452	553	554—38
Westland—In	354	444	435—36—74
Sweet—Out	453	334	545—36
Sweet—In	453	444	645—39—75
Lehman—Out	354	453	445—37
Lehman—In	542	454	536—38—75

Westland barely missed an ace on the 328 yard third, laying his tee shot three inches from the pin for a birdie two. He was over par on the next hole, where he took three to get down from the edge of the green, and on the fifth, where he was bunkered. He matched par to the eighth, where he was in the tall grass, and played the card the rest of the way home except on the 12th, where he was bunkered again.

Last Three Ruin Art.

Sweet's best nine was his first, a par 36, due to consecutive birdies on the fourth and fifth, on the first of which he dropped in a thirty foot putt. It was Art's finish of 6-4-5 which finally eliminated him. Lehman birdied the first hole with a five foot putt, but was in a trap at the third and hooked his second shot to the fifth. He drew another birdie on the seventh, but was over the ninth green. He found another trap at the tenth, but evened it up with a pair of birdies on the 11th and 12th. He was short of the fourteenth green, missed a five footer on the 16th, and took three from the edge of the eighteenth green.

Golden Glove Puzzle: Who Is 'Karo-Line'

jabbing left, but Baltzer bored in with determination. Because of Henry Rothler's layoff, although he has practically recovered from a touch of fever, Laddie Tonelli has taken on Charley Neigo. Neigo, the middleweight champion, weighs around 155 pounds. Laddie still is five pounds over the lightweight limit.

The other two 160 pounders, Tony Sutton and Bill Connell, have been sharpshooting for Johnny Phagan, the welterweight. And Phagan, who announced he was in condition after the first morning on the road, has had to duck several times in a hurry to escape the flurry of punches.

The big boys bring down the house when they begin thumping. Adolph Winter and Vernon Miller, rival light heavyweights, and Adam Smith and Duffy Dvonch, the heavyweights, are the headliners. Admission should be charged for their daily encounters, but isn't, of course, and consequently the crowds are increasing each afternoon.

They Near Weight.

Making weight won't bother most of the squad for nearly all are in fine condition and within striking distance of their classes. The exceptions are Rothler, who hasn't had a chance to start his training, and Rodak, who may not attempt to get down to 118 pounds. In that case, Leo is scheduled for the featherweight class. Following are the weights taken from the chart after the boxing drills:

126 pounds—Frank May, 128; George Haberski, 125.
135 pounds—Laddie Tonelli, 140.
147 pounds—John Phagan, 154.
160 pounds—Charles Neigo, 153; William Connell, 162; Tony Sutton, 162.
Heavyweight—Adam Smith, 214; Duffy Dvonch, 190.

The camp laundry was shipped last week. Each boy was required to check his clothes.

Winter has joined Jabber Young in the room reserved for victims of sunburn. The blond, fair skinned Winter now is a brilliant crimson, which after all simplified the treatment, since he and Jabber reciprocate in coating each other with olive oil.

Rodak and Tonelli, who room together, have declared war. A broken screen in their room permitted an invasion of a mosquito army. The easiest course would be to change rooms, but the boys have a corner location and have refused to give it up. So last night [the screen not being replaced] they unlimbered and bare handed slaughtered the visitors.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 13.—With a blazing sun beating down on the greens and fairways of the Ozaukee Country club course, Miss June Beebe shot an 84 today to score her second victory in her drive for a second consecutive Western Women's open golf championship.

Miss Beebe, representing the Olympia Fields Country club of Chicago, triumphed over a clubmate, Mrs. H. W. Tupper, in the second round, 5 and 4. Miss Beebe will meet Miss Frances Hadfield, St. Augustine, Fla., who is representing the Blue Mound club of Milwaukee, tomorrow.

Miss Hadfield advanced to the third round by triumphing over Mrs. J. W. Taylor, Evanston, Ill. Miss Hadfield took an early lead and the match ended on the 13th green, Miss Hadfield winning by 6 and 5.

Iowa's champion, Miss Lucille Robinson of Des Moines, entered the third round with a brilliant victory over Mrs. Hayes Dansingburry, Rochester, Minn., who has held the Minnesota state championship five times, 3 and 2. Miss Robinson is paired with Miss Jane Weiller, Chicago district champion, tomorrow.

Miss Weiller eliminated another leading golfer of the Chicago district, Mrs. Lillian Zech, 6 and 5. The final match for the title will be played Friday.

PARKER DEFEATS SPENCER, 6-0, 6-1, AT LOUISVILLE

Louisville, Ky., July 13.—(AP)—Led by Frank Parker, Milwaukee, who defeated Charles Spencer, Louisville, 6-0 6-1, all seeded players moved into the singles quarter-finals of the Kentucky state tennis tournament today.

SPRINGFIELD GETS DANVILLE 3-EYE LEAGUE CHARTER

Decatur, Ill., July 13.—(AP)—The Danville franchise of the Three Eye league has been transferred to Springfield for the remainder of the season, it was announced today following a meeting in St. Louis between President L. J. Wylie of the Three Eye league; President Claude Barr of the Springfield Fans association, and officials of the St. Louis National league club. The St. Louis club operates the Danville franchise.

Watty Holm, former Cardinal utility man, will be the new manager of the Springfield club, replacing Elmer Yoter who has had charge of the Danville club this season. The entire Danville club will be transferred to Springfield and combined with the club which represented Springfield so far this season. The new manager, it is said, plans to retain five Springfield players.

The four clubs in the Three Eye league, Peoria, Terre Haute, Ind., Quincy, and Springfield will start play on a new schedule tomorrow.

DON'T UNDERRATE GERMANS, WARNS BERLIN WRITER

derrate the German amateurs. Germany has more than 1,000 amateur fighting clubs, with more than 500,000 amateur boxers. It has taken months to pick the best eight in elimination tournaments. Show me the professional who has to go through such a gruelling test before receiving championship recognition.

I have not seen the Chicago boxers train yet, and not until I visit them at their training camp at Lake Wawasee, Ind., today will I be able to appraise our chances on July 26. However, I want to warn you not to underrate these German champions. Not one has had less than seventy important fights, and several have had more than 200. When a man has that many fights he knows his business.

ALL ABOUT ZIGLARSKI

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. EUROPA, July 13.—Hans Ziglarski, German amateur bantamweight champion and one of the eight boxers enroute to Chicago for the International Golden Gloves bouts on July 26, is nicknamed Little Goat. The story of Ziglarski's start in boxing goes with that sobriquet.

He told it today while he was stretched out on a rubbing table in the ship's gymnasium, after the German champions had sparred two rounds each against the Austrian Olympic boxing team and had taken a short workout around the decks of the giant liner.

It starts in Wedding Square, Berlin's counterpart of Chicago's Valley and New York's Hell Kitchen. Here bands of brigands slink in and out of dark doorways and good people detour to escape the dimly lighted streets.

The Goat Scores a K. O.

When Hans was 16 years old—ten years ago—he had to pass through Wedding Square on his way home nights from the grocery store in which he worked after school. He was a scholarly little fellow, slender of build and mild of manner, the perfect butt for hoodlum ridicule. The Wedding Square kids picked on him relentlessly. So people called him the Little Goat.

"It got to be unbearable," Hans said. "So I decided to learn something about the art of self defense. I went to the Sportclub Alt Wedding, a short distance from my home, and began a course of study. Two weeks later as I walked through Wedding Square, a big butcher shop clerk and his gang started after me.

"I got ready for his attack and when he got close enough I struck for his chin just as the meister had taught me. He fell like a stone. For some reason the rest of his gang cheered instead of continuing the attack. After that I took more interest in my boxing lessons and entered several tournaments. And look what it got me. A trip to Chicago—the chance of a lifetime."

Wins 175 of 208 Fights.

Since that time, Ziglarski has had 208 fights, winning 175, losing 28, and boxing 10 draws. Seventy-eight of his victories have been knockouts. One of the triumphs was over Eddie Beloise of New York at the Berlin Sportpalast last year when a team of United States A. A. U. champions toured the continent. Since then he has beaten the European champion, Sneckest of Budapest, and the champion of Italy, Redrigez.

He was a member of the German Olympic team in 1928, losing an extra round bout to Glionna of Canada in the semi-finals.

Brother a Boxer, Too.

He is the oldest of three brothers. The youngest, Fritz, is a factory worker, and although only 18 years old, has become well known as a bantamweight boxer, winning his first 10 bouts.

Hans is considered one of Germany's best bets against the Chicago Golden Glove boxers. The German boys are ticklers for condition and Ziglarski is no exception. He drinks no beer; he doesn't like coffee and tea, and makes water and hot milk suffice.

Today's two drills included an hour of gym work in the morning, some shadow boxing and for those members of the squad a little dubious about their weight, some heavy bag pulling. In the afternoon, the men were sent around the decks twice as the liner nosed through choppy waves toward mid-ocean. Each boxer then sparred two rounds. Hans Kohlhas, the heavyweight, nearly knocked out his Austrian opponent in the first round, and then eased up.

Shuffle Board Finalists.

Erich Campe, the 19 year old police cadet and welterweight champion, and Franz Kartz, lightweight title holder, have made two unsuccessful attempts to master shuffleboard on deck, but will play tomorrow for the championship of the squad, they having been admitted to the final bracket by default. The other boxers hold the game too childish.

IRISH DAIL SPEEDS REPRISALS FOR BRITAIN'S TARIFF

BULLETIN.

DUBLIN, July 14 (Thursday).—(AP)—A rumor that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain had intervened in the dispute between Britain and the Irish Free State with an offer which might end the trouble between them was circulated in Dublin early today. The cabinet of President De Valera met early this morning.

DUBLIN, July 13.—(AP)—The Irish Free State intends to meet the new British duties on its goods with a retaliatory tariff of its own against Great Britain, it was announced tonight.

WM. T. COSGRAVE.

The Free State cabinet decided to launch the tariff war by introducing an emergency bill in the dail eireann tomorrow to deal with the situation created by British duties of 20 per cent ad valorem on the principal Free State products, such as live-stock, dairy products, bacon, and pork.

The British duties were imposed to recoup losses to the British treasury sustained through the Free State's default of land annuity payments, the government of President Eamon De Valera having failed to make a half yearly payment of £1,500,000 (approximately $7,500,000 at par) at the end of June.

Pass Bill This Week.

The bill, which would be rushed into law before the dail's summer recess begins at the end of this week, would confer on the executive council the same powers as the British government obtained from parliament, it was officially stated. The council would be enabled to impose duties of an unspecified amount on any particular description of goods imported into the Irish Free State.

He declared that so far as his government was concerned the decision to demand an international tribunal for arbitration of the land annuities dispute was irrevocable. [The British government has insisted on an empire tribunal.]

William T. Cosgrave, the predecessor of Eamon de Valera as president of the Free State, characterized the situation as appalling.

"Ireland no longer is going to be the kitchen garden of England," he said. "If England wants a fight, England can have a fight."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, July 13.—An unprecedented rush for live-stock and dairy produce by shippers occurred at Irish ports today in order to avoid the British 20 per cent duties.

FLEUKER, FREED IN BANK HOLDUP, IS REARRESTED

Rheinhold Fleuker of Burlington, Wis., was found not guilty of robbing the Flossmoor State bank by a jury in Judge James J. Kelly's court last night. He was not set free, however, for immediately after the verdict Charles H. Bolte of the Indiana crime bureau served a warrant charging participation in the robbery of the City State bank of Hartford City, Ind. He was led back to the county jail to await extradition proceedings.

The case was given to the jury at 8:15 p. m. The principal witness against Fleuker was Miss Lael Rogers of Joliet, an employé of the bank, who said she was ordered to lie on the floor by Fleuker, who threatened her with a pistol. Two other witnesses failed to identify him.

His mother, Mrs. Barbara Fleuker, and a sister, Mrs. Laura Blanchard, testified Fleuker was with them in Racine on the day of the robbery, Sept. 12, 1931.

LINDBERGH CASE "SUSPECT" SLAIN BY GANGMEN FOE

Body of Victim Sunk in East River.

New York, July 13.—[Special.]—Abie Wagner, the beer runner and dope peddler who was supposed to have been sought far and wide for many weeks while the Lindbergh kidnaping investigation was at its height, was killed two months ago, his body sunk in a barrel of cement and the heavy casting finally sunk in the East river, it was learned today.

The New Jersey state police never did actually want Wagner or Harry Fleischer, whose name was linked with his, for questioning. Although for many weeks the daily bulletins issued by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the state police, chronicled the progress of the "search" for Wagner and Fleischer, they used both names merely as a smoke screen to direct attention from the real course of the investigation.

Wagner was murdered two months ago as a result of a gangland double cross, it was learned. The New Jersey state police have investigated the circumstances of his death and burial and are convinced that he was killed by gang enemies and disposed of in that ingenious way.

After he was shot, his body was plunged in a large barrel of semi-liquid cement and after this had hardened the wooden sides were knocked off and the heavy casting was carried out into the East river in a rum boat and dropped overboard.

Wagner was in the beer business on the lower east side and had a side line of dope selling that at one time got him into trouble with the late Arnold Rothstein when he impinged on Rothstein's business.

Has Narrow Escapes.

He was 40 years old when his career came to an end and only extreme good luck preserved him alive that long. Early in February of last year he drove up to 66 Suffolk street and stepped out just as a pair of machine guns broke loose in the second story window of a house across the street. He leaped for a doorway and escaped.

The very next day he had his second escape from death. He was spending the night with his younger brother, Al Wagner, in East 29th street, when an execution squad broke into the rooms and sprayed them with machine guns. Al Wagner was killed and some of the others wounded.

Mrs. Delphine Richard, Who Sang for Lincoln, Dies

Mrs. Delphine Richard, 75 years old, died yesterday in her home at 12127 Eggleston avenue. She survived by only five days her husband, Louis, 86. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the Mount Hope cemetery chapel. Mrs. Richard is survived by three sons, Hector, Adolphe, and Leopold Richard. She often told her children of meeting Abraham Lincoln in St. Anne, Ill., where he served as legal adviser for the next door neighbor of her father. Three years old at the time, she often climbed to Lincoln's knee to sing for him and received a penny for each song, Mrs. Richards said.

Patrick Cahill, Resident 67 Yrs., Dies; Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services for Patrick Cahill, a resident of Chicago for 67 years, will be held tomorrow at 9 a. m. from the residence of a daughter, Mrs. Nora Schroeder, 7343 South Claremont avenue, to the Nativity of Our Lord church, 37th street and Union avenue. Mr. Cahill, who was 93 years old, died Tuesday at the Little Company of Mary hospital after an illness of two months. He was a native of Ireland and came to Chicago in 1865. For 45 years he operated a saloon at 35th street and Parnell avenue. He is survived by a son, three daughters, fifteen grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Zila Koehne, 56, Wife of Studio Owner, Dies

Mrs. Zila Koehne, 55 years old, died yesterday after a week's illness in her home at 917 Castlewood terrace. She was the wife of William Louis Koehne of the Koehne photography studios. Two sons, Jack and Perry, also survive her. The body will be taken to Trenton, Mo., today for burial.

WIFE, FOUR OTHERS SENTENCED IN PLOT TO MURDER HUSBAND

Charleston, W. Va., July 13.—[Special.]—The state of West Virginia closed its accounts today with five persons indicted for conspiracy in a plot to take the life of Charles G. Parsons, Du Pont Chemical plant foreman, so that his wife could collect his $7,000 insurance and marry another.

Of the five, four, including Parsons' wife, Leota, 35, are under sentence. The fifth is on five years' probation. Mrs. Parsons, convicted by a jury in 15 minutes yesterday for conspiracy to kill her husband, was sentenced to three years in prison by Judge Henry K. Black. She was granted a 30 day stay to appeal.

Today the two remaining ones to be tried, Ernest Folden and Ross Liptok, entered pleas of guilty to being aids in the plot, Folden getting two years in prison and Liptok the probation term.

Edgar C. [Blackie] Belcher, Mrs. Parsons' sweetheart, who is charged with originating the plot, was convicted just prior to her trial and was sentenced to two and one-half years. L. C. Swift, whom Mrs. Parsons named in her confession to state police as the intended killer, pleaded guilty to conspiracy and received two years. He admitted that Mrs. Parsons gave him $13 to buy a gun in Belcher's presence.

Parsons, who steadfastly refused to believe in his wife's guilt, aided her during her trial and posted her $3,000 for her release during her appeal. They still live together.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 13.—In a stampede which followed a cry of "Fire," eighteen children were killed and fifty were injured in the Esmeralda theater at Talcahuano naval base today. The fire was confined to the projection booth and was extinguished quickly.

About 300 children were attending the special children's matinée at the theater. When the cry arose boys and girls leaped from the balcony to the main floor and others jammed the doors. Deaths were from trampling and falls. None was burned. The victims were children of families stationed at the naval base.

Fergus Hume, Noted Writer of Detective Yarns, Dies

THUNDERSLEY, Essex, England, July 13.—Fergus Hume, noted writer of detective tales, died today at the age of 73. While a solicitor's clerk in Australia, he wrote "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," which he sold for 50 pounds ($250) and of which half a million copies have been sold. He wrote 138 novels, some of the best known being "Aladdin in London," "The Dwarf's Chamber," "The Bishop's Secret," "The Crime of the Crystal," "The Whispering Lane," and "The Caravan Mystery."

FREE WOUNDED YOUTH.

Unable to disprove the story of Clarence Steafiro, 20 years old, 1605 South Wood street, that he had been shot by a group of boys, police released him yesterday. Steafiro was found wounded near his home and it was believed he was shot in a robbery.

ORDERS DURAND QUIZZED TODAY ON KIDNAP PLOT

Captives Arraigned; Held in Jail.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Waukegan ordered last night that Jack Durand, foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Durand of Lake Bluff, be questioned today regarding his negotiations with the gang which threatened to kidnap his daughter, Patricia, for a $50,000 ransom.

Assistant State's Attorney Wilfred E. Hall, who is in charge of prosecution of Pete Cunniff and Joseph Verdico, alleged members of the gang, will take Durand's testimony. Cunniff and Verdico were arrested Tuesday at Mrs. Durand's Crab Tree farm just north of Lake Bluff.

Police Tell of Meetings.

Chicago detectives who made the arrest said that Durand had several meetings with members of the gang, both in Chicago and in Lake Bluff. Durand refused yesterday to discuss these incidents, and has not yet identified Cunniff and Verdico, although his wife did so.

The two prisoners were arraigned yesterday at Waukegan on charges of conspiracy.

Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt set bond for each at $20,000 and sent them back to the Lake county jail when they were unable to furnish it. They will be given a preliminary hearing July 21.

Calls Himself an Organizer.

Cunniff, who has a long record of arrests in Chicago in connection with labor racketeering and bombings, told Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county that he was a union organizer. He denied that he had ever served a prison term. Verdico gave his occupation as that of a carpenter.

The pair were arrested after Chicago detectives had maintained surveillance for a month over a gang which was attempting to extort money from young Durand. Deputy Chief of Detectives Walter Storms expressed the belief that the money was to provide a defense fund for two ex-convicts, Frank Dzan and Fred Lorimer, who were prison mates of Durand when he served a penitentiary term for robbery.

Police Chief Eugene E. Spaid of Lake Bluff, who participated with detectives from Chicago in the arrests Tuesday, was dismissed by Sheriff Tiffany from his post as a nonsalaried deputy sheriff. The sheriff said he took the action because Spaid knew about the plot three months ago and had not informed him regarding the case.

SHOT BY HIS FATHER.

James Curtis Jr., 31 years old, a Negro, was shot and slightly wounded yesterday by his father in an argument in their home at 138 West 45th place. The father, who is 56 years old, was sought by police.

PROF. U. S. GRANT AND WIFE HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Prof. Ulysses S. Grant, head of the department of geology at Northwestern university, and Mrs. Grant both received broken collar bones yesterday when their automobile overturned on a highway east of Valparaiso, Ind. Their daughter, Miss Lois Grant, who was driving the car, received minor injuries.

A coroner's jury yesterday held Robert Aulston, 5102 South State street, a Negro, to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter growing out of the death of Miss Katherine Ardanas, 19 years old, of Rockdale in an automobile accident July 4.

Aulston, driving a truck in which members of a Negro baseball team were riding, sideswiped the car in which Miss Ardanas was riding on the Lincoln highway near Central avenue, it was testified at the inquest. The smaller car overturned.

There were three automobile fatalities in Cook county yesterday, increasing the toll since Jan. 1 to 590. The victims:

Sophie Romez, 5 years old, 1036 Newberry avenue. Crushed to death in front of her home by a motor truck.

Joseph Schleicher, 30 years old, 1137 North Karlov avenue. Died at the Wheeling hospital from injuries sustained June 18, when the car in which he was riding with three companions overturned in a ditch near Wheeling.

Alonzo Cox, colored, 53 years old, 741 East 48th street. Died at the County hospital from hurts incurred June 15, when he was struck by an auto at 48th street and Evans avenue.

A New York Central train struck an automobile at the Calumet avenue crossing in Whiting, Ind., early this morning, killing a man and seriously injuring a woman. She is Mrs. Dorothy Lambert, 26 years old, of 15119 Lexington avenue, Harvey. She was taken to St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond. She said the man killed was her husband, James Lambert, son of A. M. Lambert, editor and publisher of the Harvey Tribune. Confusion as to his identity occurred at first because the license on the car was issued to George Zimmerman of 15514 Lexington avenue, Harvey. Zimmerman, however, was not in the car. It was learned that he had loaned his license to Lambert last Sunday.

Funeral to Be Held Today for Mrs. Mary A. Berry, 95

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary A. Berry, 95 years old, will be held today at her home at 4438 Woodlawn avenue, with burial in Oakwoods cemetery. Mrs. Berry, who died Tuesday, is survived by four children, six grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren. She had lived in Chicago 50 years.

ARRAIGN WOMAN AFTER HER CAR INJURES CHILD

Miss May Romano, 24 years old, 2905 Diversey parkway, appeared in Traffic court before Judge Leon Edelmann yesterday to answer charges of reckless driving and of leaving the scene of an accident. The police charged that she drove her car through a roped off playground in Cambridge avenue, between Oak street and Chicago avenue, on Monday evening, and seriously injured Mary Rizzo, 3 years old, 903 Milton avenue.

Miss Romano was arrested a few blocks from the accident. She demanded a jury trial, which was set for July 20 in jury court, but one witness, Margaret Comerati, told Judge Edelman that Miss Romano was driving 70 miles an hour when she went through the blockade and into a crowd of children. Miss Romano said she stopped her car and the children gathered around it.

The judge said the evidence indicated recklessness and raised Miss Romano's bond from $1,000 to $10,900. He also reprimanded her for driving without either a city or a state license.

Mrs. Anna M. Stude Venn's Funeral to Be Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Marie Stude Venn, 63 years old, who died Tuesday at her home, 433 Wrightwood avenue, will be held tomorrow at 9 a. m. at St. Clement's church. She was the wife of Dr. Augustus E. Venn. Besides her husband, she is survived by seven daughters and two sons—Mrs. Hazel Dodge, Mrs. Lottie Rogers, Mrs. Theodore Schaefer, Clementine A. Venn, Mrs. Marguerite Moore, Ferdinanda, Laura, Augustus F., and Ferdinand C. Venn. Interment will be at St. Boniface cemetery.

REPLACE BONDS OF 1430 LAKE SHORE DRIVE

Reduce Interest; Extend Maturity.

BY AL CHASE.

With the issuance of $1,000,000 of first mortgage sinking fund gold bonds by the 1430 Lake Shore Drive Building corporation, another step in the reorganization of the twenty-four story apartments on the Gold Coast has been taken. The original bond issue of $1,100,000, underwritten by the Garard Trust company, carried 6 per cent interest. The new issue, to replace the $1,090,000 now outstanding, will pay 4 per cent annually for the first four years and 5 per cent for the balance of the fifteen year term. The maturity of the loan has been extended from Sept. 1, 1940, to March 1, 1947.

ALDIS J. BROWNE.

Ogden Building.

Another step in the reorganization of the eight story Ogden building property, at the southwest corner of Clark and Lake streets, was taken yesterday when title was conveyed by the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, as trustee for Robert Goldstein and Joseph F. Robineau to Harry G. Zimmerman as nominee of the Bondholders' Protective committee. The property is 80x80 and is improved with one of the loop's oldest structures. It was extensively remodeled and modernized a few years ago. It has stores on the first floor and offices above.

The property is security for a $600,000 first mortgage bond issue underwritten by the Metropolitan Securities corporation, composed of interests identified with the Cochran & McCluer company, Lackner, Butz & Co., and Huszagh, Musson & Co. At the time of default last fall this issue had been reduced to $576,000. Approximately 80 per cent of the bondholders are reported to have deposited their securities. The plan of reorganization will be announced later.

Plan of reorganization of the 5238 Woodlawn avenue apartment property has been announced by Harold C. Bull, secretary of the Bondholders' Protective committee. This will be effected by a liquidating trust, certificates of beneficial interest in which will be distributed to bondholders who deposit their securities. This was a Wollenberger & Co. issue.

At the present time the property is subject to the following indebtedness: $120,000 first mortgage bonds; $40,000 second mortgage bonds; 1928 taxes amounting to $2,025, of which $1,000 have been paid on account and the balance is pending upon objection; 1929 taxes, $2,430; 1930 taxes, $2,664, and 1931 taxes. The building contains forty-five furnished suites, thirty-three of which were occupied on May 31, 1932. Newton C. Farr heads the Bondholders' Protective committee. The members are: William H. Colvin, Harry F. Prussing, John J. Duffin, and Theodore L. Grot-Brown, Fox & Blumberg are attorneys.

CORN LEADING; PRICES OF OTHER GRAINS HIGHER

Lack of Profit Taking Helps.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Higher prices were made for all grains in Chicago and all other markets. There was little increase in the outside buying, but there was a reduction in the selling pressure from profit takers and hedges. A general evening up prevailed with the close around the outside prices. Wheat in Chicago ranged from ⅜@½c higher. Corn led the upturn in all grains for a time with the close 1⅛@1½c higher.

Oats made a net advance of ⅜@⅝c, and rye ⅝@⅞c. Advances in outside markets were about the same as in Chicago. It was not so easy to buy grains as the markets gave evidence of having been undersold, particularly in corn.

Liverpool Cables Better.

Wheat had a start from the strong tone of the Liverpool cables which were up sharply. Chicago opened higher in response. At times shorts found it more difficult to get in without bidding prices up. Northwestern and southwestern interests were buyers in Chicago, the former buying being based on reports of high temperatures with the spring wheat in the milk or early dough stage, which would shrivel the berry. Conditions all over the American and Canadian northwest have been almost perfect and any change must be in the way of crop deterioration. Nothing was said about export business, although the inquiry was reported to the seaboard as improved.

Hedging pressure from all quarters was lighter and spreading operations were on a smaller scale. Receipts in the southwest were fair, but materially under last year's, the grain going to mills and elevator interests, especially the former. One of the surprises of the day was the advance in corn, which for a time started the buying of wheat and created a decidedly better tone. At the finish July was 47¾c, with September 49⅝@49⅞c and December 52⅝@52¾c.

Corn Market Oversold.

It was difficult to buy corn a good part of the day without an advance in prices. It is believed that the market has been oversold of late on the good crop prospect with covering of a good sized line of short September, combined with an absence of pressure, particularly on July; also liberal shipments from here made it easy to advance futures with the close well toward the top. July 31¼c, September 33@33⅜c, and December 32⅞@32¾c. Cash markets were stronger and country holders sold 225,000 bu of cash corn to arrive in Chicago within the near future. Crop reports were generally about perfect.

Oats came in for better support, with commission houses and locals on the buying side and without any pressure from sellers. The close was at 19⅝c for July, 19⅝c for September, and 21⅛c for December.

Kreuger Debts Rated at Over 125 Million

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—The New York stock exchange made public today a series of communications received by the committee on stock list regarding the Kreuger & Toll Co., reported for the information of the governing committee of the exchange. These data comprised the report of the committee of investigation at Stockholm, the petition of bankruptcy for the company and other information relating to that case.

The committee of investigation, which includes Martin Hehr, E. Browaldh, B. G. Prytz, Hugo Stenbeck and J. Wallenberg, on May 20 reported that its examination showed that the Kreuger & Toll Co. had a claim of not less than 200,000,000 kroner or about $50,000,000, on the estate of the late Ivar Kreuger.

Kreuger Debts About $125,000,000.

Upon investigation of the estate itself, in coöperation with its administrators, it was disclosed that Kreuger personally had debts of at least 500,000,000 kroner, or about $125,000,000, in addition to indirect liabilities of about 400,000,000 kroner, or $100,000,000. The assets, apart from certain personal property, consist of claims and deposits and a large portfolio of shares in various concerns, most of which are pledged.

A provisional consolidated balance sheet as of March 31, of Kreuger & Toll shows total liabilities of 1,038,791,000 kroner, or about $259,700,000; other liabilities in the form of gurantees and other engagements, and total assets of 352,291,000 kroner, or about $88,073,000, including the 200,000,000 kroner claim on the Kreuger estate.

Lists Bank Debts, Too.

A provisional statement of debts of the Kreuger estate as of March 31, shows 155,000,000 kroner bank debts, 12,000,000 kroner accounts payable, and 350,000,000 kroner owed to companies belonging to the Kreuger & Toll group, or a total of 517,000,000 kroner. Other liabilities, such as guarantees and other engagements, are estimated at not less than 430,000,000 kroner. Both statements were drawn up by Price, Waterhouse & Co. of London with emphasis on their provisional character.

Oscar W. Ehrhorn, referee in bankruptcy in the International Match corporation proceedings, signed an order today authorizing the sale of $250,000 worth of trustee certificates bearing 5 per cent interest to the Chase National bank and the Guarantee company, each purchasing $125,000 worth of certificates.

Favorable Credit Reports.

New York, July 13.—(AP)—Favorable credit reports on the Kreuger & Toll company made by representatives of domestic and foreign banks and a "glowing report" by R. G. Dun & Co. were introduced today at a hearing before Henry K. Davis, referee in bankruptcy.

Creditors of the Krueger & Toll company, one of the late Ivar Krueger's interests, are seeking a receivership. The Dun report was confidential and was not made public.

Nicholas Murphy, assistant cashier of the Chase National bank, testified credits were extended to Krueger & Toll by the bank on the basis of the favorable reports received from Dun and other companies.

He was questioned on reports in the bank's credit department extending back as far as 1920.

"The Krueger & Toll company is under very responsible and capable management," a foreign representative of the Chase bank reported in 1927, "and in spite of foreign operations the company is fully good for its engagements."

TRADE EVENTS SHOW BUSINESS IS CARRYING ON

Two Large Utility Issues Offered.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Further improvement in the prices of bonds and a number of commodities and the offering of two large issues of utility bonds yesterday indicated that an increasing proportion of the business and financial community are out to carry on their customary pursuits in the normal way.

On the live stock exchange cattle prices took the lead and at $9.75 established a new top since January. At yesterday's high cattle were $2.10 above the top price three weeks ago. Hog prices receded slightly again yesterday. Butter futures registered good gains.

Increases in commodity prices are particularly encouraging because they seem to be the logical result of economic developments.

For a long time producers, needing cash, have been selling at low prices. They have cleared out their reserves and now that the available supplies are less than the demand prices are rebounding.

Receipts Are Small.

Live stock receipts have been remarkably small in spite of the steady increase in prices. The bureau of agricultural economics reports that the supply of shell eggs in storage on July 1 was the smallest since 1916. Butter stocks on that date were more than 5 million pounds less than the five year average.

Two of the largest public utility issues in months were announced yesterday in the east. Both will be offered today. A banking group headed by the First of Boston corporation is putting out a new issue of $25,000,000 two year 5 per cent coupon gold notes of the Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston. These notes, which are dated July 16, 1932, and mature July 16, 1934, are priced at 99.62 and accrued interest to yield 5.20 per cent. Proceeds are to be used to retire other notes. The company reports that for the first five months of 1932 its earnings were 3.66 times interest charges.

Brooklyn Gas Issue.

A syndicate headed by the National City company is offering an issue of $10,000,000 Brooklyn Union Gas company 25 year series B 5 per cent bonds priced at 98 and interest to yield about 5.14 per cent. These bonds are due May 1, 1957.

More good news came from the west and northwest. H. W. Beyers, vice president in charge of traffic of the Chicago and North Western railway, reports that crop prospects, reported good on that railroad this spring, are "becoming better week by week until present indications are that farmers along our line will harvest one of the largest small grain crops in their history and that corn sections will have a bumper yield."

Report on Banks.

The first two weeks in July show that new and reopened banks are maintaining the steady increase begun in March, says Rand, McNally & Co.'s weekly report on banking conditions. For the week ended yesterday noon the increase was 55 per cent over the same period in 1931. Every month since March the number of new and reopened banks has been greater than in the corresponding months a year ago.

Bank closings, says the report, show a decrease of 26.8 from the figure for the preceding week and were 15.2 per cent under the 1932 weekly average. Banks closed during the week included four national, one private, and 21 state institutions in 12 states.

Steel Ingot Output.

With a number of steel plants resuming work after a holiday shutdown ingot production has returned to the average of June, and stands at 16 per cent of the nation's capacity, according to the Iron Age.

The steel industry has ceased searching its own figures and is looking to the farm for encouragement.

"A degree of stability in commodity prices and the sustained advances in live stock values, with the prospect that this improvement may extend to other agricultural products," says the Iron Age, "has raised hopes that the farm, the longest and most serious sufferer from depression, may lead the way out, as has happened in previous economic crises."

ELECTRIC OUTPUT DECREASES IN WEEK; WELL BELOW 1931

New York, July 13.—Reduced by the cessation of general business activity over the Independence day weekend, electric power output dropped considerably in the last week in comparison with the previous week and also when compared with the like 1931 period.

Output of electricity totaled 1,341,780,000 kilowatt hours in the week of July 9, the National Electric Light association reports, compared with 1,456,961,000 in the preceding week and 1,603,713,000 in the corresponding period of 1931.

As the Fourth of July holiday fell in an earlier week in 1931 comparisons with last year were not made for the week of July 9, but rather the output for the last two weeks was compared with that of the like 1931 period in order to eliminate the effect of the holiday.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES ADVANCE; EDISON IS HIGHER

Stocks on the Chicago exchange shared in the general improvement in security prices yesterday. Commonwealth Edison was the outstanding gainer here, shooting ahead 2½ points to 55.

Packing issues renewed their advance. The setback in the hog market was apparently offset by the improvement in cattle prices.

Swift International and Swift & Co. shares showed moderate gains. Improvement was also shown in other classes of stocks. Gains were small. Considerable activity developed in the shares of the lower priced investment trust shares. Continental Chicago was quoted as high as $1 and closed at 87½ cents, compared with its previous price of 62½ cents. Trading in Chicago Investors expanded to 3,400 shares as the price held steady at $1.25.

Tightens Rules on Building Loan Groups

BY SCRUTATOR.

More stringent regulations for building and loan associations in Illinois have been announced by Oscar Nelson, state auditor. The new rulings will affect more than 900 associations with more than 900,000 members and assets exceeding 460 million dollars.

Mr. Nelson charges that many associations have not written off losses and have paid larger dividends than were justified. This is particularly true of Chicago associations, he says. He holds that all associations must change from figuring dividends on an accrual basis to a cash basis. He suggests that dividends must be reduced and that stock maturities be lengthened.

Relates to Depression.

"After July 1, 1932, associations will not be permitted to accrue and distribute as profits any delinquent interest, premiums and fines on loans more than six months in arrears," Mr. Nelson informed the associations. "This ruling, made necessary by the changing conditions due to the depression, has been designed to permit the associations gradually to make the transition from an accrual to a cash basis of figuring and paying dividends.

"Numerous associations are seriously handicapped because they have been doing a credit business instead of a cash business. They have paid out thousands of dollars of profits that it is now realized will not materialize. Shares have been declared matured and the owners have been paid in cash which the association has not collected. Every share of stock must be allowed to run until the dues paid in, plus the profits actually earned, collected and credited to each share, shall total its ultimate value.

"Directors must revise their dividend rates in accordance with the actual appraised value of their assets and the actual bona fide profits of the association—not anticipated, or expected, or visionary, or hoped for profits, but actual profits."

Mr. Nelson calls attention that the Illinois law makes it mandatory to apportion profits and losses at least annually, but he suggests that this be done more often.

Some Lacking Courage.

"Directors of many of the Chicago associations," he continues, "have not had the vision or courage to take the steps necessary to cope with the depression. In spite of losses, depreciation and delinquent accounts, they are declaring their stock to be matured in a period of time that is entirely too short. Chicago associations must run their stock 6½ years as an absolute minimum unless they can show cause that earnings warrant a shorter maturity.

"Downstate the directors are exercising far more foresight and prudent business management in many instances than are the directors of some of the Chicago associations. Many of the downstate associations, even some of the largest ones, are distributing only 3 or 4 per cent per annum on their shares during 1932 and as long as may be necessary to safeguard absolutely the investments of their shareholders. The majority now are down to 5 per cent per annum."

The Building and Loan Bulletin, which promulgates the new rulings, carries a foreword which is still another warning to officers of the associations.

Directors Dislike Losses.

"Directors do not like to face losses," it says. "It is much more pleasant to declare a 7 per cent dividend by looking at the profits account alone than to look around and find losses and depreciation that must be charged off so that the net result is a dividend of 5 or 4 per cent or less. Yet it is more important to determine and apportion the losses than it is to apportion the profits.

"If an association should in some manner forget to apportion the profits for several years it would not be insolvent on that account and the omission could be rectified forthwith. Accumulated losses, however, cause failure, bankruptcy, receivership, insolvency, tragedy, woe, want, and despair whether such losses are neglected or willfully overlooked by individuals or partnerships or by corporations, trusts, associations, financial institutions, states, nations, or any other type of organization."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—Short covering combined with speculative buying in sugar, building, packing, and other shares in a way to benefit from the current improvement in commodity prices to give the stock market more of a worthwhile look today. Gains among some of the more ambitious trading mediums ranged as high as 3 or 4 points.

There is a growing belief in the street that congress is getting ready to adjourn at an early date and some of those entertaining the opinion seem to think it would be just as well not to be caught out on a limb with a lot of short obligations in the event of such a happening. That seemed to be the motive power behind most of today's activity on the purchasing side.

All Groups Advance.

All groups participated in the day's advance, although some were considerably more active than others. The utilities at times were almost buoyant. This section has been under the hammer ever since the Chicago conventions and before and the losses among some of the more vulnerable issues have been considerable. International Telephone was conspicuously active, although its net gain was limited to a fraction. Shares of this corporation have almost doubled in value in a little over a month. Brokers attribute the improvement to the settling of disturbing elements in a number of foreign countries where the company has extensive interests.

American Telephone rose nearly 3 points. The board of this premier public service corporation is slated to meet for dividend action on Aug. 17 and, despite the recent report that no less than 750,000 subscribers had canceled their phone subscriptions since Jan. 1, the street heard that there is more than a passing chance that the regular quarterly rate will be ordered. CITY BANK FARMERS TRUST COMPANY, New York, (Successor) Trustee

Application will be made to list these Bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

These Bonds will meet the present requirements for legal investment by Savings Banks in New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Minnesota, Michigan, California and Washington.

The Brooklyn Union Gas Company, incorporated in September, 1895, under the laws of the State of New York, supplies manufactured gas in 30 of the 32 wards of the Borough of Brooklyn (coextensive with the County of Kings), and in 2 of the 5 wards of the Borough of Queens. The territory served, with a total populaton, according to the latest census estimates, of over 2,800,000, is growing rapidly and presents an excellent field for the further expansion of the system. The Company possesses franchises for supplying gas in the territory served, which, in the opinion of its counsel, are perpetual, contain no burdensome provisions, and are entirely adequate for its business requirements.

The First Lien and Refunding Mortgage Bonds ($16,000,000 outstanding, including this issue) are secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct mortgage on the entire physical property and franchises of The Brooklyn Union Gas Company now owned or hereafter acquired, subject to $15,000,000 prior liens of closed underlying mortgages. The Bonds are also secured by pledge with the Trustee of $2,472,000 First Mortgage 6½% Bonds (the entire funded debt) of four predecessor companies now merged into The Brooklyn Union Gas Company.

The properties of The Brooklyn Union Gas Company, exclusive of working capital, represent an investment of over $109,000,000, against which there will be presently outstanding only $31,000,000 principal amount of Mortgage Bonds. The equity is represented by $18,308,400 of Debenture Bonds and 741,200 shares of Common Stock, having a combined market value, based on current quotations, of over $56,000,000. Dividends are paid on the Common Stock at present at the annual rate of $5 a share.

Earnings since January 1, 1927, have been as follows:

Calendar Year	Gross Earnings Including Other Income	Operating Expenses, Maintenance, Retirement Expenses and Taxes	Net Earnings
1930	25,722,847	17,885,938	7,836,909
1931	25,328,073	17,256,860	8,071,213

*Twelve months ended April 30, 1932.

Annual interest requirements on the aggregate mortgage debt to be outstanding, including this issue, will amount to $1,610,000. Ranking junior to such requirements, the annual interest on the present debenture debt amounts to $916,962. The net earnings, as above, for the twelve months ended April 30, 1932, were respectively more than 4.8 and 3.0 times such annual interest requirements on the mortgage debt and on the combined funded debt.

The First Lien and Refunding Mortgage and all proceedings incident to its creation have been approved by Messrs. Shearman & Sterling, for the undersigned, and by Messrs. Cullen & Dykman for The Brooklyn Union Gas Company. Bonds are offered when, as and if issued to and received by us, subject to the approval of counsel, and to receipt by us of their opinion that the Bonds are legal investment for Savings Banks in the State of New York. It is expected that temporary Bonds will be available for delivery on or about July 22, 1932.

STANDARD MAKES INFORMAL OFFER TO RICHFIELD OIL

Said to Be Ready to Turn Over 21 Million Bonds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—It was learned today that an offer for the Richfield Oil company of California has been informally laid before the committees of bondholders and creditors of that unit by the Standard Oil Company of California. The latter company has conveyed intimations to the Richfield creditors that it would be willing to give them upward of $21,000,000 income bonds of the reorganized Richfield company in exchange for their bonds and claims on the company, it is understood. In addition the California company is said to have suggested supplying the Richfield company with oil on credit.

As a result of that proposition the management of the Consolidated Oil corporation realized that it would be advisable for them to "sweeten" their recent offer to the Richfield committees, it is understood, and have indicated to those committees that they would be willing to give common stock of Consolidated Oil corporation in addition to preferred stock. Advices from Los Angeles today said that 180,000 to 185,000 shares of common stock would be tendered, but it was learned that no specific amount has been named.

Original Sinclair Offer.

The original offer by Harry F. Sinclair and associates was one of $18,000,000 par value of new 6 per cent nonvoting Consolidated Oil preferred stock. No such issue is outstanding, but an 8 per cent preferred issue is in the amount of $12,969,400 par value.

One of the objections voiced to the original Sinclair bid by the protective committee was that it involved no cash and also that in the absence of a market for the proposed issue of 6 per cent preferred stock, the value of that offering was problematical. The addition of 180,000 or thereabouts of common stock would meet that objection in part since the common stock has a market which today was 5⅝, on which basis the offer of the amount of common stock mentioned would be approximately $1,000,000, but that is not the value placed by the Sinclair interests on the stock. They figure it at $18 a share intrinsic worth, which would raise the value of the suggested offering to between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Against Action Now.

The Cities Service company, which has a substantial stake in the Richfield Oil company, has had no comment to make on the tentative offer made by the Sinclair interests, but it learned that the Doherty interests will have something to say before any deal can be put through. Their attitude is that the present is an inopportune time to effect the reorganization of the Richfield company and that it should remain in the custody of the receiver until conditions are more propitious to effect a reorganization.

OBTAIN COURT'S PERMIT TO ACT IN RECEIVERSHIP

Leave to intervene in the receivership proceedings of the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company was granted yesterday by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley to a committee representing prior preferred and preferred stockholders. The concern is a security trading and holding concern and a subsidiary of the Middle West Utilities company.

The committee consists of Robert J. Thorne, T. E. Quisenberry, and A. D. Farwell. The court order authorized the committee to examine the books and records of the company.

The petition of the committee alleged that Middle West advanced $15,000,000 to Mississippi Valley on or before Dec. 31, 1931, as part of an agreement of the parent concern to purchase common stock of the subsidiary. The petition expressed the belief that the Middle West receivers will make a claim for this sum. If the claim is allowed it would, along with other claims, exceed total assets of the trust, the petitioners recited. If it is denied, substantial sums over the claims of the general creditors would be available for the senior stockholders, the petitioners stated.

NEW BURLINGTON LINE IN TEXAS OPENS TOMORROW

The new 110 line of the Burlington railroad running from Childress to Pampas, Tex., will be formally opened tomorrow, according to announcement yesterday. Ralph Budd, president of the Burlington, and prominent business men of the territory served will be among passengers on the special train which will make the initial trip over the line.

The original $4,000,000 appropriated by the railroad for the project has not all been spent. Substantial economies were effected through the construction of the line by the Burlington itself. The road runs southeast to northwest through a general agricultural region in central and northwestern Texas.

The road is tapped by the Rock Island, Santa Fe and Missouri, Kansas and Texas lines. Under a ruling of the interstate commerce commission, the Rock Island has a 120 day option after completion of the line to acquire an interest in the section of the line between Shamrock and Childress.

Sees Better Auto Outlook; "Dealers Understocked"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kenosha, Wis., July 13.—A comparison of automobile shipments from the factories with the number registered in the states for operation shows manufacturers and dealers are practically without any cars on hand, E. H. McCarty, president and general manager of Nash Motors, said today. The condition has been reached, it was said, for almost the first time in the history of the industry; inventories have been absorbed within three years. "The decks are clear for better business," he declared.

ASSOCIATED GAS SEEKS MILLIONS FOR 'AFFILIATES'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—More than 250,000 security holders of the Associated Gas and Electric system are being asked to help the company to raise $18,556,000 of short term maturities of its subsidiaries by subscribing on an average of $100 each to 4½ per cent first mortgage bonds of the New Jersey Power and Light company at a 20 per cent discount.

The proposal made in a letter signed by J. L. Mange, president, says the company is faced with the "imperative necessity" of raising this sum promptly.

Method of Payment.

Security holders will be permitted to pay for their commitments in the bonds which are listed on the New York Stock exchange and which are legal investments for savings banks in New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Maine, Connecticut, Rhode Island, California, and other states on the installment plan at the rate of $10 down $10 a month. If each holder subscribes to his proposed share, the company will have received more than $26,000,000, giving it ample cash over and above the maturity.

The maturities that must be met are $1,936,000 for the Staten Island Edison corporation, $9,060,000 for the Rochester Gas and Electric corporation and $7,560,000 for the Pennsylvania Electric company. The letter says that "the management of course has not abandoned its efforts to meet these maturities in whole or even partially by the usual and customary methods, but in this emergency it is unsafe to rely on these efforts."

Calls Resources Ample.

The Associated Gas and Electric company, according to the letter, has ample cash to take care of its own current requirements, but has no excess funds that can be applied to the reduction of these subsidiary debts. The company has no bank loans, and no voting or equity stocks of any operating subsidiary or of any holding company of the system that have been pledged for any bank loans or any other short term debt.

The letter points out that utility companies have no recourse to the Reconstruction Finance corporation and that savings banks and insurance companies, usually large subscribers to such offerings as the one being made, are now obliged to keep large sums in cash for depositors and policyholders, limiting the extent to which they can invest.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 6,000; hogs, 17,000; sheep, 10,000.

Cattle prices continue to forge ahead on light supplies. Yesterday's peak price reached $9.75, a new top which stands highest since last January and $2.10 above the top price three weeks ago. All other livestock slipped back again and beef steers are selling relatively higher than all other meat animals, but the shortage in numbers is most acute in the cattle yards. Receipts are running smallest for this time of the year since 1884.

The average cost of steers the first half of this week stands 73 per cent above the cost of hogs. Six weeks ago, before the sharp rise in swine, cattle were costing 95 per cent more than hogs, but a year ago at this time the cattle price was only 19 per cent above hogs. Liberal waterfills curbed buying to some extent yesterday, but the available supply of cattle was short and cleared quickly at the new high prices.

Values Sharply Higher.

The value of an average carload of 25 steers has advanced $6.00@6.50 since the low spot in May, with the per head value up almost $25 in that time. Wholesale beef is meeting favorable demand. Prime 1,297 lb steers established the new top of $9.75. A big share of the total arrivals were sold at $9.00 and above, with the bulk of all steers at $7.50@9.50. The bulk eight weeks ago sold at $5.40@7.00. Better action in the hide market has had some effect on the cattle trade. Butcher stock sold at mostly steady prices. Calves, however, tumbled 50c to $1.00 in value, declining in sympathy with the lamb trade.

Hog prices sagged again yesterday. The extreme top and the general average showed 15c loss at $5.25 and $4.75, respectively, standing 25@30c lower than Monday, the high spot of the year. However, despite the setback, the top still shows a gain of 59 per cent over the low spot in May and the average is 50 per cent above the low day. The value of an average single deck carload of 70 hogs is still about $300 above the low spot.

The principal cause for the reverse of the hog market trend is traced to the break in the wholesale market for pork loins, which has been crowded by stock from other points. A few shipments of loins were from Canada. Frozen loins put away at 5@7c in the spring were also offered too freely for the good of the trade. However, loins are still 100@150 per cent above the low point of the winter.

Lambs Decline Again.

Lamb prices registered another break of 25c, and sorting yesterday was more severe than on preceding sessions this week. Only closely sorted ewe and wether natives sold to packers at $6.26, with a few handpicked lambs at $6.75 to city butchers. All buck lambs are being rejected from load lots and marked down $1.00 in price, while cull lambs are discounted $2.00@2.50 from the top figures. Packers proceeded cautiously when wholesale prices on dressed carcasses were marked down 2c per pound. However, lamb is still selling 50@70 per cent above the low point of the winter.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 6,000 cattle, 17,000 hogs, and 10,000 sheep, against 5,059 cattle, 16,657 hogs, and 9,300 sheep the previous Thursday and 6,804 cattle, 17,632 hogs, and 11,598 sheep a year ago.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today but the undertone was firm. Local refiners continued to show interest at 3.05c for spots, but holders generally were asking 3.10c, although it was rumored that some business had been done at 3.08c. The only sale confirmed was 7,500 bags of Cuban in store by one southern refiner to another at 3.06c, which was 3 points above the last previous sale. Except for a little irregularity at the outset, futures were firmer, reflecting the strength of spot and the recent restriction program enacted by Cuba. Final prices were 9 to 4 points net higher on sales of 24,600 tons. The market opened at 2 points decline for October, but unchanged to 2 higher for other positions on further covering and buying by trade interests. Prices follow:

Refined prices were unchanged at 3.90 to 4.00c for fine granulated, with a good withdrawal demand reported. However, new business was light and second-hand offerings at below the list prices of refiners were reported.

LONDON WOOL MARKET.

LONDON, July 13.—(AP)—A good selection of merinos but a poor grade of crossbreds were offered at the wool auction today. Competition was strong and prices were well maintained. Withdrawals were frequent among scoured and greasy merinos as they, limits. There were 9,785 bales of

PREPARE PLAN TO REORGANIZE BELLAS-HESS CO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—Under a plan of reorganization approved by the preferred stockholders' committee of the National Bellas Hess company, Inc., and by the receivers for the company, acting under an order signed by Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman in the United States District court today, the company, which was placed in equity receivership last April, will receive 300,000 shares of common stock in the new company organized to carry on its mail order business.

Basis of Stock Payment.

The payment of stock to National Bellas Hess is equivalent to five common shares in the new enterprise for each preferred share of the old company now outstanding. The new company has also agreed to pay $100,000 in cash on an amortization basis, and to assume certain liabilities involving interest, taxes, and insurance on the company's Kansas City plan, and the redemption of refund vouchers now outstanding in the hands of customers.

The new company has acquired, under the terms of the plan, the name, good will, customer list, and miscellaneous operating equipment of the National Bellas Hess.

Offices in Kansas City.

The executive offices will be in Kansas City, Mo., where it will occupy the present National Bellas Hess property under a long term lease with a purchase option. Business will be resumed with the publication of a fall catalogue, of which 3,000,000 copies will be circulated, it was said.

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The nationally known HOUSEHOLD LOAN PLAN offers cash loans of $300 or less to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Loans above $100 and up to $300 are made at a rate less than the usual small loan rate.

If you are working and keeping house you have all the security needed for a Household loan.

Commonwealth Customers—PAY LESS—for LOANS

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

You get the full amount of the loan, and up to 20 months to repay. Interest at the reduced rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.

Fire Sweeps Through Coney Island Causing $5,000,000 Damage—Mercury Climbs to 95, Then Falls

LARGEST WEEKDAY CROWDS OF YEAR GATHER AT CITY BEACHES WHEN MERCURY CLIMBS TO 95. View of the crowd at the beach at 50th street and the south side outer drive as it appeared from the roof of the Powhatan apartment hotel during the afternoon. In the evening a fresh north wind sent the temperature tumbling. Only temporary relief is in sight, however, although it is not expected to be as warm today as it was yesterday. (Story on page 1.)
